Thomas Heaton who recently sold his home near the south end of the Moulton street bridge, will go to Portland in a few days, to be about for two or three weeks. It is Mr. Heaton's intention to bring back with him a first class stump-puller which he expects to work here in clearing up some of our fine bottom lands. This will be a good thing. There is nothing that will help our section more according to the money expended than the development of our dairy and agricultural interests.

J. C. Simmons came up from Prosper Saturday. He walked with the aid of stick and wore an eye that reminded one of election times. On Wednesday previous, he was working near the lumber chute at the Prosper mill and a pile of lumber which stuck at the upper end of the chute came down unexpectedly and with great force, catching Mr. Simmons' legs, one of which came near being broken. After being extricated from his predicament by his fellow-workers he started to the house and on the way turned faint from his hurt, falling on the wharf, bruising his face and the side of his head near his eye considerably. He returned expecting to go to work yesterday.
