FIRST NATIONAL BANK

RUNNING AN ACCOUNT.

Fourth Story.

"I'm mighty glad to get back to Centerville," said The Rolling Dollar to the 1900 Dollar. "That Scott Valley is no place for me. Poor crops there this year, so the merchants have lots of business. That is no joke either. Those people send all their money away when they have any, and when there is no cash for money orders they still have to eat. Where do they go? Why, to the merchant they passed by when they had the cash."

"Four years ago there were twice as many stores in Scott Valley, but the mail order bug bit the people so the stores closed up. Everybody was busy saving money by buying from the catalog houses."

"Now crops are poor and cash mighty scarce. So the folks are going to the few storekeepers left and asking for credit—and getting it of course. Yet the merchant has to borrow money from the bank to pay his bills because he is carrying such a load of credit, for a man who isn't patronized when you have the cash can't be expected to have much ready money when cash is short."

"The bank would not loan the most of them enough to live on for a year, or until the new crop came in, so the storekeeper is the only crutch to lean on. Where would those people be if all the stores had closed up?"

"Over on Plains Creek conditions are different. It is a new country, and like Scott Valley the farmers depend on one crop. But they realize that without the stores they would be gambling with little to gain and everything to lose. Public sentiment is all against buying elsewhere. If the merchant has not in stock what is wanted they expect him to get it for them. Consequently the merchants can carry the farmers until they get their crop money, and nobody suffers physically or financially. Plains Creek people know they would be cutting their own throats by patronizing the mail order houses and forcing their stores out of business. The storekeeper is really the banker of the community, but he is willing to be as long as he gets a fair shake."

"A catalog house has only two ways of selling, 'Cash with Order' and 'Collect on Delivery.' Where the farmer has to wait a year for his money how can he meet those conditions if that is the only way he can get what he needs?"

"The storekeeper in some districts has about the worst job on earth. If his people have cash he doesn't get it. If they are short of cash he has to borrow money and pay interest so that he can give those people what they must have until they can get some cash again. And then he won't see them in his store again until the crop fails another year."

"I wish one of those Scott Valley people would ask a mail order house for a year's credit. The clerk who opened the letter would fall dead." Copyrighted 1914.

Closing Day of Norway School.

Last Friday was the closing day of school at Norway and Miss Mae Lund, who has had a very successful year there, had prepared a fine program of recitations, songs and drills by the children. In addition she invited Supt. C. A. Howard and County Agent J. L. Smith to deliver talks to the children and patrons who would be present. In order to fill up his new Ford for the run up there, Mr. Smith invited his assistant, L. W. Coleman, and the Sentinel scribe to go along.

The school room was crowded to the limit with parents and friends of the pupils, who were highly appreciative of the young folks' efforts. Miss Lund had undoubtedly devoted considerable time to drilling her charges and everything went off very smoothly. Around the walls were hung samples of the children's work in various lines which evidenced a conscientious application to duty by the little folks. It is no small task to handle a rural school with grades from the first to the eighth and Miss Lund, who graduated from the local high school four years ago, has given evidence of superior ability in her work there.

After the conclusion of the program and talks by the Coquille visitors a surprise was sprung, on some of us at least, by the information that a lunch was in waiting. This consisted of sandwiches, cakes, lemonade and loganberry juice. The Norway people never let their guests go away hungry and as we have had occasion to remark heretofore their cake bakers are par excellence.

Probate Court Notes.

In Probate court on Wednesday a petition was filed for letters of administration in the estate of David P. Griffin, of the Myrtle Point section, and C. E. Griffin was appointed administrator. The estate consists of $800 in personal property and the appraisers are, F. G. Bunch, Geo. E. Toney and R. A. Ansh.

Farewell Party for Miss Fawcett.

Miss Hazel Fawcett, who has been engaged in teaching in our city schools for the past three years, expects to leave tomorrow morning for O. A. C. for the summer school there. She will be accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Fawcett, who goes to visit another daughter living at Sweet, Idaho.

Last Friday evening Miss Fawcett was given a farewell party by the teacher's training class and officers of the Sunday school of the M. E. Church South at the parsonage. It was a pleasant social occasion and refreshments were served. A large fruit basket was presented to Miss Fawcett, with contents of an unusual character, which we are expected to refrain from mentioning though they contributed in no slight degree to the gaiety of the occasion and were not of a character to be used in Sunday school work. Those present were Mesdames and Messrs. M. O. Hawkins, F. G. Leslie, J. S. Lawrence, and H. M. Law, Mesdames Anna Morrison, Cora Woodruff, and Myra Ball, Misses Mildred Norton and Hazel Fawcett, Messrs. J. W. Noblet and Dayne Hudson.

They Broke the Speed Record.

The Honor Guard drill Wednesday evening proved more interesting than usual. The favorite drilling ground is on Second street between the city hall and the Sentinel office where an extra heavy covering of asphalt makes the footing especially easy. The Guard has now reached the stage where they perform military evolutions with a good deal of facility and Captain Getz tried double quick with them. They made good on the trot as if it were a great lark; but when he thought they had gone far enough at that gait and gave the order "quick time" to slow down, all the first two or three ranks heard was "quick" and that meant quicken to them, so they began to sprint as if they belonged to the buck-et brigade and the house was on fire, whereas there was much laughter.
