FOREST SERVICE CURBED BY COURT

DEPARTMENT IS FORBIDDEN TO PROSECUTE FOR VIOLATION OF REGULATIONS.

(From the Oregonian.)

Washington, March 15.—Under a decision of the Supreme Court handed down yesterday the Forest Service will no longer be permitted to institute criminal proceedings against persons who violate its regulations governing forest reserves.

By a vote of four to four, the court sustained the action of Judge Welborn, of Southern California, who sustained the demurrer of two men indicted for grazing sheep on the Sierra forest reserve without permit.

Judge Welborn held that the law authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to make regulations for the administration of forest reserves is unconstitutional in that it attempted to delegate legislative authority to an executive officer and empowered such officer to create a criminal offense.

Forest Service officials have not yet been advised of this decision, but it is their opinion that the decision of the court merely prohibits their instituting criminal prosecution against persons who violate their regulations. It is their intention to continue their regulations in effect and to continue to charge a fee for grazing within reserves.

Just how they expect to enforce their orders, in view of this decision, is not made plain. If they find themselves helpless they probably will appeal to Congress to enact their regulations into law.

A STUDY IN BACKS

The ignorance of the average layman regarding his own anatomy is a matter of constant wonder to the osteopathic physician. This is particularly regarding the back. Many people have a vague idea regarding the geography of the stomach, liver, tonsils, and a few other things inside, but of their backs they are absolutely ignorant. "There isn't anything in the back, anyway," they will say, "it's just the back—that's all." Thus is this part of the anatomy dismissed from consideration.

Yes, of course, they have backaches, lumbago, rheumatism, round shoulders, curvatures etc., but that doesn't make any difference. They continue to put on plasters and liniments, rub in iodine, and use hot water bottles, but they do not devote any more thought to the poor neglected back itself.

Let them go to the average medical adviser and describe their aches and pains. What does he do? Does he examine the back? Oh, no. He asks a lot of questions and concludes the matter by announcing that the pain is only a "reflex" from pelvic or abdominal organs, or is caused by a "general run down condition," or "the blood is poor," and he prescribes a tonic or some preparation of iron, or treatment for some part of the front of the body—nothing for the back.

Now, is this in accord with the clear teachings of anatomy and physiology? Let us see. The growth, action and health of every part of the body depends primarily upon its nerve supply. The spinal cord, which is contained within the "back-bone" is the center and switchboard of the nervous system for the trunk and from it and to it go practically all the nerves in the body except in the head. Any pressure upon or any irritation to nerve produced an abnormal effect upon the organ to which it goes. Consequently any irregularity in the back-bone or ribs or spinal muscles may result in disease or pain or weakness in some organ.

This is the basic principle of anatomy and physiology, but has been largely ignored by the medical profession until recently. The doctor has been accustomed to examine the front of the body exclusively, except when there was some specific injury or sore on the back. He had forgotten the basic principles of the body in his strenuous race to keep up with the additions to his list of supposed remedies.

The very fact that the medical profession ignored the back was the opportunity for the birth of a new school of practice—Osteopathy. This school stepped into the breach and has astonished the scientific world by its ready demonstrations of its theory, that the body, as a machine, can be treated exclusively from the

Invests $17,000 In Wheat Land Here

Eliza J. Blake, of San Francisco, has sold to Fred Ewing of Portland, 320 acres lying northwest of Enterprise, consideration $5,000. The sale was made through Burleigh & Boyd's office. Mr. Ewing has invested $17,000 in wheat land lying northwest of Enterprise and is proposing to raise wheat on an extensive scale. He recently purchased 920 acres from W. W. Wade and M. O. Courtney.

DEATH OF MRS. SHAW.

Word was received in this city of the sudden death of Mrs. Shaw, wife of Dr. Shaw, a former resident of Enterprise and also of Joseph. Mrs. Shaw was rendered unconscious by an overdose of nerve medicine, and never spoke again. Dr. and Mrs. Shaw have resided in Hood River for a number of years and have a beautiful home in that city. Many old friends here will hear the news of her death with sorrow.

His One Great Chance.

One who had been very rich slowly approached the gates of pearl. He appeared to be in doubt. There was nothing in his manner to indicate that he expected to be welcomed with open arms or a blare of trumpets.

He saw others, those who had been poor and humble upon the earth, walk up confidently to the splendid entrance and gain ready admittance.

Frequently he paused as if he had decided to turn back, but little by little he drew nearer to the place where his fate was to be decided.

At last he stood before the gate and peered through at the magnificent scene within.

Then the saint who kept the key, perceiving him, asked:

"Have you any credentials to present?"

"No," replied the one who had been very rich. "The best I can hope for is to ask that you will permit me to try to get a camel to pass through the eye of a needle. I don't suppose I can do it, but I will try. I have never believed in giving up without making an effort."

"Your remarks lead me to believe you were a rich man."

"I was—a very rich man."

"I suppose you were not always scrupulous in your dealings with other men?"

"No."

"Your riches were not the result of hard work and honest dealing?"

"No. I gained my millions by laying burdens upon others, by cunningly evading laws that were made for the purpose of protecting the weak and by engaging in enterprises that were often of a questionable nature."

"I suppose you gave many millions to charity and did other things that were intended to divert public attention from your reprehensible practices?"

"Yes. I can see now, however, that I might as well have saved myself the trouble. Giving to charity for selfish ends instead of for the love of giving, it appears from certain things which I have seen and heard since my arrival here, does not rank as a virtue."

"Well, if there is nothing in your record which ought to entitle you to admittance here, why do you linger?"

"There is one thing that I have thought might be considered in my favor."

"What is it?"

"I never went around after I had become a multimillionaire trying to make people believe that I considered my wealth a burden and was longing to be poor again."

"Wait. Don't go away. I think we may be able to fix it for you without applying the needle's eye test."—Chicago Record-Herald

TOM RICHARDSON ON ADVERTISING

EXTRACTS FROM SPEECH MADE
AT BAKER CITY—SOME GOOD THOUGHTS.

"This town spent more money to hear one great artist sing—Madame Schumann-Heink—than it had spent in three years in advertising Baker City."

"The men who impose on the business men and expect them to do all the community advertising are criminals."

"The rich man who puts his name down on this subscription list for one dollar ought to be in the penitentiary."

"You can add millions to the valuation of this town by advertising."

"Tell the truth. Be honest with yourselves. Quit hiding behind the other fellow."

"The best thermometer of conditions in a city is the newspaper. I don't care what advertising you do."

"Advertising is a force that builds up. On an appropriation of $60,000 a year we have added to the valuation of Portland's property $150,000. Can you beat it for an investment?"

"Community building is a religion. You feel good when you are doing something for someone. How much better you feel when you are doing something for everyone."

"But you've got to get together. You've got to quit knocking. You must boost, all boost. But you must tell the truth. The truth is enough."

"Organize a good strong club, here. You men all pay according to your means. Get a good, strong representative board of directors. Organize like you would organize a bank."

"Then employ an expert in publicity. Get efficiency. Get skill. Pay for it. Get together, harmonize. Get into harmony with all the small towns around you."

"Have club dinners once a month or so. Make them smokers if you like. Get together and talk things over among yourselves."

"Write personal letters. Put leaflets advertising Baker in every letter sent away from here. Get your army of school children to writing grandma and Aunt Kate and Uncle John back in the East."

"Organize a newcomers club. Make your newcomers welcome. Find out what a man wants and help him to get it."

Not the Least Alarmed.

"The last time I was around here I was telling you about the comet," said the tourist.

"I remember, boss," grinned the freckled lad on the fence.

"Didn't frighten you much?"

"Not a bit, stranger."

"Well, listen. Since then I have found out that the comet will be equal to twenty full moons."

"Good news, by heck! That'll be more sneezing than ever, dad won't have to burn so many candles, and the mules can feed at night and work twice as hard in the daytime."

"You seem to be a good prophet, bub. Do you know the tail of this comet will sweep the earth next May?"

"That ought to please ma, sir, because May is housecleaning time."

"You seem to be the limit, young man. Suppose you awake some morning and find there is nothing left but the farm?"

"Just what I am thinking, stranger. President Taft says, 'Young man, stick to the farm,' and I guess in that case I'd have to do it."—Chicago News.

Tooly Lural!

"How far is it between these two towns?" asked the lawyer.

"About four miles as the flow cries," replied the witness.

"You mean as the cry flows."

"No," put in the judge; "he means as the fly crows."

And then all looked at each other, feeling that something was wrong.—Everybody's Magazine.

Improvement.

The Landlady—At our table, Mr. Bjinks, it is the custom to return thanks at each meal.

The New Boarder—That's fine! I like it lots better than paying cash.—Rebopth Sunday Herald.

Appropriate.

"He has invented a new drink."

"What does he call it?"

"Love."

"Why?"

"Because it makes the world go round."—Houston Post.

REPORT OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION

Miss Amy Olmsted will give her report of the recent Christian Endeavor convention of the Christian church Sunday evening at 7:30. Miss Olmsted gave the report to the Presbyterian Endeavor society and it was so good that by request of the Endeavor society of the Christian church it is repeated. Miss Olmsted spoke at Lostine last Sunday evening and the Reporter says:

Instead of the regular weekly session of Christian Endeavor last Sunday evening Miss Amy Olmsted of Enterprise, gave an extremely interesting talk on Christian Endeavor work. Miss Olmsted was a delegate to the state convention, and her address Sunday evening was full of good ideas and helpful suggestions for our local Christian Endeavor workers.

High Schools Will Debate at Joseph

The debate between the Joseph high school and the W. C. H. S. has been postponed until Monday evening, March 28, when it will be held at the M. E. church in Joseph. The Wallowa County High school debaters are Aaron and Irl Olmsted and Nina Miller, while Joseph will be represented by Merritt and Ora Cole and Louise Douglas.

The subject is "The Best Interests of the United States Require the Discontinuance of the Protective Policy."

St. Patrick's Social.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren Wagner were host and hostess to the Endeavor society of the Christian church at a St. Patrick's social Thursday evening.

The rooms were artistically and appropriately decorated in festoons of green crepe paper. In the story of the Irish spinster to which all contributed small green pencils were used. Mrs. J. P. Chauvet read the story aloud. The principal entertainment of the evening was a short and lively program. Each member of the company while blindfolded cut their number on the program from slips of paper tied with cords and suspended under a green bell in the doorway. Many witty Irish jokes were told. Misses Jennie Mitchell and Zora Combes gave well received Irish recitations. David Reavis in "Irish Pythology," spoke in costume and was very clever. Mrs. O. M. Corkins, Mrs. I. S. Hotchkiss, Miss Clara Bauer and Miss Grace Hartley sang short, catchy pieces. Delicious home made candy was served of china daintily decorated in green. Such socials are bound to add new members to the Endeavor and create new interest among those who already belong.

TO MAKE SEATTLE CITY BEAUTIFUL

WILL TAKE POLITICS OUT OF MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS—
CIVIC COMMISSION.

Seattle, Wash., March 18.—The cities and towns of Washington, Oregon and Idaho will be interested to know that Seattle has voted on a number of amendments to the recent city election, which are just now attracting widespread interest wherever the forces of good government are at work. At present Seattle elects its councilmen by wards. A recent election a charter amendment was adopted providing for the election of councilmen at large, nine in number, who will be responsible to the whole people and not to any one ward. It is charged that under the system of electing ward councilmen millions are wasted in useless improvements in order to make a councilman strong in his particular ward. Under the councilmen at large system it is held out that the city will only get such improvements as have real merit.

The Seattle voters also cast their votes in favor of an amendment taking municipal elections out of party politics. Hereafter there will be non-partisan primaries held. The argument in support of this was that party politics has no place in selecting men to govern a municipality. Civic Commission was created by the voters, which will have a voice in electing the sites for city buildings, etc.; this all looking toward making Seattle a "City Beautiful."

FURNITURE TALKS NO. V.

Joseph, Ore., March 18, '10. A short time ago by way of advertising my business I had published in the Joseph Herald a brief article having for a subject, personal responsibility, calculating to call attention to the writers' sterling worth. It seems some parties took violent exceptions to it and the upshot of it all is the editor of the Herald refuses to publish my advertising matter. So this will be my last Furniture talk as I am not asking for patronage from Enterprise. I shall get publicity in other ways. I repeat the statement that I have put the price of furniture down 20 or 25 per cent in Joseph and I will be found in the rear room of the Jennings Brick block, facing south. W. G. BEITH.

The Sharples Cream Separators will skim the closest, wear the longest, run the easiest, and are the easiest to clean. See 'h report of the Minnesota State Dairymen's Committee on contest of National importance. The price is less on this machine than some of the other makes. For sale by E. M. & M. Co.
