1,500,000 BARRELS OF PORTLAND CEMENT SHIPPED IN.

Oregon Pays Other States Millions for Products Which She Has in Undeveloped State.

That not one barrel of the 1,500,000 barrels of Portland cement, valued at $3,000,000, used in Portland territory last year, was manufactured in the state is one of the startling statements in the new bulletin on "The Economic Mineral Resources of Oregon" by Prof. H. M. Parks of the O. A. C. school of mines, who is also director of the State Bureau of Mines, which is publishing the new work at Salem.

Although Oregon produced approximately $4,000,000 worth of geological products in 1910, more than $12,000,000 worth were imported from other states and foreign countries, over three-fourths of which could have been produced within the state. More than $4,000,000 worth of clay products, such as brick, tile, pottery, terracotta and fire clay materials were used in the vicinity of Portland alone last year, and but $1,000,000 worth of these were manufactured in Oregon.

California and Washington have for some years spent thousands of dollars investigating the mineral resources of their territory, while Oregon has done practically nothing in this direction. Prof. Parks advocates a more thorough knowledge of the geological resources of the state, through a careful investigation the results of which may be published to the world. Thus the cement man, for instance, will be attracted here to develop the limestone deposits just as they have hitherto been developed in the states north and south of us through the dissemination of accurate information regarding such deposits.
