MAIN LINE REACHED

Canadians Storm Strong Posts of Germans West of Lens—British Are Also Nearing Coal Center.

Canadian Headquarters in France—Canadian troops made another successful advance Monday night which carried their outposts to the main line of the enemy's defense on the railway embankment to the west of Lens.

The men of two Canadian battalions, in a dashing attack captured a crater, occupying a cross road to the east of Cite de Moulin, and a crater to the north, on the Lens-Lievin road which passes through Du Moulin.

For several days the enemy had maintained strong posts in these craters, from which harassing rifle and grenade fire was directed at the outposts' line at night.

The attack for the most part was carried out with bombs, the approach being through a maze of partly destroyed houses. When the bombs began to fall the enemy did not stay to the fight it out, but retired toward his main positions, leaving the craters to be incorporated in our advanced lines. An attacking party then advanced to two tunnels known to be occupied by the enemy and bombed them, inflicting, it is believed, a considerable number of casualties on the enemy.

Portland—A. von Alvensleben, a reserve lieutenant in the German army, was arrested at the Benson hotel Wednesday by deputy United States marshals on telegraphic instructions to United States Attorney Reames from the attorney general at Washington, directing that he be interned.

The attorney general's message did not designate the specific charge, if any, against Lieutenant von Alvensleben. So far as Mr. Reames has information, he is not charged with being a spy, but has been ordered interned merely as a precautionary measure.

Lieutenant von Alvensleben took his arrest good-naturedly and philosophically.

He talked without restraint to Mr. Reames, answered readily all questions asked of him and said he had been a lieutenant in the German army, but on the reserve list for about three years before the outbreak of the war.

He smiled as he told Mr. Reames that he would not even attempt to gain his liberty by trying to make the authorities believe he was not loyal to Germany, or would not fight for Germany if he had the chance.

"I want it understood that I would ask nothing better than the opportunity to get back to Germany so I could fight for my country on the battle line," he declared with emphasis.

He added: "Under the circumstances, I could not expect the American government to do anything else than intern me."

"The facts are that I am an officer in the German army; that I left Germany two days after the declaration of war between Germany and England, and that the natural query is, 'What am I doing here?'" said Lieutenant von Alvensleben, further discussing his case.

Seattle—Louis Hollweg von Bettenhausen was taken into custody here by Federal officers, charged with violation of his parole, after serving 14 of 18 months of a sentence to prison barracks at San Francisco. He will be returned to San Francisco.

Under the name of Charles Louis Hollweg, the spy suspect, von Bettenhausen, was first brought to the attention of the Seattle police when he was picked up by City Detective Hayden July 18 on a government description. He was released at that time on convincing the police that he was not the man wanted.
