MANY CASES CROWD CRIMINAL DOCKET

GRAND JURY HAD RETURNED 17 INDICTMENTS UP TO SATURDAY.

Up to Saturday morning the grand jury had returned 17 indictments and one not true bill. The latter was the charge of stabbing against one Sam La Branch of Wallowa. Against the other man in that row, Alfred Arthur, three indictments were returned, two for selling liquor and one for selling liquor to a minor. He pleaded guilty to all three, and on the last one was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail. Sentence on the other two was postponed until some future time.

R. A. Devine, the man who "took" subscriptions to two or three high-class magazines and threw in a fountain pen, all for $1 cash, pleaded guilty to forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses, and was sentenced by Judge Knowles to one year in the penitentiary.

W. B. Southwick, indicted for obtaining money under false pretenses resulted in a non-suit. He was charged with giving a worthless check on a Joseph bank that was cashed by one Burke at the Wallowa National bank. The court directed a verdict in favor of the defendant. Sheahan & Cooley were the latter's attorneys, while Deputy Dill appeared for the state in this and all the other cases of this term, District Attorney Ivanhoe not being present.

Frank H. Marion is indicted for obtaining money under false pretenses. The first indictments were thrown out on a demurrer by the defendant's attorney, Daniel Boyd, and he pleaded not guilty to the new ones. He is charged with uttering bad checks.

Edward Smith, the man who made free with the clothing in Gummerman's tailor shop while the boss was on his wedding trip, is indicted for larceny by embezzlement. He pleaded not guilty.

Paul Alvin Harris, who shot a poor boy named Fred Jacobs for "fun," is indicted for murder and pleaded not guilty. He is out on $5000 bonds and will be tried at the May term.

Arch Willett is indicted for assault being armed with a dangerous weapon; his father Wm. Willett, for assault with intent to kill; and the third principal in the Lostine Sunday shooting matinee, W. W. Wining, for assault with intent to kill. Each pleaded not guilty and each is out under $1000 bonds. They will be tried at the May term. Three important witnesses, Pearl Willett, James Nolan (who was wounded trying to separate the combatants) and Charles Raney were put under $500 bonds each to appear at the May term. Sheahan & Cooley have been retained by Wining and J. A. Burleigh by the Willettes.

Henry L. Zumwalt, indicted by the November grand jury for stealing a foal, pleaded not guilty, and his trial was set for the first day of the May term.

Supposin' you raised 1000 bushels of wheat, sold it at $1 a bushel to 1000 different people, and about half of them hadn't paid you. How would you collect it? The answer to that will help solve the editor's problem.

AFTER WEST VIRGINIANS TO RAISE SUGAR BEETS.

Manager F. S. Bramwell of the sugar factory states he is in correspondence with a colony of West Virginia cotton raisers to come to this county and raise sugar beets on the company's leased land in the vicinity of this city. The company wants families who will raise small tracts of beets, insuring a permanent supply and doing away with imported Jap labor as much as possible. It would be good for the country, too, as it would keep all the labor money at home.

KNOWS WHAT TO PRINT.

The La Grande Observer shows great hustle in getting news for its readers. Manager H. S. Hoskin of the Lead Mountain mine passed thru La Grande the other day and the Observer had a half column article that purported to be an interview with him by an Observer reporter, but was the News-Record interview of the week before, stolen bodily without credit and with but one word changed. It was good dope all right and we are glad to see that the Observer recognized its value.

"A Bad Speculation."

There are penitents and penitents. Some are sorry that they did wrong; others regret the unpleasant consequences of their evil deeds. Governor Barbour of Virginia once defended a man charged with stealing a pair of shoes. The man was convicted. One day, years after, the governor was standing conversing with several lawyers in front of the courthouse when a man approached and said he wished to speak with him. They walked off together, and the man asked:

"Squire, do you remember I once hired you to defend me?"

"Yes."

"Well, squire, the taking of them shoes was the worst job I ever did. I didn't keep 'em a week. They put me in jail. I gave you the only horse I had to defend me. My crop was lost 'cause I couldn't see to it, and then, squire, they gave me thirty-nine lashes at last. I tell you, squire, it was a bad speculation."—Youth's Companion.

The Conductor's Revenge.

A well dressed man entered an Orange street car the other day, according to a story that is going the rounds of the street car men, and handed the conductor a ten dollar bill. The conductor was unable to change it, and he let the man ride free. The next day the man presented the same bill, and again the conductor was unable to change it, for the man had evidently found a time when he would be sure to catch the conductor without much change.

"I'll fix you," thought the conductor, and he obtained $10 worth of nickels and was ready for the man when next day he flashed the bill. The man took the matter good naturedly and soon left the car, his pockets fairly bulging with the nickels.

The conductor was more than pleased with his coup until next day, when he learned that the bill was worthless. —Newark Star.

Scots In American History.

It is a noteworthy fact in American history that of the four members of Washington's cabinet Knox of Massachusetts, the only New Englander, was a Scotch-Irishman, Alexander Hamilton of New York was a Scotch-Frenchman, Thomas Jefferson was of Welsh descent, and the fourth, Edmund Randolph, claimed among his ancestors the Scotch Earls of Murray. New York also furnished the first chief justice of the United States, John Jay, who was a descendant of French Huguenots, while the second chief justice, John Rutledge, was Scotch-Irish, as were also Wilson and Iredell, two of the original associate justices; a third, Blair, was of Scottish origin. John Marshall, the great chief justice, was, like Jefferson, of Scotch and Welsh descent.—Charles R. Hanna's "Celt In America."

The Portland Fair and Livestock association has decided upon the same dates used last year for the meet next fall and will open September 4. Large business interests of the city who are behind the project are supporting it generously and the coming show promises to be far more successful than any of the annual fairs so far held. It is expected to bring to Portland a large number of merchants and representative citizens from the entire country tributary to Portland at the time of the fair, making it an attraction of wide interest.

PUSHING NORTHWARD.

The extension of the Pacific & Idaho Northern railway, of which Weiser is the southern terminus, has been completed from Evergreen to the new town of Meadows, a distance of 16 miles. Work on the extension was begun late last summer. An excursion will be run from Weiser to Meadows a distance of 90 miles, when the road will be formally opened. The Pacific & Idaho Northern is one of the marvelous railroads of the Northwest. Who owns it is known to no one outside the owners. A majority of the board of directors reside in New York city, among them being the president of the Lackawanna railway system. Another is a prominent official of the United States Rubber company. The Hill interests are credited with being connected with the Lackawanna system. It is undoubtedly one of the best equipped short railroads in the country. The iron that has been laid on the extension is of the heaviest. Arrangements are under way for a further extension northward.—Lewiston Teller.
