The Synopsis.

At a recent performance at a certain theater an overdressed woman, after rustling ostentatiously into her seat, finally composed herself and looked at her program. Opening it at the second page of the bill, she saw in prominent letters "Synopsis," which she pronounced in an audible tone, though speaking to herself.
"Pshaw," she remarked, turning to her companion, "we've seen this here play before! Let's go home."
But after a whispered objection on the part of her friend, who probably in as diplomatic a manner as possible explained her mistake to her, she settled back in her seat, apparently somewhat discomfited.
