LOSTINE NEWS.

J. W. Bright has bought the H. B. Starr store building and residence. Starr will move to Portland.

L. M. Chapman has bought the Dr. Seely house of E. A. Hart of Enterprise for $2000.

Wm. Fitzpatrick has bought 12 lots of J. O. Kiddle.

Lostine and Wallowa schools will have a debate in the near future, subject, "Resolved that the United States Should Maintain a Large Navy."

OSTEO-PATHY.

The osteopath's plan is to give a thorough examination to this human organism to find out just where the trouble is, and then correct this trouble, just as any other intelligent machinist would do with a machine of his own construction. Osteopathy is based upon scientific principles; and its technique is inscrutable to any but the trained osteopathic physician; yet the common sense of it appeals instantly to all unbiased minds, and its philosophy is easily understood.

MAN'S ARM TORN OFF NEAR ELBOW

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT TO F. A. RACHOW ON HAUN FARM AT LOSTINE.

F. A. Rachow, a farmer living on the Jim Haun place just below Lostine, suffered a terrible accident Wednesday, his right arm catching in a belt and being torn off at the elbow. Assistance was at hand and Rachow was saved from bleeding to death by a tourniquet made with a towel. A physician came from Wallowa, and at last reports the injured man was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Rachow and some other men were operating a power feed chopper. The sacker choked and Rachow was fixing it when his arm caught in a small belt.

The arm was literally torn apart at the elbow, and the forearm and hand lacerated ten feet.

Mr. Rachow is a married man and has children. He owned a ranch that he sold a short time ago.

Make Big Strike At Williams Mine

Very Rich Copper Ore And Lots of It—Stockholders Are Jubilant.

H. N. Williams of Lostine was in town Thursday and Friday showing some very high grade copper ore as samples of the product of the mines of the Wallowa County Mining and Development company's property, better known as the Williams mine, on Lick creek, about 25 miles southeast of this city. The boys who have been working there this winter have come out with glowing reports.

They are working in a very rich vein that is 18 inches thick and a tunnel 140 feet long is still in rich ore. A cross cut of 40 feet does not reach the wall. Over 150 tons of this ore have been got out since February.

The Williams mine is only 10 miles northwest of the big smelter at Homestead. The ledge lies straight toward the ledges of the Iron Dyke mines, so the stockholders of this company are feeling not only hopeful but jubilant.

WALLOWA WOOLGROWERS WIN BOUNDARY DISPUTE

District Forester C. E. Chatman of Portland has upheld the ruling of H. K. O'Brien, made while the latter was supervisor at Wallowa, in regard to the boundary line in Wallowa National Forest between the stockmen of this county on one hand and those of Baker and Union counties.

This disposes of the high-handed attempt of the Union and Baker people to take range from Wallowa county stockmen, and as the ruling is iron-clad it closes the matter as far as the District Forester is concerned.

The brothers to the south are greatly peeved. The Baker City Democrat says the "Baker wool-growers are sore at the District Forester," and may appeal to the Forestry department at Washington.

Unanimous Request For Rev. S. Harris

Presbyterian Church Asks Pastor to Remain—Sunday School Officers Elected.

Rev. Samuel Harris was unanimously requested to remain with the local Presbyterian church and given a vote of thanks for his efficient work here, at the annual congregational meeting Thursday night. Geo. W. Hyatt was re-elected as (Continued on last page.)

GROUND IS READY FOR BEET SEEDING

OVER 1100 ACRES WILL BE PLANTED NEAR HERE BY SUGAR FACTORY.

T. W. Workman, field foreman in this county for the sugar factory, is rushing work preparing the ground for seeding. All the plowing is completed, 730 acres adjacent to Enterprise and over 400 acres near Lostine. Seeding will begin soon and Mr. Workman aims to complete it this month.

The ground is in fine condition and there is promise of a big crop, as plenty of water is assured.

The Stubblefield farm south of town is used as headquarters for the work. A new dump will be erected above town where the loading of the beets next fall can be done much more rapidly and easily than last autumn.

Mr. Workman returned from La Grande, Tuesday, where he had been to consult Manager F. S. Bramwell. The latter is just recovering from a severe illness. Mr. Wortman brought his youngest girl home with him, the older one remaining in La Grande to attend school.

SELLS WORTMAN RANCH AT PROFIT OF $500

E. B. Knapp has sold the John Wortman homestead that he bought a few weeks ago for $2000, to Bert Gossett for $2500, making the neat sum of $500 in less than a month.

Mr. Gossett is going to move on to the ranch and farm it. He has let a contract to Bert Reynolds to break 100 acres of sod on the place.

Enterprise Will Have First Garage

Rodgers Brothers Buy Old Skating Rink Property For That Purpose.

Jas. M. and Edward Rodgers, composing the firm of Rodgers Bros., have bought the old rink property at River and Grant streets of Walter A. Smith for $2200. The lots are 120x228 in size improved with a large one-story frame building. The deal was made by W. E. Taggart.

The new proprietors will make extensive improvements on the building, and fix it up for a garage, machine and tin shop, buggy and wagon painting room.

Burnaugh Tires Moving.

Louie Burnaugh's "broad shoulders" tired of the job of moving the old Seibert building when he got as far as the S. D. Clark lots south of the ball grounds, and so he bought the lots of Mr. Clark for $400. The building will be placed on the lots and remodeled and made over into a comfortable residence property.

Only Half The Snow.

The miners who have recently come out from the Williams mines on Lick creek, report only half as much snow this winter as last. The extreme depth a year ago was 9 feet and 1 inch, while this winter the deepest is 4 feet. The lowest temperature this winter was 10 degrees.

Clean-Up day, April 15.

WILLS RANCH TO FAITHFUL FRIEND

J. K. JOHNSON BEQUEATHS ALL HIS PROPERTY TO ROBERT WRIGHT—COURT NEWS.

The will of John K. Johnson was filed for probate, Wednesday. Mr. Johnson was an old bachelor who lived on upper Prairie Creek. He died at Lewiston, recently after a long illness.

During his illness he was taken care of by Robert Wright, and in recognition of Wright's faithfulness, Mr. Johnson willed him all his property, consisting of a homestead valued at $1000 and personal property to the amount of $15. One dollar each is bequeathed to a brother and two sisters in the East.

All the rest is given to Wright for the reason as stated in the will: "In consideration of the services and care which the said Robert Wright has, in the past years, rendered unto me."

The will is dated February, 1910.

Other Probate Doings.

C. T. McDaniel, F. A. Galloway and Charles Hauprichs appointed appraisers of estate of Eva Agnes Williams, a minor.

Return of sale of real estate by Edith E. Holst, guardian. Property sold for $1225. Sale confirmed.

NEW IRRIGATION DITCH BEING DUG EAST OF TOWN

Work is progressing rapidly on the new ditch of the Farmers Ditch company on the north side of Prairie Creek and in Swamp Creek pass. J. E. Patterson who has the contract for over two miles of the ditch is working a large force of men and teams.

The new ditch will be supplemental to the old one and will add a lot of water to the land under it. It will be about three miles long, 10 feet wide on the bottom, and will carry 30 cubic feet of water. The total cost of the new work will be about $4000.

The old ditch will be kept up and will be the source of supply for the higher lying land.

SPRINGTIME

Novelized by Porter Emerson Browne

From the Play of the Same Name by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson

COPYRIGHT, 1910, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Springtime! Springtime is love-time! And the breath of spring and the spirit of love were never more beautifully translated into words than in this idyllic story, the combined work of three men of literary genius, Booth Tarkington, Harry Leon Wilson and Porter Emerson Browne. The play, by the first two named authors, captivated hundreds of audiences. The story, by Mr. Browne, cannot fail to captivate an entire nation. Madeleine de Valette—a heroine more beautiful, more innocent, more divinely inspired with the innate purity of a young girl's love, has never been portrayed in fiction. And in Gilbert Steele, the stalwart young American soldier in Andrew Jackson's army, is found a hero who lives up to the traditions upon which this patriotic nation was founded. Read of M. de Valette, the stern French aristocrat; of his dissolute cousin, to whom he would wed Madeleine; of Father O'Mara; of L'Acadienne, the wandering dancer, who had a heart; of Wolf's sturdy American sharpshooters; of old time French customs in Louisiana, where the Code Napoleon yet prevails to administer justice on American soil; of war and peace, of bravery and cowardice, of love and hate, of life and death, and you will read a romance that creates a new standard in contemporary American fiction.

But even as her hand closed upon it was gone. She had followed. Far into the forest she had followed. And at length—

They were waiting for her at home. She must be very late! For an instant the lightness left her lips and eyes. Her father would be angry, and Aunt Marguerite, for it was not in keeping with the honor of Valette that a daughter of the house should keep waiting the one to whom she was betrothed.

MADELEINE DE VALETTE, "DELICATE AS THE HEART OF A VIOLET."

She would tell them that she had not meant to chase the butterfly; that she had meant to keep in all its starched purity the little white dress that Aunt Marguerite and old Marie had so carefully, so painstakingly, made for her; that she had meant to stroll only a little way a-down the path that led to the broad acres that had once been of Valette ere came the clutching fingers of hard faced poverty to wrench them thence. She would tell them these things; she would ex-

Chapter 1

SHE came through the mists of the morning, a slender little figure, fragile as the dew laden cobweb, delicate as the heart of a violet. Skirting the lush edge of the bayou, she came beneath the trailing moss of the oaks, following the old footpath that led to Valette. The little shafts of sunlight piercing the tangle of the great trees above her lost themselves on the tumbled masses of her gold brown hair. There was laughter in her eyes and on her lips, for she was very young and there was in her to the full the joy of living.

She was late, she knew. It had been a wonderful butterfly, a tantalizing butterfly. On wings of red and gold it had fluttered here and there, leading her far astray. It had stopped for a moment on the crimson of a japonica. Then, indeed, she had thought it hers.
