SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1914

A dog ordinance was passed by the council Tuesday night repealing all former dog ordinances and making this entirely new. This ordinance provides all owners of dogs must pay a license fee of $2.50 per year for each male dog if they are allowed to run at large. If they are tied up or led by a chain or rope no fee is required. However, if the provisions of the ordinance are violated, the owner of the dog is arrested and subject to a fine of not less than $5 and in default thereof, may be subject to imprisonment.—Sheridan Sun.

Thirty proposed measures have already been filed, to go on to the ballot at the November election. At the last general election, there were thirty-two voted on. Appearances are that people will have more questions to decide at the polls in November than ever before. In some respects, it is a growing and costly nuisance.—Salem Statesman.

Why are candidates for State offices unlike sawmill men? Because they talk about "cutting boards," while the sawmill men go ahead and cut boards. Every candidate so far heard from says he favors cutting out the State boards. They are very careful, however, not to tell us how they expect to accomplish such a desirable purpose.

The schools try to teach us to "aim at the stars," in spite of the fact that no one can accomplish the impossible. President Wilson has been playing an impossible game with the Mexicans, and now finds that he must aim a little lower than the stars. His music was started on a key several notes too high.

The News has arranged to publish, weekly, under the head of "The Kitchen Cupboard," a series of home cooking recipes written by Anna Thompson. This week the subject is "Salads;" next week it will be "Bacon;" These articles will be profitable reading for every one who cooks.

Some one has truthfully said that "all the forward movements in the world cannot produce the value of a home," be it ever so humble. Neither can the eugenic craze take the place of mother's good-night kiss.

Wiley Williams was arrested Tuesday morning on a charge of criminal assault on an eight-year girl. Constable McMurphy deposited Williams in the county jail at Dallas, Tuesday evening. Later he was released on bail of $1,000.

Unprincipled Policy

It is true that "politics make strange bedfellows," but Geo. E. Chamberlain on a prohi platform discounts anything in the way of a curiosity that the late P. T. Barnum was able to scare up. Geo. has, however, absorbed one of Barnum's principles, i. e. "the American people love to be humbugged," and has worked it overtime for years past.

He has always solicited and received the solid vote of the wet element and at the same time, by some peculiar maneuvering, managed to poll a large portion of the dry vote. As an adroit politician "our George" is there with bells on, but as a prohi he is not a success.

Without the wet vote he would have remained in obscurity. So also, would Oswald West. But Chamberlain read the handwriting on the wall and told West, hence the dry plank.

Gratitude is a virtue never manifested by George. Anything to advance his own interests has ever been his policy.

He has it figured out that the state will go dry in November, therefore he will go dry with it—long enough to be elected—and the people whose steadfast blind adherence advanced him from a very ordinary deputy clerk to his present exalted position can go hang.—Jefferson Review.
