CHINESE DEMAND EARLY PARLIAMENT

Pekin—A surprising revolt has taken place against the government. The imperial senate, not three weeks old, has voted to memorialize the throne for the early opening of a general parliament.

This action appears to indicate that the new senate will not be a submissive or mock institution, but one with which the grand council must reckon. As far back as last June a formal demand was made for the immediate convocation of a national parliament, the establishment of which had been promised for the year 1915.

An imperial decree was then issued refusing the demand, which was adopted by the delegates to the provincial assemblies and was supported by organizations of merchants throughout the country.

Following the action of the senate there are intimations that many political leaders are determined to obtain their demands.

In private conversations, educated Chinese speak of a revolution within two years unless the throne surrenders. A factor in the situation, however, is the garrison in Peking and army divisions stationed in neighboring districts, which are all Manchu. These troops are always kept at a distance from the capital.

Secrest, of Tampico, Mexico, a planter, who is alleged to have represented himself to be an official of the Nicaraguan government, and R. Trumbull, manager of the engraving company, were also arrested.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE AND DIVORCE

(From Atlantic Monthly for September, 1910.)

The suffragists are quite correct in asserting that there are certain public questions in which women have a larger stake, and have probably a better knowledge, than men. One of these questions is divorce and remarriage.

But it is a striking and vital fact that so far as the suffragists are concerned, they have avoided, in all their public and printed utterances, the slightest allusion to, much less condemnation of, divorce. And yet their fixed contention has ever been, that woman suffrage represents purification and reform!

So far, however, from the suffragists showing any antagonism to divorce, there seems to be a close relation between suffrage and divorce.

The statistics of divorce show that the rate is practically higher in the four suffrage states than in any other states of the Union. There are five that have a higher rate of divorce than the suffrage states, but in three of these there are large Negro populations which furnish an enormous percentage of divorces.

In the other two states, in which there are few negroes, the divorce statistics show that the percentage of outsiders becoming temporary residents in order to obtain divorces, brings the rate for natives actually below that of the four suffrage states, in which the percentage of outsiders seeking divorces is small. In addition to leading the country, practically in divorces, these four states show that this abnormal rate of divorce prevails under conditions which are usually adverse to divorce. It is agreed among sociologists, and is proved by statistics, that divorce in general follows wealth, luxury, a highly artificial mode of life, and complex social conditions. In the four suffrage states, however, the general mode of life is simple and the social conditions primitive.

These circumstances enhance very much the probable connection between suffrage and divorce.

If suffrage gives an encouragement to divorce, that is enough to condemn it in the eyes of all political economists, all sociologists, all publicists, and all who love honor and decorum.—Oregon State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.—Mrs. F. J. Bailey, President.
