STOCKMEN MAY GET FIVE YEAR PERMITS

SUPERVISOR GIVEN AUTHORITY ISSUE LONG TERM PERMITS IN NATIONAL FOREST.

The Supervisor of the Wallowa National Forest has been given authority to approve grazing applications for a period of five years. Payments will be made yearly as heretofore, but stockmen will be insured the grazing of their stock for a term of five years with a slight annual reduction, if necessary to insure the range against damage. This procedure will put the grazing business on a very stable basis and obviate the necessity of making applications every year and will, it is thought, tend to improve the range, as a stockman who knows he will have range for five years will take better care of it.

Grazing fees and seasons are practically the same as they were last year.

Blockade Raised; Traffic Resumed

Heaviest Snow and Drifts in Years - Trains Running Regular Again

The railroad blockade was relieved Wednesday. The engine and mail car of the outgoing train of Tuesday broke through the drifts two miles this side of Elgin Wednesday morning, the other cars being derailed. The track however was cleared about 2 p. m., the coaches righted on the track and traffic resumed. A train from La Grande reached Enterprise at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. Both trains are again making regular trips but running late.

The Observer of Wednesday gave the following account of the trouble: On the main line the trains are moving each way and Dispatcher Corbett reported the track clear at 2 o'clock, the entire distance of the division.

Rotary Breaks Down. Last night, or rather early this morning, the rotary came to a sudden stop.

LAGRANDE HIGH WINS THE DEBATE

BOTH ITS TEAMS GAIN DECISION - W. C. H. S. NEGATIVE VICTOR AT ELGIN.

La Grande negative won from the Wallowa County high school affirmative in the debate Friday night by a unanimous vote of the three judges.

At the same time the Wallowa County negative team composed of Irl and Aaron Olmsted and Miss Julia Marvin met Elgin affirmative in the latter city, and were successful by a vote of 3 to 1.

La Grande won from Elgin at La Grande and is thus the winner in this triangle. The question was "Resolved that the Galveston plan of government applied to New York City would correct the prevalent political vices of that city."

Assembly hall of Wallowa County high school, made gay with pennants and streamers in which were intermingled the blue and white of La Grande and the garnet and grey of Wallowa, was filled with a responsive and enthusiastic audience.

Miss Amy Olmsted presiding gracefully and gave an opening address explaining the working of the debating league. The program was punctuated throughout by the school yell. Miss Nellie Stubblefield was the first speaker on the affirmative. In a clear, distinct voice and unaffected manner Miss Stubblefield presented the advantages of the Galveston plan, and told of the boodling and corruption of New York politicians. The solution of the problem of their eradication must lie in undivided responsibility. "The people are not grafters," said the speaker.

Joe Ingles, the leader for the affirmative, had such a frank, pleasing manner that the judges could not be blamed for agreeing to every proposition he made. He said that the Galveston plan was un-American; to place the government of a city like New York in the hands of five men would be a step in the direction of dictatorial government; no referendum, no recall, no veto power for the mayor. He showed that reform must come not in change of form but in change of men. A great disaster always brings forth the best men to meet the crisis. It was so in Galveston, and to this may be attributed the success of her government.

Asa Craig for the affirmative told of the growth of New York, and her present system. He was clear and direct in his argument, showing how the commission would be responsible for the expenditures and improvements.

Will Hamilton, La Grande's second speaker, said the Galveston plan was tried 15 years in Sacramento and 12 years in New Orleans and was a dismal failure in both cities. No better plan had ever been tried than the present system in New York. To be rightly governed the people must know what they need they are not getting, and what the officials are doing. His speech showed good thought and carried weight.

Fred Holmes made the closing argument for the home team. He said Sacramento discontinued the Galveston plan by legislative action of the state and not by vote of the people. Mr. Holmes has a very easy delivery and is especially good at rebuttal. He put up a fine argument interspersed with considerable humor.

Arlo Myers, third speaker for La Grande, said the per cent of crime is greater proportionately in Galveston than in New York. He ridiculed the idea of attempting to govern New York with her 4,500,000 people in the same manner as Galveston's 20,000. Mr. Myers has a well modulated voice and uses it effectively.

The judges were O. C. Maxwell principal of the Imbler school, Orle Hampton of Pendleton high school, and A. G. Smith of the Lostine school. A large number of high school pupils from Lostine, Wallowa and Joseph were present. Prof. Stout, principal of the high school, accompanied the La Grande team.

Corvallis Cadets Get High Praise

Military Organization Rated One of First Three Of 93 Institutions.

Corvallis, Jan. 20.—The military organization at the Oregon Agricultural college is one of the most efficient at any of the civil educational institutions in the United States. The United States Military Inspection board, after inspecting ninety-three institutions, has selected the Oregon Agricultural college, the University of Minnesota and the University of California as deserving special mention because of the "exceptionally good condition of the military department". The Oregon Agricultural college is one of the twelve institutions having an enrollment of over five hundred cadets. It is the only institution of purely Agricultural and Mechanic Arts standing to receive mention.

Rowing may be added to the athletic activities of the Oregon Agricultural college in the near future. If the Willamette river proves to furnish a suitable course, Director Angell will purchase barges and the new sport will be commenced. Races will be scheduled with the University of California, Washington, and Leeland Stanford.

OSTEO-PATHY

OPPOSITE CONDITIONS MAY HAVE LIKE CAUSES

Just as Osteopathy relieves constipation so will it also cure diarrhoea, conditions diametrically opposite, yet both departures from normal, one of deficient action, the other, overaction; and this illustrates the principle that all disease is a departure from the normal and that Osteopathy has to do merely with restoring the normal.
