

Lyric Glee Club Presents Two Programs

Prominent Male Quartet Will Be One of Leading Chautauqua Attractions

THE Lyric Glee Club, raised for fourteen years as one of the foremost singing organizations in Lyceum and Chautauqua, give two brilliant concerts on the opening day of the Ellison-White Chautauqua this year. The personnel of the Lyric includes the famous tenor Fenwick A. Newell, Charles Reid, well known baritone; James Reid, eminent baritone, and Francis Hendry, second tenor and conductor. Impersonator of national reputation. In a program of rare charm and variety the Lyric also afford both music and movement in their novelty brass quartet selections. For a male voice ensemble it would be difficult to find artists and entertainers of more instantaneous and lasting appeal.

Royal Neighbors Farewell Party

The R. N. of A. rooms never looked more beautiful than they did Tuesday evening when they were decorated with flowers in honor of the Oracle, Mrs. Mabel Samson, who was to preside over the Camp for the last time before leaving for Wisconsin where she will make her future home.

Nearly all the members of the order were present to say farewell to the woman who had worked so faithfully and unselfishly for the Royal Neighbors.

After the regular meeting ice cream, strawberries and cake were served.

Mrs. Belle Elwood, the newly elected Oracle, gave a splendid talk, followed by other members wishing all good things for Mrs. Samson in her new home.

Mrs. Samson was presented with an R. N. of A. pin by the Camp and responded in a touching manner, urging all the members to be loyal to the new Oracle and the Camp.

Then joining hands in a circle, all sang, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," and the final good-bye and good wishes were said.

Ordained to Priesthood.

Frederick George Jennings, a young divine, who has acted as assistant to Dean Horsfall in the district of Coos Bay, was ordained to the priesthood Sunday with impressive ceremony in the St. Stephen's cathedral, the Right Rev. Walter Taylor Sumner, bishop of Oregon, officiating says the Portland Telegram.

The venerable archdeacon, H. D. Chambers, delivered the sermon or charge to the applicant for the priesthood.

Dean E. H. Hollister presented the young clergyman for ordination.

Following the administration of the holy communion to the Rev. Mr. Jennings, the recessional took place with the cross and a handsome American flag in the lead.

Mr. Jennings will have charge of St. James' church, Coquille, and the neighboring missions. The offerings at his ordination services were turned over to the Red Cross by request of Dean McAllister and permission of Bishop Sumner.

Back to Wait for Summons.

Matt Kerrigan Jr., who joined the engineer corps at Portland and has been granted a furlough until July 25, came home Wednesday evening. In conversation regarding the great war, he says that if the American people could be fully informed as are those who receive letters and pictures from France, of the frightful atrocities the Germans are committing, not only in Belgium and northern France, but in their own fatherland, there would be no chance for conception in the United States. The volunteers would far exceed any quota of men the government may conscript. He has seen some of the pictures and read letters from Germany that are almost unbelievable in their accounts of horrors committed. Mr. Kerrigan will be among the troops who will receive their training at American Lake.

G. A. Downey, of Roseburg, district agent for the Pacific Building & Loan Association, is spending a week or two with us now on his company's business.

More About July Draft.

Here is the latest information sent out from the national capital about the draft next month:

Drafting of 225,000 men for the national army will be conducted entirely in Washington, according to the conscription regulations approved by the president which will be made public next week.

In the United States there are approximately 4,000 registration districts. In each there is a separate series of registration numbers, beginning with number one.

When the drawings begin, probably early in July, a board in Washington will select a number through the jury wheel or other lottery system.

The number will be telegraphed to each registration district and all the men on the registration lists who have that number will be called.

It will be up to each man individually to ascertain whether he is selected. He will not be required to report until a general summons is issued for all drafted men to come forward for examination.

At that time he will have opportunity if he desires exemption, to present his case to the local exemption board.

It will have power to decide physical examinations and excuses based on dependent families.

Occupational exemption pleas must be heard before the appellate boards. If a drafted man desires, he can appeal to a national exemption board which the regulations create and which is the supreme court of exemptions.

Very Costly News Stand.

Some time since Ralph Rounds sold the North Bend News Stand to Shannon Mitchell and one day last week Judge Coke heard the suit in which the former was trying to recover $3,700 of the purchase money and $400 attorney's fees with 8 per cent interest from the latter. It looked as if it must have been some news stand in a town of 2000 people to be security for such an amount, but Judge Coke denied the claim and in his decision declared that Rounds had misrepresented the value of both stock and fixtures, and also the income from the business. In order to deceive, the cash register had been "salted" by an employee of Rounds, who, in Judge Coke's opinion, was fully conversant with what was being done. Further, at the time the sale was made, Mitchell was a minor.

In addition, Judge Coke found that it was fully proved that the deal had taken on the nature of a gambling transaction, when the parties throw dice to decide whether the purchase price should be $4000 or $5000.

They must have some adepts at high finance over there. Indeed it looks as if other things must have been marked up as recklessly as their town lots.

THEY MUST PAY THEIR TAXES

as provided by law; that in the publication of the summons herein the names of the owners of said property was not correctly given; and no proof of the service of the summons was ever filed herein.

There are other questions raised by the answer, but the foregoing propositions are the only ones argued by the defendants in their brief.

In reference to the first point argued by the defendants Judge Skipworth holds that the defendants having failed to go before the Board of Equalization to secure the correction of any erroneous and unfair assessments at the time they were made, they cannot do so now when no fraud is claimed.

The court also says there is no merit in the contention that no proper or legal summons was issued. Suffice it, he affirms, to say that the summons was in compliance with the State law; and plaintiff had a perfect right to publish the summons, more than this the defendants by answering have waived all question as to the regularity of the summons.

As to the excessive advertising charges the court rests upon the literal construction of the statute and says that 10 cents a description is all that the delinquent taxpayer can be charged for the publication of the summons.

The cost of this publication, he says, is "the only serious objection in the case."

This statute, the court admits, has never been construed by the Supreme court of Oregon; but he recites the Washington case of Pacific county vs. the Willapa Harbor Publishing company, where a precisely similar statute is held legal and binding.

"Finally," Judge Skipworth says, "it is urged that the penalties and interest be reduced to 6 per cent. The court has no power to reduce the interest, as the interest and penalties are fixed by statute."

And he concludes "that the plaintiff be enjoined from collecting to exceed ten cents per property description, to include all matter in the summons, as cost of publishing the summons."
