

F. Russell Drowns In Little Salmon

Troy, April 25—Frank Russell, aged 24 years, son of Edward Russell was drowned in the Little Salmon river, Sunday morning, in front of G. C. Bolding's residence, 4 1/2 miles north of Troy. He was attempting to ford the river with a three year old colt. The river was very high and was running 10 miles an hour. The horse slipped and fell over backward. The first time they came up the man was still clinging to the horse, but the animal turned over again and the second time it arose it was riderless. The horse swam to shore.

The accident was witnessed by the young man's father who stood on the bank and was unable to render him any assistance.

About ten years ago Mr. Russell saw another son killed while felling a tree. The falling tree struck an axe on young Russell's shoulder and drove the axe into the base of his brain, killing him instantly.

Searchers went up and down the river all day Sunday and this morning the search still goes on, but up to this time the body has not been recovered, his hat not even having been found. It is feared the body may have lodged up the river.

The young man lived with his father at Dry Gulch. Besides the father one brother, Clyde, and one sister, Mrs. Morrison, survive.

The funeral of Harlow A. Thomas was the largest ever held in the North Country. Over 300 persons were present at Paradise Saturday. Rev. Martin conducted the services. About forty teams were in the procession that followed the remains to their last resting place in Paradise cemetery.

Mr. Thomas passed away at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. He was one of the pioneer settlers of Wallowa county.

The ferry is now in operation.

PORTLAND—With the eyes of nearly every state organization in the country turned this way, the Oregon Automobile Association is working an arrangement by which active cooperation from each county is secured in the building of good roads and the furtherance of other work within the sphere of the club.

RAINIER—At this point the best showing in the last fishing season was in smelt. During February and March 60,000 pounds of smelt were exported from this town. This was the best record yet attained here. During last May and June, the shad run, 10,000 pounds of shad were exported from here.

Chicago Board of Trade men professed surprise when they heard the reports that an investigation into the operations of the Board of Trade is to be made by the Department of Justice. The contention of the dealers is that the Board of Trade as an institution in no way affects prices but simply affords a market where supply and demand may have free play in fixing the true, just, natural price.

MARSHFIELD—Judge John S. Coke, in the Circuit Court imposed upon four men charged with selling liquor in Myrtle Point, a dry territory, fines of $100 each and sentenced each man to 30 days in the county jail.

ROSEBURG—In the capture of Frank Murphy, alias George Chambers, following the robbery of the A. C. Kidd grocery store, local officers believe they have in custody one of the most noted crooks operating on the Pacific Coast.

His One Great Chance.

One who had been very rich slowly approached the gates of pearl. He appeared to be in doubt. There was nothing in his manner to indicate that he expected to be welcomed with open arms or a blare of trumpets.

He saw others, those who had been poor and humble upon the earth, walk up confidently to the splendid entrance and gain ready admittance.

Frequently he paused as if he had decided to turn back, but little by little he drew nearer to the place where his fate was to be decided.

At last he stood before the gate and peered through at the magnificent scene within.

Then the saint who kept the key, perceiving him, asked:

"Have you any credentials to present?"

"No," replied the one who had been very rich. "The best I can hope for is to ask that you will permit me to try to get a camel to pass through the eye of a needle. I don't suppose I can do it, but I will try. I have never believed in giving up without making an effort."

"Your remarks lead me to believe you were a rich man."

"I was—a very rich man."

"I suppose you were not always scrupulous in your dealings with other men?"

"No."

"Your riches were not the result of hard work and honest dealing?"

"No. I gained my millions by laying burdens upon others, by cunningly evading laws that were made for the purpose of protecting the weak and by engaging in enterprises that were often of a questionable nature."

"I suppose you gave many millions to charity and did other things that were intended to divert public attention from your reprehensible practices?"

"Yes. I can see now, however, that I might as well have saved myself the trouble. Giving to charity for selfish ends instead of for the love of giving, it appears from certain things which I have seen and heard since my arrival here, does not rank as a virtue."

"Well, if there is nothing in your record which ought to entitle you to admittance here, why do you linger?"

"There is one thing that I have thought might be considered in my favor."

"What is it?"

"I never went around after I had become a multimillionaire trying to make people believe that I considered my wealth a burden and was longing to be poor again."

"Wait. Don't go away. I think we may be able to fix it for you without applying the needle's eye test."—Chicago Record-Herald

"Why are you constantly referring to Higgins as a leading citizen?"

"I can't help having an admiration for the man," replied Miss Cayenne. "He belongs to our whist club and always knows which card to play first."—Washington Star.
