Although they have not completed their inspection of the site on Layng Creek, they feel that it possesses the requisite possibilities for making a fine subject for their thesis.

BADLY CHEWED BY BEAR

MINER NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH AT BRUIN'S HANDS.

Desperate Struggle with Wounded Animal Almost Ends Fatally for L. Wetmore.

With lacerated arms and marks of bear claws on his face, L. Wetmore, of Wildwood, feels that he had a narrow escape from being chewed to death by an ugly black bear yesterday afternoon. Mr. Wetmore was returning from the Bohemia district by the Champion road and was about two miles above the upper bridge when the accident happened. He was accompanied by two fox terrier pups, who smelt the bear and located him on the bank overlooking the road. Mr. Wetmore fired at bruin, hitting him. The bear then started down the bank and Wetmore, hit him again. When the bear was within fifteen feet of him he snapped the gun, but there were no cartridges left and a hand to hand fight started. The bear weighed about 350 pounds and put up a furious fight, attempting to get Wetmore's face with his teeth. He did get Wetmore's arms in his mouth a few times, and lacerated the man's face with his paw. He also got him down once, but by a superhuman effort, and because of the ebbing strength of the animal, Wetmore forced himself up again. All this time the dogs were doing their utmost, and may have saved their master's life by detaching the bear's attention at times, but they were only four months old and were unable to do much damage.

Finally bruin gave up the fight, made for the river which runs by the side of the road, swam to the center and died from the loss of blood from the gun wounds.

Wetmore was weak from his wounds and overexertion, but managed to drag himself to a prospector's cabin a mile and a half down the road. Medical attention was summoned by phone and Dr. Job and Auditor Protzman, of the O. & N. E., took the gasoline speeder to the relief of the injured man, relieved his suffering as much as possible and brought him to the city. He is now getting along nicely, but will be confined to the bed for a day or so.

Prune packing has been completed at the Junction City dryer. Manager R. J. Holmes reports between 25 and 30 tons of the product handled at his dryer. Packing of apples began yesterday, and some were brought to the dryer for packing. Estimates are hard to make, but it is estimated that five or six carloads will be shipped out from here this fall.

An especially interesting program has been provided for Sunday at the M. E. Church. Public worship at 11 a. m. with sermon by pastor. Subject: "The Woman and Her Yeast" or "Christianity in Action." Peoples popular service at 7:30 p. m. Address by Robert Sutcliffe on "A Big Bluff." Joachim Raff's "Cavatina" will be rendered on the violin by John Woodrum. Selections by orchestra. All lovers of good music should be present. Bible school at 9:45. Epworth league devotional meeting at 6:30, led by Miss Lola Wilson and the second department. Friends at the door to give all strangers the glad hand.
