A Terrible Accident.

On Friday afternoon while working in the camp of J. R. McGee at the old Steward place, Scott Maple, a comparative stranger in this section, received injuries which must necessarily prove fatal. He was working in the woods, and at the time of the accident was standing about 35 feet from a log which was being pulled by a donkey, and from which the hooks pulled out, and the spring of the line threw the hooks with such force that two saplings which stood between them were cut off, and after which they struck Mr. Maple. It is the doctors opinion that one of the hooks caught him in the eye, the tearing out a section of the skull about 1 1/4 inches, exposing the brain. His tongue was cut half in two and all his front teeth were knocked out, and many ugly scalp wounds were made.

The unfortunate man is 38 years of age, and all we can learn of him is from a letter sent to him from Okenee, Oklahoma, from a lady who add ressed him as brother, and assigned her self Flora Lee.
