WHAT WORK AND BRAINS CAN DO

RAW LAND IS CONVERTED IN THREE MONTHS TO SCENES OF PROFIT.

To the Eastern man who finds an opportunity in his thickly settled section, and incidentally finds about 5,000 individuals all rampant and pell-mell after the solitary opportunity, it will come as a millennial promise to see what has been done here by some of the wide-awake newcomers who saw raw lands teeming with opportunities. A case in mind is that of the transformation wrought by Carl Roe and W. L. Calvin, within the brief space of three months, on a piece of land on the outskirts of Enterprise. This land for years lay in pasture—and very poor pasture at that. As a matter of course, all old settlers looked upon this land as upon all other land of a similar formation and in a similar raw state. Naturally, it was pronounced and firmly believed, that the land "wouldn't grow anything." It had been pastured for years. A hundred acres of it might feed half a dozen steers. It could grow grease weed and thistles and wildflowers. Besides there were hundreds of thousands of acres of just such land in Wallowa county, and if it was worth anything for agricultural crops, why hadn't somebody found it out, generations ago?

But the story of reclamation is now completely told, and this 100 acres in one field, as broken and seeded and ditched by Calvin and Roe, shows a picture of plenty and promising prosperity that is destined to advertise this section of Oregon.

On the first of March the owners began the work of turning over the primitive sod. It had never been turned over in all its age long idleness before. It was the same old wild grass and weeds that the deer and elk once roamed over in their annual migrations. It was the same historic sod that Chief Joseph and his followers delighted to turn their ponies loose upon. In fact it was the same old uncultivated mould that was heaved up originally and formed by disintegration and water action. But today it waves green with barley, and the alfalfa, to which the 100 acres were seeded with the barley, is sprouting vigorously all over it, and promising future harvests of a hundred and a thousandfold. Today, then, after only three months of well directed industry, a barren wilderness waves with barley and sprouting alfalfa; and the sight is as balm to the weary eye of the believer in the agricultural future of eastern Oregon.

In addition to this, Messrs. Calvin and Roe are now installing a large centrifugal pump, just arrived, that will lift water 125 feet to their higher reservoir and 90 feet to the lower reservoir. From these reservoirs the entire 100 acres can be irrigated and will be irrigated.

What Messrs. Calvin and Roe have done anyone with industry and a little money can do, almost anywhere in Wallowa county. The land is here and the opportunities lie just under the wild sod. Waving fields in a single season can be made to supplant barren and profitless pasture lands. The "call" is from the soil.

Leases Rooms In Litch Building

Large Rooming House in Enterprise Ought to Pay Well.

W. A. Moss, at present conducting the Lewis Hotel in this city, has leased the interior rooms in the Litch building, and Saturday began putting in furniture equipping them for rooming purposes. The demand for rooms exceeds the present supply, and Mr. Moss will doubtless find no trouble in filling the rooms as a rule with transients. It is rumored that he will also open a restaurant in the Rodgers building.

The demand for accommodations of this kind is increasing here. Although there was nothing by way of a public celebration, and although the travel and transient trade was merely at its normal, one night during the past week six transients were compelled to seek rooms wherever they might find them, owing to the filling of all hotels. This increase, moreover, is growing, and the demand seems to be for a large, commodious rooming house. Taken in time of public celebration, there are not enough "spare" rooms in the city to accommodate the public. Mr. Blanchard of the Hotel Enterprise frequently has been compelled to seek rooms even in private homes, "spare" rooms, to accommodate the hotel trade. A good rooming house would remove this frequent hunt for room accommodations.

LELIA OGBURN BADLY INJURED

HORSE TAKES FRIGHT AND RUNS, RESULTING IN SAD ACCIDENT.

Friday night last, while returning from the theatre in Enterprise, Miss Lelia Ogburn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ogburn, sustained a serious injury that leaves the patient still in a very critical condition. At last reports she was slowly regaining consciousness, though only at intervals, and remains for a part of the time in a state of insensibility.

Miss Lelia and her brother Floyd, together with a hired workman at the place, attended the Madison Square theatrical troupe's show at the opera house here. On the way home, in about the neighborhood of Judge Olmsted's ranch, one of the hills is reported as falling down. The man in charge sprang from the rig to hold the horse which became frightened and went tearing away and got loose from the man. The little girl partially sprang and was partially thrown from the rig in the neighborhood of the L. J. Jordan ranch, and struck on her temple and side. She was picked up unconscious and carried into the Jordan home, where she remains. She remained insensible until Saturday noon, when signs of consciousness became manifest, but since then she is unconscious at intervals. Neither her brother nor the hired man were injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ogburn live on the ranch owned by Deputy Sheriff Crow, on Alder Slope, where they have resided for several years. Their many friends and the friends of Lelia sympathize with them deeply in the sad affair, and hope that the little girl may recover fully and rapidly.

LANDSEEKERS FROM WASHINGTON ARE HERE

Landseekers continue to pour into Enterprise and from here to go out into various parts of the county, with a view to securing ranches. Sheriff Crowley of Killekat county, Wash., accompanied by two men, one of them William Wright, spent Friday riding over the Slope country and the Prairie Creek district. Saturday the three left for Lostine, where they will look over the valley lands, and may possibly continue a further search through the county.

Wallowa county lands are attracting wide attention among those who seek good lands for a comparatively small outlay of money per acre. Within a few years no Wallowa county lands will remain. The settler desiring to secure good land at a minimum price per acre, is compelled to do so at once—not in a few years from now. Any climate, almost, can be found in the county, owing to the varying altitudes of the county. This summer should witness, with proper advertising, a constant influx of settlers, especially from the East, who desire home locations.

TURNER OLIVER SEES WALLOWA'S FUTURE

Hon. Turner Oliver, state senator for this and Union counties, passed through Enterprise from La Grande, Monday, on his way to Joseph. In an interview Senator Oliver expressed the firm conviction that within ten years Wallowa county will be raising as much wheat as the famous "Palouse" district in Washington, if not more.

This expression from one well acquainted with the potential qualities of Wallowa county, coming on the heels of the persistent advocacy of this paper, makes us "feel good." It goes to show the strong probability that the wheat production of Wallowa county will within a brief term of years prove a vast storehouse of wealth for this county. Wherever the wheat raiser has stopped on the Wallowa county hills, he has not only made the hills look like a paradise, but he has gotten rich enough to be independent.

Improvements at Enterprise.

From the Elgin Recorder. The editor of the Recorder was among the excursionists who went to Enterprise Sunday, June 12, and while there was surprised to note the many improvements being made here. Enterprise has enjoyed a building boom, with the result that several fine stone business blocks have been constructed and many new residences erected. The new court house is completed and is a beauty. The building is constructed of a beautiful gray stone and the interior finishings are fine and the arrangement is excellent. Enterprise people have just cause to be proud of the improvements made there during the past year.

Win One Class "Get Acquainted"

Mrs. W. W. White Made Recipient of Beautiful Cut Glass Water Pitcher.

The "Get Acquainted" sociable given by the Win One class of the Presbyterian church in this city last Friday night, was a most enjoyable event for all those fortunate enough to attend. The church pews were temporarily removed and the windows and room tastefully decorated, when the gathering assembled. A program very appropriate for the occasion was gotten up in advance and rendered, including music and short addresses and prayer by the Rev. Samuel Harris. After the program, several were called upon for short speeches. A. J. Boehmer in a few very timely remarks presented Mrs. W. W. White with a beautiful cut glass water pitcher on behalf of the class and the church workers, as a token of their high appreciation of her church work and Christian endeavor. She responded fittingly, both to the presentation and to the many expressions from others of their recognition of her Christian work. The assemblage continued in social intercourse through the delicate refreshments which were served, lingering until 11 o'clock or later, and voting the evening one of profit to all and a soothing oasis in the general monotony of every-day life.
