Third Story.

"I've helped start the baseball team this year," confided The Rolling Dollar to a brother dollar who had just come to Centerville.

"The clothing store man pumpled me up along with a lot of others. And he seized the opportunity to show the young man who was soliciting something about buying at home. In lots of towns the merchants haven't the nerve to say things that ought to be said occasionally. This man paid his subscription and then he grinned and said: 'How much did your mail order house subscribe?'"

"The young man replied that he had not asked it to donate. 'Why not,' asked the clothier, 'they have sold several suits here lately so they ought to give something. If everybody here bought all their clothes from them you'd not have got that subscription from me today, for this wouldn't be a clothing store but a vacant building, and I would be working in the city myself or trying to run a farm.'

"The catalog house gets some business because they show nice looking cuts instead of letting you fellows see, feel and try on the suit, yet here I am—subscribing to the team and glad to do it."

"If you wrote them for a donation, some clerk back in Chicago, who is working on starvation wages himself, would laugh and drop your letter in the wastebasket."

"As a matter of fact you bought that suit for $18, didn't you?" The young fellow stammered and said that was right.

"And the expressage was about 75 cents, to say nothing of the postage and the money order? Well, here is a suit that I sell for $18.50, fitted to you, so you see it pays sometimes to see what the old storekeeper can do before you send your money away. I guess you will say this suit on the rack in my store is fully the equal of the one the catalog house listed at $18; as to that I know it cost 20 per cent more to manufacture. And remember that we have to support the baseball team and all the other things, and ask nothing more than that your money stays somewhere here in the town."

"I was paid out for an ax the other day after a funny argument," said the newcomer dollar. "I was in the pocket of a man over in Clearwater who went into a hardware store and selected an ax. When the proprietor told him the price was $1, he said Blank & Blank's price was 77 cents."

"Very well, said the dealer, 'I'll sell it to you on the same conditions as the mail order house. Here is your ax for 77 cents. Now give me 25 cents for the expressage you have saved, also 3 cents for the money order and 2 cents postage. That is $1.07 it would cost you from the catalog house, but my price is just $1.00.' The customer said that had never occurred to him before, and paid over the $1.00. Then the dealer stacked up the ax in the rack again and turned away, thanking the customer. 'What are you putting it away for?' 'Why,' answered the storekeeper, 'if I'm selling on the same conditions as the mail order house you will have to drive into town ten days from now and get it. But I go those people one better. Here's your ax now, when you want it. I just want to make the comparison plain all the way through, that's all.'"

"The mail order house does not have to get the good will of any individual, be his name Smith, Jones or Brown," said the Rolling Dollar, "for its field is unlimited, so the customer has no protection aside from the postal laws. But the local dealer, with limited possible customers, must and does go much farther to keep the good will of his people." Copyright, 1914

Grand Jury Hits Loafers.

Idlers who stand about the street corners and utter unpatriotic remarks regarding the procedure of the United States in the war with Germany were severely criticised in the final report of the Douglas County Grand Jury, filed with Judge Hamilton at Roseburg on Decoration Day. In commenting upon the alleged utterances of these loafers, the Grand Jury took occasion to call their attention to a chapter of the session laws of 1911, which provides for the arrest and punishment of persons who are without visible means of living and who have the physical ability to work.

In the concluding paragraph of the report, the Grand Jury recommends that the sheriff and other peace officers of Douglas county arrest and prosecute every person who is detected uttering remarks against the flag or criticising the Government.

Give a Complimentary Dinner.

The officers and teachers of the M. E. Sunday School, gave a dinner Friday evening, May 25 in the church parlors, in honor of Misses Ada May Newell and Winnie Spencer, who are soon to leave for their homes. The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion. At 6 o'clock the hostesses, Mesdames Jackson, Richmond and H. L. Johnson, invited the guests to the dining room, where all enjoyed a pleasant hour partaking of the good dinner and visiting. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames F. G. Newell, of Mellette, South Dakota, Richmond, Jackson, Gary, Downs, Johnson, Misses Winnie Spencer, Mabel Bay, Ada Downs, Messrs. Ray Peart, Byron Jackson and Alfred Downs.

It was a pretty good bunch of singers that gave an improvised concert up in the sky parlor of the court house annex last Sunday evening. The voices of Turnkey Landrith's guests were musical and harmonious.
