FOR THE CHILDREN

My Day.
I wonder where the days all go
And what makes other days.
Some hurry by, and some are slow,
But not one ever stays.

I wish I knew a way to keep
A long and happy day,
But when I sleep they always creep
So silently away.

I'd like to keep a day with me—
The one that was the best.
It would maybe just let me see
What happens to the rest.

If I could only hide behind
The day I loved and peek
It wouldn't mind if I should find
How days can make a week.

And I would take him by the hand,
And he and I would go
To Sunrise Land, where days all stand
Just waiting in a row.

And I would see the hours grow
To make my dearest day,
And then I'd know why some are slow
While others rush away.
—Youth's Companion.

In the Heart of a Tree.
Two men with axes chopped at the trunk of a great basswood tree, and then they went at the notch with a long saw, one man at each end. The tree stood in the forest along the Montreal river in Wisconsin. The men sawed away, and all of a sudden the saw rasped on something hard—the tough heartwood doubtless. The sawyers worked the harder, but it was to no effect. The teeth of the saw were blunted, and the men took to the axes again.

Can you imagine what they found when the tree had fallen with a roar that shook the surrounding woods? Their axes had uncovered the edge of another ax blade, hidden in the living tree, covered so deeply that no mark had remained on the bark to tell of what was within. The blade must have been in its place for a century or more, while the wood was growing about it and beyond. Its owner must have been one of the early settlers or perhaps a French hunter. The ax, still in its bed of basswood, will be kept on exhibition in the Smithsonian institution at Washington.

Washington's Birthday Party.
For a Washington's birthday party, given for children between the ages of eight and fourteen, the following will be sure to prove amusing:

Pictures of George Washington and a number of his generals, a drum, a boat, a flag, a tent, a picture of Mount Vernon and a cannon have been cut out of white cardboard. Red, white and blue crayons are to be given to the children, with the request to decorate their designs. The latter are chosen by blinding the eyes with a handkerchief and then leading the child to the table. This method of obtaining the picture precludes any preference. Allow half an hour for the completing of the pictures. Each guest is to keep the figure that he or she colors. Cut the sandwiches with a hatchet shaped cutter, and the ice cream should be molded in cherry forms.

The Game of Pairs.
Great fun may be got out of the game of "pairs." Each boy chooses a partner for himself. The host, who pretends he is a lawyer, walks up and down the room in front of the pairs, asking questions of any one he pleases. The answers to his questions must be made not by the one addressed, but by his partner. If the girl be addressed the boy promptly answers. For instance, the lawyer says, "What is your favorite occupation?" to the boy. His partner answers, "Dressing dolls" or "Making beds." He may ask a girl, "What do you like best to do?" and the boy by her side answers, "Playing leapfrog," or some other masculine sport. If any one answers out of turn he or she must pay a forfeit. The saucier the answers the greater the fun.

A Real Handy Tree.
Did you ever hear of a thread and needle tree? It is rather a handy tree to have growing in the back yard, don't you think, especially when there are boys in the house with buttons coming off about every other minute?

This strange tree grows in nearly all tropical countries and in some places nearer home where the climate is warm. It gets its name by which we know it from the curious formation of its leaves. At the tip of the leaf there is a sharp thorn, which is the needle. If you grasp it firmly and pull it out there you are with a needle already threaded for your sewing. This fiber thread is very strong, and the Mexicans use it for weaving a coarse kind of cloth as well as for sewing.

Conundrums.
Why is a car strap like conscience? Because it is an inner check to the outer man.

Why is it dangerous to sleep in a steam car? Because the train runs over sleepers.

What should you do if you split your sides with laughter? Run until you get a stitch in them.

Which of the birds would be supposed to lift the heaviest weight? The crane.

Why is a dirty child like fannel? Because it shrinks from washing.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Jones to Captain Cornell Track Team.

© 1912, by American Press Association.

John Paul Jones, the famous Cornell runner, who startled the athletic world last summer by making the new world's record of 4 minutes 15.25 seconds for the mile, was honored at his college recently by being elected to the captaincy of the Cornell track squad by his teammates for 1912. The great miler received the honor doubtless as a reward for his remarkable achievement in winning the intercollegiate individual cross country title for two successive seasons. He was also a member of the winning team for three years. Jones succeeds Tell Berna, the great two mile runner and intercollegiate title holder at this distance.

Memorial to Nancy Hanks.
The statue which John E. Madden is having erected at Hamburg place, Lexington, Ky., of Nancy Hanks, 204, the ex-trotting queen, is now well under way and gives every promise of becoming the handsomest memorial ever erected to the memory of a horse in this country. It is being placed on a knoll overlooking the paddocks and stables of Hamburg place and can be seen for miles around. Never has a retired trotting mare or, for that matter, a retired mare of any kind received the kindness and attention that is lavished upon the old trotting queen. She is the pet of every man, woman and child on the place and is affectionately called Nancy, her full name being seldom heard.

Rose Makes New Shot Put Record.
A new world's record is claimed for Ralph Rose, the well known California athlete, who at an indoor meeting given under the auspices of the Olympic club in San Francisco recently put the shot forty-eight feet nine and five-eighths inches. Rose's new record beats the previous record, made by W. W. Coe of Boston, by one foot three and one-eighth inches. Coe threw the rubber shot forty-seven feet six and a half inches.

Famous Walkers May Meet.
A. T. Yeomans, holder of the two mile heel and toe walking record in Great Britain, is out with a challenge to meet George Goulding, the sensational walker of Canada, for any distance, from one to five miles, for $1,000 a side. The challenge was made through George McDonald, the English sporting man who directs the destinies of Matt Wells, the lightweight champion boxer of Great Britain.

The Bench's Distinction.
A long winded attorney was arguing a technical case before one of the judges of the superior court in a western state. He had rambled on in such a desultory way that it became very difficult to follow his line of thought, and the judge had just yawned very suggestively.

With just a trace of sarcasm in his voice the tiresome attorney ventured to observe, "I sincerely trust that I am not unduly trespassing on the time of this court."

"My friend," returned his honor, "there is a considerable difference between trespassing on time and encroaching upon eternity."—Lippincott's.

Helped.
Mrs. Willis has been very watchful of her husband's diet lately and is in constant fear lest he overeat.

"John," she asked anxiously one morning when Willis had been telling her about the banquet which he had attended the night before, "how many helpings did you have last night?"

"Two," answered Willis absently, "one at the banquet and one on the way home."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Change of Heart.
Oh, everything is bright and gay, the world outside looks good.
And nothing is but what is right when once it's understood!
Our friends are true beyond a doubt; with joy the world's ablaze;
There's no such thing as sadness now, for pa has had a raise.

Time was, and not so long ago, he muttered as he went,
And he declared the world was but a place of discontent.
The rich, he said, oppressed the poor in forty different ways.
But things look very rosy now, for pa has had a raise.

Pa used to say to ma it was no use to try to win;
The game was for the favored few, and he could not get in.
But now he says the man of worth is bound to draw the praise
And merit always brings success, for pa has had a raise.

Pa's head is high up in the air, and thrown out is his chest.
He says that recognition comes to him who does his best.
"Perform your duties cheerfully, my boy," he says. "It pays.
Do not despise your humble task and you will get a raise."

Last week I heard pa telling ma his boss he couldn't see.
He said he didn't know enough to run a business.
But now he is the greatest man of all these modern days,
The wisest boss that ever lived, but pa has had a raise.

—Detroit Free Press.

Marred by a Muzzle.
It was the early hours of the morning and not yet light when Brown woke up with a sense of impending dread.

He had suddenly remembered that it was his wife's birthday and he had bought her no present. And Mrs. Brown would be wanting to know why.

Ah, an idea! Creeping stealthily downstairs, he put a very large plate on the hall table and then, still silently, let the dog into the house. The preparations were complete.

"Many happy returns of the day, my dear!" he chortled. "As it is your birthday I have got a little surprise for you. Be quick and come downstairs and see it."

Full of anticipation, the good lady followed him and was just in time to see him kick the dog out of the house and stare in amazement at the empty plate.

"If that wretched dog hasn't eaten all the beautiful cake I brought home for you last night!" he cried in well acted anger.

But he had overlooked one little fact. The dog had worn his muzzle. It took a long time to explain the incident away.—Answers.

Why He Asked.
They were over their wedding tour and imagined that every civility given them related to their new condition of servitude.

Having stopped off at a way station, the bridegroom was approached by the station agent, who asked:
"Are you going to take the next train?"

"It's none of your business," retorted the bridegroom indignantly as he guided the bride up the platform, where they condescended with each other over the impertinence of some of the natives.

Onward came the train, its vapor curling from afar. It was the last to their destination that day—an express. Nearer and nearer it came at full speed; then in a moment it whizzed past and was gone.

"Why in thunder didn't that train stop?" yelled the bridegroom.

"Cos you said 'twas none of my business. I has to signal if that train's to stop."—Telegrapher.

Had to Be Shown.
Once upon a time a book agent got the Hon. Champ Clark of Missouri into a corner, and though his victim was helpless, the agent was not cruel.

"I beg your pardon," he said solicitously; "I have a volume here which I don't want to trouble you with, but I hope you will permit me to show it."

"Don't apologize; don't apologize!" Mr. Clark broke in impulsively. "I know you've got to do it. I'm from Missouri!"—Judge's Library.

And No Questions Asked?
"I happened to be walking along Forty-second street the other day when I was attracted by a very handsome Boston terrier which a man was trying to sell. Going up to him, I said, 'That looks like a very valuable dog, and to my surprise he replied: 'You betcher life he's valuable, mister. Why, the guy wot I bought him off of is offering $100 reward for his return.'"

MANY THOUSAND SEE ELK
OREGON HERD DRAWS CROWDS AT EACH STOP.

Schools Dismissed and Business Houses Closed to View Animals Purchased for State Reserve.

Like the triumphant march of some conquering hero was the passage of the Oregon herd of elk through the Grand Ronde and Willowa valleys. Schools were dismissed, business houses closed and the entire populace of the towns along the line turned out to view the animals.

The coming of a full-fledged circus could not have aroused more interest, people having come from miles around. Hundreds of them had contributed from 50 cents to $5 each to assist in defraying the expense of transporting the animals and all felt a personal interest in them. Ten thousand Oregonians saw the animals in the two days that they were passing through the two valleys. From expressions heard along the road from the time the state line was reached, Game Warden Finley is firmly convinced that the undertaking has created more public sentiment for game protection in Oregon than any other move ever made by the game department.

Taft and Roosevelt, the two big leaders of the famous herd and the only full grown wild bull elk ever shipped, were eagerly inquired for at every station. From the time the car left St. Anthony, Idaho, on its long journey, the former never left his station at the car door where he stood guard of the herd night and day. Lady Whitebird, a snow white heifer, and said to be the prettiest elk ever shipped from Wyoming, was an easy favorite.

The elk were loaded into crates and placed on wagons for the 50-mile ride to their new home in Cheshinimus forest reserve. Thirty miles out the crates were transferred to sleds as the snow from there on is from three to four feet deep.
