TO DO AWAY WITH OVERCHARGES

Southern Pacific Officials Endeavoring to Overcome Evils.

A campaign for a number of freight traffic reforms that will be a great aid to both the shipper and the railroad, is being worked out by the traffic and claims departments of the Southern Pacific Company. One of the important features of this campaign is to be an attempt to do away with overcharges.

"A railroad would rather spend two dollars to avoid an overcharge, than half that sum in adjusting one," says E. O. McCormick, vice-president in charge of traffic. One of the common causes for overcharge claims is the failure of the shipper to properly describe the article on the shipping ticket, and in such cases the bill of lading carries erroneous information. Claims, in many instances, arise from causes beyond the control of the railroad company, and can be avoided only through the active interest and cooperation of shippers. Another cause for overcharge claims is illegible and poorly written tickets and bills of lading. The use of abbreviations also makes a great deal of trouble. Frequently these alleged overcharges are really undercharges. Proper description of the article shipped is one of the best methods of avoiding overcharges, say the officials. It means much delay to the shipper when the railroad company has to adjust these, and the company is able to save much of this delay and expense, principally by having the agents and shippers see that proper descriptions and proper addresses are well written or printed on the shipping tickets and bills of lading.

Drain Dribbles.

Mr. Lea, the contractor, is finishing up his work for the Drain Water Company, and citizens shall then hear no more about lack of water for fires and household purposes.

There is a man in Drain that has cut 7 tons of wheat and vetch hay to the acre, and put it in his barn. If you don't believe it, you can go and see it in Pop Remington's barn.

Robert Craig, a former resident of Drain, fell from the tower of the new steel bridge at Portland, a distance of 65 or 70 feet, and died in St. Vincent's Hospital, several hours afterward. He had a wife and three children, and he was to finish his work on the structure that day.

L. A. DeWitt, a practical farmer, but who has concluded he has had enough hardwork in that line to last him the balance of his days, is in Drain. He is a Democrat from way back, and has managed to live through a period of 60 years under the Republican party without changing his politics. He expects the Democrats to win this time and says there will then be a return to the good old times. He is intending to settle here and has already entered into negotiations for the purchase of a home in South Drain.

SAYS GRAVEL MACADAM IS GOOD ROAD MATERIAL

Judge Thompson Makes Inspection of Multnomah County Roads of That Character.

Judge Helmus W. Thompson of the County Court returned recently from a trip of several days to Multnomah county for the purpose of examining the gravel macadam which the commissioners' court of that county is using for road improvement.

Speaking of the matter, Judge Thompson said: "I have heard a great many people say that gravel macadam is of little or no value, but seeing is believing and a careful and thorough investigation of the work now being done in Multnomah county convinces me of its value."

"We started out by a tour over the Linton road to the west line of Multnomah county. We then took a trip along the section line road almost to the east end of the county, where there is gravel macadam to the 12 mile house. Then we traveled east on the base line road to a point two miles east of Sandy river. From Sandy river eastward they are improving with gravel macadam which is laid in three sizes in the same way that rock macadam is laid. The gravel which was laid on the section line road and the east end of the base line road seems to me to be just as smooth as the crushed rock macadam.

"Bank gravel is used. It seems to me that where there are large gravel beds such as are to be found in the northeast corner of the county and in some other parts as well, that we certainly should use it for the purpose of improving our highways. It is much cheaper than rock macadam, and, as I said, as far as I can see makes just as smooth a roadbed."

A MILLION EYES FOR ITS READERS

Hardly one person in a million realizes what the modern newspaper represents. The wireless, the cable, the telegraph, the telephone, the electric light, the railroad, the printing press, the typewriter, the linotype, the wood-pulp machine and a hundred other agencies are called on by the newspaper.

It is to the world what the sensory nerves are to the body, bringing intelligence of what happens in each remote nook and corner.

Like the sensory nerves, too, it reports disturbance and pain more forcibly than ordinary happenings so that danger may be averted or correctives applied.

The newspaper gives its readers a million eyes and ears, so that they may see and hear what is taking place all over the planet. Order the home paper today.
