"THE OLD RELIABLE"

OUR LITERARY CLUB.

We always like to meet with Mrs. Brown. She has the cosiest home there is in town. A "Homey" kind of home, you know, a place where you can sit and sort of rest your face. I know of houses gewgawed so with style. That when you enter you put on a smile—A sort of social shine, as you might say. So that you'll harmonize and be as fat. But oh, how dreadful tired I should get. If I should train forever with that set. No, give me Mrs. Brown—whose happy guest. Can just lounge down and rest, and rest, and rest. Her rooms are low and broad, and quiet green— That restful green, and all the pictures lean. At comfortable angles, and you chat. In low and cosy tones—and there's a cat. Of course a cat, that yawns there in the sun. A picture of content, like everyone. Then Mrs. Brown brings out her dainty set of tea things, and we know that she shall get. The very nicest, dearest cup of tea— 'Tis CHASE & SANBORN'S brand, you know, and we have all of us been using it 'round town. It's always safe to copy Mrs. Brown.

Backward, turn backward, Oh Time in your flight, and give us a maiden dressed proper and right. We are so weary of switches and rats, Billy Burke cluster's and peach basket hats, wads of jute hair in horrible piles, staked on their heads to the height of a mile. Something is wrong with the maidens we fear. Give us the girls as they used to appear. Give us the girls we once knew of yore, whose curls did not come from a hair dressing store. Maidens who dressed with a sensible view, just as dame Nature intended them to. Give us a girl with a figure her own, and fashioned divinely by nature alone. Feminine styles getting fiercer each year—Oh give us the girls as they used to appear.

Not Health Inspectors.

If you happen to be traveling over any part of the Pacific System of the Southern Pacific Company, and if you notice as your train pulls into a station, a man attired in a white duck suit, white cap and rubber gloves, do not get the impression that he is a public health inspector and that your train is liable to be delayed until he has completed an inspection, nor need you fear that the train may possibly be quarantined. That is not his duty. He is the man who fills the ice receptacles on the Southern Pacific dining and passenger coaches and he is following the latest sanitary measures that have been adopted by the corporation.

This new feature in the icing of passenger trains was inaugurated by H. V. Platt, general superintendent of the southern district of the Southern Pacific Company, and was first tried on the Los Angeles division.

At each point where trains are iced, the ice is handled in absolutely clean carts, and lined with galvanized iron or zinc, the interior is scalded twice daily with steam. The ice is handled by employees dressed in white duck suits and caps, and rubber gloves, all of which are furnished by the company. Employees are required, sufficiently in advance of arrival of trains, to prepare themselves for the handling of the ice. The ice, however, is handled with rubber gloves, and from the time of its manufacture until the time it reaches the receptacle in the cars it is protected against contamination.

This new mode of handling the ice for the passenger cars of the company tried out on the Los Angeles division, has proved so successful that it has been ordered installed on all of the lines of the Pacific System. The carts are covered with canvas at all times and are fully protected from flying particles of dirt.

New Process Preserves Color and Odor of Fruit.

The Commercial club of Medford has on exhibition in its building a display of fruit that had been preserved by a new method of evaporation.

The system is entirely different than any other that has heretofore been placed before the public, in that the color and odor of the fruits are held in the dried fruit, and upon addition of water resume their natural color and form.

The limit of the new invention knows no bounds. All kinds of fruit and vegetables are kept so that a little water will make them look like the fresh fruit. The exhibit, among other things, contains corn on the cob, cauliflower, peas, bananas, beets and apples. This will mean that cranberries like you have for Thanksgiving dinner may be served upon the Fourth of July, strawberry shortcake on New Year's day, corn on the cob and string beans for Christmas dinner and apple dumplings for your May party.

The cost of the experiment is little and there is some talk of having a factory at Medford to dry the fruit and vegetables if the growers and farmers fall in with the idea.

Captures Curious Bird.

Earl Moore, of Sheridan, captured a bird this week which is a puzzle as to its genus and specie, and natural scientists have never seen its like before. It has a face exactly like that of a monkey, while the tail is long and monkey like in character. It assumes facial expressions exactly like those of a human being. Meat is the principal diet of the bird, which goes to substantiate the theory that the bird has a monkey ancestry. Some declare that the bird is a native of India and is known as the sacred owl, which the native Indians worship; others assert that it is known as the monkey-faced owl, also a native of India. The theory is that the bird found its way to the Pacific coast from the Orient. Another and more probable theory is given out by old residents that the freak is the progeny of some like birds exhibited by a circus which showed there about ten years ago, disbanded and turned the birds loose.—Polk County Itemizer.

New Wrinkle on Honor System.

Seattle, Wash.—Hearing of the cut in the appropriation for his office, as made by the county commissioners and realizing that he must continue to be short of deputy sheriffs, Sheriff Robert T. Hodge has adopted the expedient of sending prisoners to attend on court unaccompanied by deputies and on their word of honor to return.

A few days ago the Sheriff sent John W. Dalton, charged with abduction, down to Justice R. R. George's court on honor and he reported his arrival at court by telephone and later asked permission to take dinner down town. This was refused, and Dalton was back in seven minutes.

Prison Stove Contract Cancelled.

After a conference last Friday at Salem with S. Lowenberg, of Lowenberg-Going & Company, stove manufacturers, of Portland, and whose contract for convict labor was ordered cancelled because of the failure of the firm to meet its payments, Governor West announced that he would not agree to a renewal of the contract.

The governor would agree to give the company time to settle up its affairs, which at the most would not require more than a few months, but beyond that he would not go.

"There will be no idle men at the penitentiary as a result of the cancellation of the Lowenberg & Going company's contract," said Governor West. "I will admit it is a problem to develop new lines of industry inside the walls to keep the class of prisoners formerly employed in the stove foundry busy, but it will be solved and there will be no idle men."

First Postal Bank Fraud.

What is alleged to be the first postal saving bank fraud, resulted a few days ago in the arrest of Salip Cin Amat, a Malay at Seattle, when he presented himself at the post office to get $100, alleged to belong to R. Ali, a countryman of his living in San Francisco. Ali reported the loss of certificate to the postal authorities, and Amat is charged with forging his name.
