Poor Human Nature.

The woman who had succeeded in that rather difficult task—making a boarding house pay—was confiding to a friend some of the tricks of the trade.

"While you must never allow your boarders to get too far behind in their payments, it is also true that you will profit considerably by allowing them a little leeway. So long as you are sure of your money it pays a landlady to have her boarders a week or two behind in their board."

"I don't see that," interrupted her friend.

"Well, I'll tell you," continued the landlady. "When a man owes back board you have him at a certain disadvantage. Not one in a hundred under such circumstances has the nerve at menitimes to ask for a second helping.—New York Times.

The Human Lobster.

The lobster has always appealed to the Englishman as affording a nickname for his fellow Englishman. "Lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among the Elizabethans, though it is only conjectured that an allusion to red faces was conveyed. As signifying a soldier, "lobster" originated in the civil war, being applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers, as Clarendon explains, "because of the bright iron shells with which they were covered." Afterward the allusion was transferred to the soldier's red uniform. But that was the "billed lobster." The "raw lobster" was naturally the man in blue, the policeman. In earlier days we find Grose explaining that "to boll one's lobster" meant for a clergyman to become a soldier.—London Chronicle.

What diseases can be treated successfully by Osteopathy? Let the reader remember that every minute part of the body gets its nutrition from the circulating fluids, and the action of every part is controlled by the nerves, and he will at once see that Osteopathy is applicable to the treatment of disease of all parts of the human body. Of course, no honest Osteopath will claim that all cases can be cured. In fact, there are very few diseases that cannot reach a stage beyond which cure is impossible. On the other hand, in the hands of a competent Osteopath there are very few diseases that taken in reasonable time, cannot be cured.

HOPKINS AND STARK WRESTLING MATCH

A wrestling match has been arranged to take place in the former Ashley store building on Main street, Friday evening, August 26, commencing at 8 o'clock. The principals are J. E. Hopkins of Colfax, Wash., and R. Stark of Williamsport, Pa.

Great interest centers around the event in local sporting circles, as Hopkins, the local man, has had a $100 challenge up for a long time. He had found no one who cared to come up against him until Stark put in an appearance. Stark is the larger man of the two and may have a hard time making the weight—175 pounds. Not very much is known of Stark here except that he defeated Green at Moscow last year, so that local men, knowing Hopkins' prowess, look for a lively match.

Several interesting preliminaries, boxing and wrestling, will precede the main event.

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to-night before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by Burnaugh & Mayfield and all good druggists.

Poet of Alaska Visits Enterprise

WILL LECTURE IN ENTERPRISE
TWO NIGHTS NEXT WEEK
—AUGUST 30 AND 31.

Robert Robinson, known in literary circles as the poet of Alaska, called at this office Tuesday and made himself known.

There is no accounting for the eccentricities of genius. Mr. Robinson for some time has been traveling incognito through this section of the West, in search of "local color" and material for short stories. He is so delighted with the beauty and climatic conditions of the valley that he has "pitched camp" and decided to remain here until the hot weather has somewhat abated, when he will continue his pilgrimage to the coast.

In his early life in Michigan, the poet served his time as printer's devil on a "weakly weekly" (as he expressed it) but did not make his mark as a writer of verse at that time.

"There were too many amateur rural poets contributing to our waste basket and I specialized in writing obituaries," he said, as he puffed his cigar in a reminiscent way. "I soon had the reputation of being able to say more nice things about a paidup deceased subscriber than any other man on the force—which meant the editor."

"It was not until I went to Alaska—the last great frontier—in the famous rush of 1898 that I began to receive inspirations from real life—the stirring scenes and adventures of that awful rush, and to write verse."

"The Alaska of today is a playground compared to the vast, unbroken, desolate waste that confronted the early pioneers of '98."

"Thousands of tourists annually make the trip North on palatial steamers and railroads, all unconscious of the hardships, privations and sufferings of the early pioneers. In those days we were dumped from the steamers on the beach at Skagway. All Alaska was ours. Two-thirds of the argonauts turned back as they gazed upon an unbroken mountain range that must be crossed on foot.

"Every man was his own transportation company—a good pair of 'trail boots' and a pair of 'pack straps' A 50-pound pack was enough for most of us. It required about two months packing by slow tedious relays back and forth over the pass to land a year's outfit at Lake Bennett where we whipsawed lumber, made our boats and embarked for the Klondike.

"We will never know how many hundreds of adventurers ended their journey at the bottom of the Yukon. Those were stirring times and now as I look back upon them I would not go through the first four years of my northern experience for all the gold in Alaska.

"But then there were bright spots too, and I shall never regret the experience.

"The tale of that historic rush contains enough human interest, thrilling adventures, tragedy and comedy, humor and pathos to command the interest of generations to come."

Since being "discovered" Mr. Robinson has consented to deliver two lectures in the Enterprise opera on Tuesday and Wednesday of the coming week, August 30 and 31. The first evening will be devoted to "The Malamutes," a humorous lecture dealing with the lights and

PARADISE GLINTS.

Paradise, August 20.—Dry, dry, dry. Mr. Pharis of Antone came in on business yesterday.

Austin Hays and mother have a brother visiting them from Spokane. Roy Ralls threshed 20 acres of fall wheat which averaged 17½ bushels to the acre.

I see in the Spokesman Review and Flora Journal, an item which states that fall wheat here will make from 40 to 60 bushels to the acre. There is not a single acre that will make 60 bushels and very few that will make 40 bushels. A report has reached us that one piece of spring barley made 40 bushels to the acre.
