Scientific Socialism.

In his lecture last week, mention of which was made in the last issue of the Sentinel, Ben Franklin Allen maintained that three fundamental guarantees of the constitution, namely life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are denied the working man of today, the man who works for wages, and has nothing to sell but his working power. He said:

"We cannot guarantee life to a working man and deny him a job wherein he may produce that which is necessary to sustain life.

"We cannot guarantee him liberty, when we refuse to furnish him with employment, unless we can glean a profit therefrom.

"We cannot guarantee happiness when we refuse him employment which will produce happiness and the necessities of life. Without the guarantee of a job the working man of today is denied these three things, and it is beyond present organized society, working under capitalistic management, to furnish this employment.

"The reason is plain, because society today is based on the profit system, and must have profits in order to exist, and when times are close as they are today, it is imperative that men be not allowed to work, for if they were, and privately owned business could not sell the products of this labor, then profits would be wiped out and our business institutions would fall as surely as the sun shines.

"Then to solve the unemployed problem is the question which is before the American people today, and this solution the socialists have, and in no other way can it be solved, notwithstanding that our so-called statesmen today are trying by every means possible to solve it in some other manner.

Co-operative ownership of the means of production and distribution and the co-operative production for use instead of for profit will solve this problem and there is no other way.

"You may bust all the trusts in America today, you may tear down every business institution in existence, but still allow private individuals to own and control the means of production and distribution, and you still have the germ of the trouble imbedded in the system, and it will just as surely destroy happiness and opportunity in the years to follow as it has done in years past.

"Greed for gain, by utilizing labor power of human beings, and converting this labor power into property, giving back to the power only that which is necessary to reproduce this power, keeping the balance as a club to drive labor to renewed production, with the only thing in view of production, from which to extort more gain, is the meanest, basest and most depraved attribute of the human family.

"And to educate our children along these lines is one of the worst crimes ever perpetrated on innocent children and babes.

"To wipe out this crime of the ages is the mission of the socialist party, for they believe that opportunity should be free to all, and the only way which this freedom can be realized is through a co-operative industrial commonwealth."

A Step in the Right Direction.

Sunday morning, of last week, Rev. Sutcliffe gave a splendid discourse on the subject of temperance, and afterwards presented 150 pledge cards, of which about 130 were taken, which was a splendid move. But the work should not stop there. There should be talk and work by those that took those cards. And it is to be hoped that the other churches will take the cue and push the work along, and then it may be that when a good man or woman comes along to talk temperance to us that out of the five or six hundred church members in our city we can get more than fifty to come out and hear them. A DOOLITTLE.

October Was Dry Month.

October of this year was a dry month. For three weeks straight there was not a drop of rain. This is a pretty good record for a country where easterners say it rains thirteen months and two days of a year. Right in winter, too.

Send your Sentinel to eastern friends after you have read it.
