CHRISTMAS TREES AT THE CHURCHES

SUNDAY SCHOOLS WILL HAVE TREATS AND GIVE APPROPRIATE PROGRAMS

The various Sunday schools of this city will observe Christmas with appropriate exercises at the several churches Christmas eve.

Union Sunday School.

The Christian and Baptist Union Sunday school and the Sunday school from the Pratt school house will celebrate the Christmas festivities together at the Christian church. An entertaining program, given mostly by the little folks, has been arranged. The music will be principally by the Sunday school choir and will be a pleasing feature. A beautiful tree will bear the Christmas treat of nuts and candy, and all children are invited to come and share in the Christmas cheer.

TELEPHONE SLAVE OF E. H. HARRIMAN

WALL STREET WIZARD MADE GREAT USE OF THE MODERN TIMESAVER

"His great instrument was the telephone," said a biographer of the late Edward H. Harriman in the Wall Street Journal. "He always had it beside him. The Harriman switchboard was one of the best equipped and busiest in New York. Whether in his office, his library, his bedroom or his bathroom, the telephone was always there, and when he went into the Oregon wilderness the telephone would go, too.

"A slave to the telephone," wrote a New York editor in commenting on Harriman and his telephone. "Nonsense," said Harriman, when this was called to his attention, "the telephone is a slave to me."

It is altogether likely that much of the power and influence of the late Mr. Harriman was due to the aid of his telephone. In fact, he admitted as much. His telephone was his ever present messenger, always ready for service. With it he reached all of his business associates and every corner of his vast railroad territory. A man who puts the telephone in his home places himself in the avenue of approach to millions of other homes, shops, offices and farms.

Just as with the railroad king, so it is with farmers and men in all other walks of life. The telephone in the home or business place of many a man less famous than Harriman is performing a work just as great in importance, and perhaps is proving even more of a blessing than to the capitalist whose every command could be carried out. The instrument was probably just as important in the mind of the farmer who wrote:

"I would as soon think of mowing my hay with an old-fashioned scythe, as try to conduct my farm successfully without a telephone."

Throughout the farming world the telephone today is a popular and useful instrument. It was not so long ago when its use in rural sections was unheard of. Now it is the farmer's greatest aid in business, in home life and for protection. He sells his crops with the aid of the telephone, catching a fluctu-
