Chas. Gardner and Geo. Battey have purchased the Willard Storage Battery of Archie Taylor at Myrtle Point and in a few days they will open a service station with it at Gardner & Larson's Garage here. For the present Mr. Battey is making

School Superintendent Raymond E. Baker says that the 124 Eighth grade graduates at the recent examinations break the record for numbers at a single examination. There is another to come this month. Last year there were 297 graduates in the two examinations.

The $5,000 bonds issued by the Lakeside district for the construction of a new school house were sold here Monday through Superintendent Baker at a premium of $100. The purchaser was John E. Ross, of Marshfield, who bought them for the Scandinavian-American Bank of that city.

R. A. Wernich, R. K. Booth, R. Nicholas and E. H. Johnson made up a party of fishermen that visited the upper waters of the Coquille in the neighborhood of Dora, last Saturday in the big Buick of Ford Brothers. They report good luck and a fine trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh H. Hastings, of the Cunningham district, will leave tomorrow morning for North Bend for a couple of days' visit, and then on Monday morning for his old home at Granger, Wyoming, where they expect to remain for several months. They go principally for the benefit of Mrs. Hastings' health.

John E. Ross, of Marshfield, and H. G. Kern, of North Bend, were callers at this office Tuesday. From the former we learned that his old schoolmate, Harry F. Sinclair, in our home town of Independence, Kansas, had just secured an oil lease on 9,000,000 acres of land in the republic of Panama, reaching from ocean to ocean.

At the Presbyterian church here last Sunday morning, before the Memorial exercises, Rev. F. S. Shimian administered the rite of baptism to James Lowry and Roberta June, children of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Watson, and to George Allen and Ellen Audrey, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Balloni. Then Rev. and Mrs. Shimian presented their baby daughter, Edie Louise, for baptism, the rite being administered by Rev. H. M. Law.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR OWN HOTBEDS AND COLD FRAMES.—What's the difference? That is what the amateur wishes to know. It's all in the foundation, dear amateur. By the way, let us digress and discuss that word "amateur," which is a French word, meaning "one who loves." Let us all think of it in its general sense when we speak of amateur gardeners, who love flowers and gardens and work in them, not because we must, but that it is our happiness to do so. You see that our English meaning of amateur, "a beginner, or dabbler," is simply a degeneration of the word. Apply it to painting, to music, to gardening, to what you will—it is not more true and delightful in its first meaning?
A frame or box of wood covered with glass is a cold frame—it keeps out the cold. It is usually set right on the ground, or it may have a wooden bottom; the little ones sold for indoor use have.
Now, when a frame is set over a bed of manure, then it is a hotbed; the animal heat, the chemical properties of the manure, hasten plant growth. Do you see? You would not want a hotbed in your living room; you may use a cold frame, known as a house frame. They cost $1.50 and are 12 by 16 inches.
If you grow mushrooms in a shed or cellar you would make a hotbed of fresh manure on a table or bench.
Out in the garden right now you may have either a hotbed or a cold frame with violets and pansies, giving you their early sweetness for the table because of this protection and forcing.
On warm days the glass is raised a little, propped open with a brick perhaps, to admit air. At night the frame is closed, and sometimes pads or blankets are laid over the glass for further protection in very cold weather.

At the poles there is neither latitude nor longitude.
The matrimonial tie often turns out to be a noose.

BANKS WILL ASSIST

WHEREAS the Government is making a great effort to place the Liberty Bond issue in the hands of many small holders, and

WHEREAS it is our desire to co-operate in every way possible in this commendable effort, appreciating the desirability of having the issue thoroughly distributed and digested for financial as well as patriotic reasons,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That the Coos County Bankers Association for and on behalf of all its member banks, render all assistance to the Government and make it possible for the small investors, wage earners, and others, to follow their patriotic impulses in assisting them to secure Liberty Bonds on the following plan of easy payment:

ANYONE, whether patron of the bank or not, who desires to purchase a bond of $50.00 or $100.00 denomination, may do so on a deferred payment basis as follows:

Twenty per cent to be paid in cash and balance in five equal monthly payments with interest at the rate of 3 1-2 per cent, the bond to be given as security.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the widest publicity be given to this plan as it is the desire of the banks of Coos County to render all aid possible to the Government in its effort to quickly and satisfactorily finance itself.

THE PREP CLASS, FOR COQUILLE HIGH SCHOOL, '21.

Tuesday to attend the Decoration Day exercises here Wednesday.

Postmaster and Mrs. J. W. Leneve returned Monday from Langlois, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Leneve's father on Sunday.

George Fellows, better known here as George Alexson, took an examination in California last week for a non-commissioned office in the army.

Chas. I. Reigard spent a few hours in town yesterday on his way home from Bandon where he delivered the Decoration Day address Wednesday.

Mrs. J. E. Cowgill and daughter from San Carlos, California, came in last Saturday evening for a visit with her brother, L. P. Maury, and family.

C. L. Starr, a Portland attorney, is here this week looking after the interests of his client, Frank Boutin, in the injunction case in the Circuit court here.

F. C. C. Larson, of Tacoma, chief inspector of the Pacific Lumber Inspection Bureau, was here yesterday on one of his regular trips, visiting the local mills.

J. E. Montgomery was over here from Marshfield Monday morning attending to telephone, bank and good roads matters. He went down to Bandon in the afternoon.

The first homegrown strawberries came into the market here on Monday, just four weeks later than last year—and almost everything else in the garden is equally backward.

One of the latest recruits to enlist at the postoffice here was Keith Leslie, who selected the U. S. hospital corps as his field of activity and who went out to Portland yesterday morning.

Rev. W. J. Large, State Sunday School secretary for the Presbyterian church, will preach in the local church Sunday morning, June 3, at 11 o'clock. Everybody is invited to come out and hear him.

daily trips to Myrtle Point to master all details of its operation.

E. D. Graham has been engaged by the government to do surveying work for the government at the mouth of the Coquille, Coos Bay, Winchester Bay and the mouth of the Stuslaw and is going to start shortly with the crew of his gasoline boat "Queen" to begin the work.

J. D. Benham, of Fairview, was a caller Wednesday morning. He says he has three acres of corn and lots of beans up, but they are still the yellow kind. Lots of planting yet remains to be done in that section and unless the rains keep up well into July many crops will be light.

The J. H. Oerding & Sons' myrtle wood factory is now turning out some of the handsomest of myrtle novelties. They have secured the services of Henry Horstman, of North Bend, who made most of the myrtle wood novelties sent to the world's fair at San Francisco from Coos county.

J. W. Noblet, principal of the local high school, has accepted a position with the Anderson Business College for the summer months until fall when he will resume his duties at the high school. He is to teach commercial arithmetic and beginning book-keeping at the business college.

Nels Osmundson, who returned Sunday from the orange belt in California, says that all through the orchards down there, gardens have been planted between the trees. If all the crops mature that are planted this year we will have the largest production of garden stuff this country ever knew.

J. D. Widgreen enlisted at the postoffice here last week for the navy and went out to Portland. He is of Swedish nationality and claims to have been at work on an invention to put submarines out of business ever since the Spanish-American war, which he will bring to the attention of the naval officers.

How Animals Feed.

The squirrel carries its food to its mouth by means of its paws, while the elephant uses its trunk. The giraffe, anteater and toad employ their tongues, but spiders masticate their food with horny jaws. The caterpillar is provided with saw edged jaws and uses them so well that every day he consumes at least three times his own weight in food. Toads, turtles and tortoises do not possess teeth. Frogs have only an upper row of teeth, and lobsters and crabs have a set of teeth in their stomachs. The tiger and lion do not grind their food as we humans do. As a matter of fact, their teeth only work with an up and down movement much like chopping knives.

Value of a Name.

Nelson, a thriving, hustling English town, is a living instance of the value of a name. Not long after the battle of Trafalgar some tinker, tailor or other person established a tiny wayside inn and called it after the naval hero. There was nobody on the spot from whom to expect custom, but the road led to and from populous districts. Travelers stopped at the place, and presently a cottage or two began to rise, then more of them, and the name of the public house answered for the whole. That was the nucleus of the present town. Now 40,000 people live around the site which the old innkeeper chose and called after the name of his hero.

"An Adder in the Path."

The horned viper, the asp of Cleopatra, has been recognized as the serpent alluded to in Genesis xlix, 17, where it is used to characterize the tribe of Dan: "Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse's heels, so that his rider shall fall backward." The asp is found abundantly in the dry, sandy deserts of Egypt, Syria and Arabia. The habit of lurking in the sand and biting at the horse's heels suits the character of the asp.

BROODING CHICKS.

How to Train Them When Incubated Born.

Chicks should be removed from the incubator to the brooder at night. Not only are they easier handled when it is dark, but they are more likely to remain where they are put under the hover. For the first night or two they should be confined rather closely to the hover for this reason.

If not carefully watched for the first two or three days chicks may huddle together in a corner of the brooder, where they are likely to get chilled, or trample one another to death in their efforts to keep warm. It only takes a couple of days to train them to take to the hover.

For the first few days chicks need rest more than anything else. If sunlight enters the brooder they will spend hours at a time huddled together enjoying the natural warmth. This is good for them, as it helps to strengthen them.

Nature provides for a chick's nourishment for the first two or three days of life. Chicks should be given neither food nor drink for the first forty-eight hours. If fed sooner it will be harmful and not helpful. The unabsorbed portion of the yolk serves to supply the chick with nourishment. Additional food is likely to cause indigestion and bowel trouble, which should be avoided by all means. More chicks are lost every season by overfeeding than by underfeeding.

Bold Court Jestors.

"You are ready enough to point your satire at other people's faults," Queen Bess once said to Clod, one of the court jesters, "but you never say a word about mine." "Ah," exclaimed Clod, "why should I waste time in reminding your majesty of your faults, seeing that they are in everybody's mouth?"

Patch, one of Henry VIII's fools, once sought permission to demand an egg from every husband who was dissatisfied with his wife. No sooner had the king granted his request than Patch proceeded to demand the first egg from him, saying, "Your grace belongs to the class of husbands on whom I am entitled to make levy."
