BLIND TIGERS ON WINGS

Richmond, Va.,—Forecasting legislation that may have to be enacted by "dry" States in order to uphold their Prohibition laws, the State Senate of Virginia on Saturday adopted without a dissenting vote resolutions offered by Senator Saxon W. Holt of the Newport News.

These resolutions make an open season against all individuals operating airships engaged in the transportation of liquors into "dry" territory. The protection accorded to "ornamental and useful birds" will be lifted and hunters will be at liberty to fire on the airships just as if they were predatory birds.

Senator G. Walter Mapp of Accomac, leader of the "dry" force in the last Legislature, immediately saw the trend of the resolution and moved its adoption. Senator John A. Lesner of Norfolk, leader of the Senate "wet" forces or local optionists, caught the humor of the resolution and voted "aye."

The resolution grew out of news from Ohio that an enterprising liquor-dealer of that State was preparing to get around the strong Prohibition laws of West Virginia, recently held constitutional, by transmitting liquor from Ohio into West Virginia by aeroplane. The Senators of Virginia regretted that West Virginia was to be invaded by a wet aerial fleet.

The preamble and resolution ran thus:

"Whereas, The General Assembly of Virginia has learned with regret certain citizens of Ohio have undertaken to convey intoxicating liquors to the citizens of our sister State of West Virginia by means of an aeroplane; and,

"Whereas, We deplore the fact that one of the cherished industries of said State of Ohio appears to be up in the air; and,

Whereas, we sympathize with the suffering citizens of our said sister State of West Virginia because of their liquor coming so high; and,

Whereas, We feel that such an underhand and overhead method of irrigation should not be encouraged, lest some of the inhabitants of our own Commonwealth of Virginia, after the first day of November, 1916, should acquire the habit of gazing upon the sky and thereby walking unsteadily upon the earth; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of Virginia, the House of Delegates concurring, That the General Assembly of Virginia warns all persons who may contemplate the transportation, from any point beyond the borders of this State to any point within the same of ardent spirits, malt liquors, wines or other liquor containing alcohol, by means of aeroplanes, balloons, Zeppelins or other aircraft, that should they embark upon such a flighty enterprise at any time, but more especially on or after the sacred and memorable first day of November, 1916, then in that event the protection now provided by law for buzzards and other ornamental and useful birds will not be held to apply to such purveyors of contraband, but that there will be established an open season of continuous and unlimited duration for hunting all such aerial intruders, provided such hunting be done in good faith for the purpose of destruction and not for the purpose of acquiring the spoils of the chase; and

Resolved, further, That all of the good people of Virginia are earnestly enjoined never to take a drop from any of the aeroplanes, balloons, Zeppelins or other aircraft aforesaid, as the fall might be disastrous."

Senator Andrews of Roanoke said he thought the resolution should be amended to provide that liquor could not be brought into Virginia by means of pipe lines and subterranean caverns.

HE DIDN'T TAKE THE PAPER

A farmer in the community once had a horse he wanted to sell. It was a valuable horse and should have brought a good price. For months he tried to sell the animal, but could not find a buyer at his figure. He finally sold it for about $25 less than its value, rather than carry it through the winter.

Now it happened that in another neighborhood a few miles distant there was a farmer looking for just such a horse, but was unable to find it. He inserted a little ad. in the home paper which brought him a number of offers, and although not exactly such as he wanted, he accepted one of them.

The first farmer did take the home paper, and of course did not see the little ad., of the man who wanted a horse and who would have purchased his animal at a good price.

By not taking the paper he saved $1, and likewise lost $24 by not seeing the other fellows ad.

Such occurrences are happening every week in this community, in which people actually lose good money because they do not take their home paper, and hence do not know of many of the opportunities that are placed before them.
