Big Crowds Hear Evangelist Gregg

Three Large Audiences At Sunday Services—Temperance Meeting in Afternoon.

Three large audiences greeted Evangelist Gregg, Sunday. The morning service was devotional, the theme, "The Great Memorial," touched all hearts. Three persons of Joseph were among the additions to the church at this service. The sermon was followed by the baptismal ceremony.

The music under the direction of Mrs. O. M. Corkins is pronounced by the evangelist as one of the most valuable aids to the success of the meetings. The quartet composed of Messrs. Poley and Bradley, Mrs. Sheets and Miss Payne rendered the beautiful anthem, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

The afternoon service was under the direction of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. A union chorus furnished the music, using songs appropriate to the temperance work. Miss Browning sang beautifully the old song, "Father, Dear Father, Come Home With Me Now." At this service the evangelist took for his theme "The Perils of Old Glory." He said: "Whatever opposes that for which 'Old Glory' is unfurled is an enemy and ought to die. That banner stands for prosperity, peace, happiness, education and nobility of character. The saloon stands opposed to these necessary qualities of a great nation, and is therefore an enemy and ought to die. Old Glory stands for law and order, while the saloon defies all law, proscribes justice, and is the unholy hand of treason and anarchy that would besmirch her colors with crime."

The evening service was attended by a crowded house of interested listeners. The evangelist used as his subject "Fraternal Orders," and was master of his theme. Many of the audience were heard to say, "That was the fairest and clearest treatment of the subject I have ever heard." Mr. Gregg emphasized the fact that fraternal orders do not take the place of the church and do not promise to save a man's

HOW TOWNS MAY SECURE PAY ROLLS

Lumber company's saw mill, planing mill and box factory. That company has never closed down for one single day, it employs from four to seven hundred men and its pay roll runs from $40,000 to $50,000, its checks are cashed here, and its employees purchase ninety per cent of their supplies in the La Grande stores.

"Suppose another large lumber company and planing mills should be erected here, or a woolen mill, a wool scouring plant, a yarn mill, a gas plant, an electric light and power plant and suppose that the one hundred thousand dollars and more was to be divided amongst these various institutions would not the people of La Grande double their money in twelve months in addition to quadrupling the population of the city? These are matters worthy of the consideration of every thoughtful business man and taxpayer. Who will start the ball rolling?"

THE SNOW BLOCKADE WAS RAISED TUESDAY

a foot of the beautiful along Snake river and considerable on the Imnaha. Most owners still have feed enough for a couple of weeks.

Wide Extent of Storm.

La Grande, Feb. 22.—Sunday and Monday's storm was general over the Northwest, but hit Eastern Oregon and Washington the hardest. Two feet of snow fell at Kamela, the same amount at Duncan and there are 12 feet on a level at Telocaset. The O. R. & N. tracks are as if laid in a tunnel through the mountains both east and west of here and a wind will easily cause another blockade.
