SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1914

The Monmouth cannery has been converted into a gymnasium for the normal school. What's the good of a milk house in a school town, anyhow?

Did Governor West call out the militia when the mayor of Woodburn asked for aid in caring for the 100 I. W. W.'s? Not much. He very properly advised the mayor to call on the county sheriff.

Just being happy
Is a fine thing to do;
Looking on the bright side,
Rather than the blue.
Sad or happy musing
Is largely in the choosing.
And just being happy
Is brave work, and true.
A. M. L.

The Oregonian of Jan. 19 contained a fairly good write-up of Falls City, by Addison Bennett. Mr. Bennett seems to have been inclined to give the editor of The News more credit than said editor claims for himself; also the pictures were labeled 'Williamina.' In all other respects we consider the article well worthy of a place in any collection of 'Boosts for Falls City.'

High Mountains of Wyoming.
The highest mountain in Wyoming is Gannett peak, whose elevation, according to a chart published by the United States geological survey, is 13,785 feet above sea level. The Grand Teton is a close second at 13,747 feet, and Fremont peak is only seventeen feet lower. There are six additional mountains higher than 13,000 feet, their elevations ranging from 13,007 feet for Knife Point mountain to 13,600 feet for Mount Helen. But these are not all the lofty mountains in the state, for there are in addition twenty-one named peaks and about forty unnamed peaks whose altitudes are above 12,000 feet. Wyoming has, therefore, some seventy mountain peaks that rise more than 12,000 feet above sea level.

Reduced Size.
After a concert at Manchester, England, Joachim, the great violinist, was at a station, waiting for a train.

A respectable looking man, apparently a navy in his best clothes, paced at his side awhile, watching him with close interest. Finally he asked for a light and got it. As he drew at his pipe to get it started he looked Joachim full in the face. Then, just as he was about to go on, he tapped the violinist's chest impressively.

"But Paganini was the man," said he.

Joachim used to say that he never felt so small in his life. Whole pages of learned musical criticism had never begun to whittle him down so fine.

Naming Bloemfontein.
Bloemfontein was named after a robber called Jan Bloem, the son of a German father and half caste mother, who wandered about the wilds of Africa in the eighteenth century with a following of Hottentots and settled on the spot where Bloemfontein now stands. He lived by plunder and became one of the richest and most powerful captains of the Hottentots. He named the place Bloemfontein, and the name has remained to this day.—Johannesburg Chronicle.

Death of John H. Flower

John H. Flower died at his home in Falls City, Jan. 19, 1914, of cancer, after an illness of nearly two years, aged 51 years 10 months 22 days.

Mr. Flower was born in the city of New York. In 1888 he moved to Sioux City, Iowa, and married Miss Marietta Corner. Five children were born to them, three boys and two girls, all now living.

The present location of two of the sons is unknown; one son, Roswell, is in Washington; Mrs. Stark a married daughter, lives in Portland, Miss Marguerite lives in Salem, where she has been attending the State school for the blind.

The family moved to Dayton, Oregon, about 20 years ago, and later located in Salem, where Mrs. Flower died, in 1898.

In 1901 Mr. Flower and Miss Marietta Robertson were married, and for the past seven years they resided in Falls City.

Mr. Flower was well informed in the law, was a practicing attorney, and had held the offices of city attorney, and justice of the peace. Mr. Flower was a man of strong character and vigorous intellect, and while he made some enemies, at the same time he had a host of friends.

The remains were taken to Salem Monday afternoon, the body being accompanied to the train by members of the K. of P., I. O. O. F., and the L. O. O. M., and other friends. R. L. Chapman was the undertaker in charge.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday, at Lehman & Clough's, and the burial was in the I. O. O. F. cemetery, in charge of Salem Encampment, I. O. O. F.

Old Time Beauty Wash.

A famous lotion of colonial days, known as "morning dew," consisted of one ounce of rosewater, half an ounce of glycerin, half a teaspoonful of borax and three drops of benzoin. The quantities may be multiplied if a greater amount is needed. The lotion is applied to the chapped face, made rough from wind or exposure, with a bit of old linen.

Descriptive.

The admiration entertained by a Trenton boy for his uncle includes all the latter's attributes and even possessions which the uncle himself is not wont to deem desirable.

"Uncle," said the lad one day after he had been studying his uncle in laughing conversation with his father, "I don't care much for plain teeth like mine. I wish I had some copper toed ones like yours."—New York Globe.
