FIRST NATIONAL BANK

WHAT A DOLLAR WILL DO

First Story.

"My brother and I were together for a long time, but I'll never see him again, I guess," said the Big Silver Dollar to the Five Dollar Bank Note. "He was taken over to Marshdale with a lot of shiny quarters, while I came on here to Centerville, where I've certainly spent a busy six months. I heard he was sent out of Marshdale to a Seattle mail order house to pay for four pounds of tea—the kind that doesn't taste so good somehow as you thought it would when you read about it in the catalog.

"And how I've worked since we separated! This is a live little city as you'll soon learn for yourself. I've moved about so much I call myself 'The Rolling Dollar.'

"Every stop to think how many bills a dollar can roll out flat, all ready for the 'Bill Paid' file—that is, if the people will only keep track of him and hold him within reach in their own community?

"Why dozens of times I've been in the same trouser pocket twice in the same week. You see, Centerville folks spend their money here in town. Perhaps that is one reason why it has doubled in eight years.

"Just the other day I was paid out by a farmer on a grocery bill. I didn't stay in that till very long, for it was payday and the delivery boy got me. The next morning I went into a clothing store. The clothing store man took me home and I had almost a day's rest. Then his wife bought two settings of fancy eggs from that same farmer, and I went back to that house. The farmer's wife spent me for some dry goods right away, and the next day I went to a carpenter who was putting a new partition in the store. The carpenter used me for part of his rent money, and I laid in the bank for an hour. Then the minister drew me out when he cashed a small check, and in his home I rubbed up against a shiny $5 gold piece a bridegroom gave him.

"The minister's wife took the two of us to the furniture store, and bought a new rocking chair. The same day I went into the butcher's till, back into the bank, and next day into a jewelry store. The jeweler bought some new lighting fixtures from the man in the next block, so I moved down there, and then out into the country again when the fixture man bought a new horse. No, I couldn't pay for that horse all by myself, the others were new bills, fresh and crisp.

"The man who sold the horse took me to planing mill, and I heard him say he could square up now that he had sold the horse. I went out of the mill Saturday afternoon as wages, and on Monday I landed in a shoe store. The man who carried me there said the boss had given him the raise he had promised, because business was looking up now. At any rate, the shoe man had a new show window put in his store, and I helped pay for that. Right away I was dropped in the cash register of a restaurant, and then back here to the grocery store. Well, we'll see one another often I guess, you're bound to move around in Centerville.

"How do I know I'll never see my brother again? Why, did you ever see any of the money that is sent to Chicago or Seattle or St. Louis or New York coming back this way? The mail order houses don't buy anything from this district—their business is to sell to the folks here and then let them rustle around as best they can to sell what they grow or make. The mail order house doesn't help you any to get the money, but it will help you to get rid of it by buying in larger quantities than you need and sometimes buying things you can't afford just because the picture in the catalog looks so nice.

"Brother probably went to pay for a street improvement in Seattle or he helped—just a little bit—to pay for a dinner in some Chicago grill. It's good-bye when you go there."

High Jinks at Wedding.

Last Friday, May 11, was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Davis, who live a few miles above this city on the Myrtle Point road, and the occasion was celebrated by their friends with a surprise party with several unique features. They were invited to spend the evening at the home of Albert Schroeder, a neighbor, and their neighbors and friends in this city, to the number of over 80, were notified to be present. The evening was spent in pleasant pastimes, with George as the butt of most of the jokes and was closed with a bounteous repast which all enjoyed to the full.

The principal feature of the evening was the wedding. George was dressed up in the dress suit of Judge Watson while the bride was apparelled in a wedding dress borrowed from a more recent bride. Judge J. J. Stanley performed the ceremony in the most approved fashion and the newly wedded couple then received the best wishes for a long and happy married life from the assembled guests.

Mrs. W. L. Kistner, a sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid. She also acted in the same capacity at the original wedding twenty-five years ago.

An unusual feature of such an occasion was the very lively charivari at the close of the ceremonies indoors. This wasn't engineered by a lot of hoodlums, as is so often the case, but the guests themselves hunted up all the old tin pans and tin cans at hand, while a circular saw hung from a piece of gas pipe by a wire enabled the drum corps to make an ear splitting din. Probably there hasn't been so much and so many kinds of noises heard on this road before for a generation. The racket was very distinctly audible in Coquille—by those in telephone connection with the event. Notwithstanding the H. C. L. rice was not stinted on this occasion.

M. W. A. Basket Social.

The Modern Woodmen basket social tomorrow night promises to be a very pleasant affair from the preparations being made. Every Woodman and Royal Neighbor is asked to bring friends. Three $2.50 boxes of candy are offered to ladies for baskets. One will go for the basket which is most emblematic of Woodcraft; another for the basket bringing the highest price at the auction; and the third to the lady whose basket is the prettiest. If you are a friend of a Woodman or Royal Neighbor you are invited to be present.

Valuable Bunch of Hogs.

Last Tuesday the Dispatch brought up a valuable cargo from down river points which was transferred to the S. P. here. The shipment consisted of 40 hogs, alive, which had been purchased by J. E. Ford, the Marshfield butcher. Thirteen cents a pound live weight was the price paid for these porkers, and J. P. Clausen, who delivered 21 of the bunch, received $619.48 for them. No reduction in the H. C. L. in this case.
