

Survival of the Fittest.

It is plain that the creamery business of California and the coast in general is about to enter upon a new era.

To this end a number of creameries are being reconstructed on sanitary lines and no expense is being spared to equip them with anything capable of bringing about the one object—quality.

The merits of pasteurizers, starter cans, pure cultures and acid tests, articles that have never seen the inside of but few creameries, are being introduced and will undergo critical tests.

With our creameries thus outfitted through the expenditure of large sums of money the butter maker employed will have to "make good."

Bad Blaze on Oregon.

Crescent City, Feb. 28.—The big steel steamship Oregon, running between Portland and San Francisco, put in at Crescent City early this morning with her cargo badly damaged by fire and still burning.

The Oregon took fire at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 15 miles southwest of Crescent City, the blaze originating among miscellaneous merchandise.

Despite frantic efforts by the crew, the flames advanced until the Oregon showed a heavy list. In this predicament she was seen by the Del Norte, which had put out from this point, and all the passengers were safely transferred to the Del Norte and to a collier.

The Oregon is a staunch steamer of 2335 tons freight capacity, built in 1877 by J. Roach & Son, of Chester, Pa.
