Terrible Crime Laid at Door of Negro Who Has Been Arrested at Roseburg.—Hound Sent to Scene.

down the track from the west and attempted to get aboard. The train was already in motion, and the man was unable to catch it. He chased it down the track for some distance, finally giving it up and dodging to one side, where he hid under a warehouse.

A negro was arrested at Roseburg yesterday who admitted being in Eugene the fatal night and who had a case knife and razor on his person but denied any knowledge of the crime.

Cottage Grove's bloodhound found a strong scent in a clothes closet off the murder-room, and also in a fruit closet down stairs. Very evidently the murderer hid in these closets either before the crime, waiting a chance, or afterward, seeking an opportunity to escape. Failure of the dog to follow a scent outside is due, the officer is sure, to the fact that so many persons tramped through the garden and about the house.

The crime was not discovered until the father, the only other occupant of the house, went to call his daughter at 8 o'clock the next morning. He had heard no disturbance of any kind during the night.

a possible 75, when his target refused to work and he was ruled out.

In the individual trophy contest the score made by Banta was 273 out of a possible 300, a score never before equalled in the state. Banta also won the honors for the highest individual aggregate score.

Conner won fifth place in the individual shoot.

The team score for the state trophy was 1013 out of a possible 1200. This is the third year in succession that the Cottage Grove team has won this trophy.

Mooney made a record of 145 out of a possible 150, another record never before equalled in the state.

In the shoot between the teams of the Coast Artillery Corps and 3rd Regiment Infantry, the five Grove members of the team of eight, helped to give their opponents the most decisive defeat they have ever met.

Cottage Grove shooters literally carried off all the honors there were to be had.

The members of the team are Lieutenant J. H. Snodgrass, Sergeant Jas. H. Potts, Sergeant Horace T. Conner, Sergeant Chester Banta, Artificer Butte Mooney.

A. L. Monroe returned today from his vacation and is ready for business again. a22

FREAK BLAST KILLS DANIEL BOYLE

ROCK HURLED OVER 1000 FEET
CARRIES DEATH.

Many Others Escape Injury Only by Dodging Missiles as They Hurtle Through Air Towards Them.

The coroner's jury impanelled Monday by Coroner Gordon returned a verdict of accidental death. The jury was composed of Andrew Brund, Chas Brunneau, F. L. Ingram, A. E. Hamloth, J. H. Bolden and A. S. Powell. No blame was attached to anyone for the catastrophe.

Mr. Hart, of Hart & Graber had charge of the blasting, was a witness and explained the cause of the accident to be a large, undiscovered fissure behind the charge of powder, which caused the full force of the powder to be thrown against the outside wall. This he explained as a freak that it was impossible to guard against and was one which he had never met with before in all his experience in using powder, which has been extensive. All theories that successive blasts had weakened the wall of rock or that poor judgement was used in the amount of powder put in are scouted by him. A month before he used a 2,000 pound charge and it hardly lifted the rock. This time 100 pounds extra was used. The charge was meant to loosen 6,000 ton of rock. Owing to the peculiar action of the blast only 2,000 tons were lifted and this amount of powder for so small an amount of rock caused it to be hurled the great distance, although the load of powder was not too heavy if it had lifted properly.

Immediately following the blast the air was unexpectedly filled with flying missiles, women screamed and scurried from the danger zone, but many only escaped injury by dodging as the stones were hurled toward them. A large rock flew over an automobile occupied by Messdames C. J. Kem and A. C. Kinter and fell a few feet from it.

One of the narrowest of the many narrow escapes was that of Photographer Armstrong, who had set up his camera a short distance from the blast in order to secure a picture. He was warned that he was taking his life in his hands, but insisted on remaining. He snapped his camera the moment the explosion occurred and dodged behind a piling that was hit by several large boulders. Although he escaped uninjured rocks were piled all around him. If the rock crusher building had not impeded the hail of rock, he would have undoubtedly been buried.

Fully 350 people had gathered to see the blast and the rock that killed Boyle passed over the heads of a couple hundred people. Shelby Teeters was standing in front of Mr. Boyle and dodged the rock that killed the man behind him. The fact that Teeters was standing in front of him may have prevented Boyle from seeing the flying missile.

Under ordinary circumstances the spectators were in a safe position, and

Printing is Done

had refused to heed the warnings of those in charge of the blast.

Besides the killing of Boyle and the narrow escape of many others, the wood work of the rock crusher was demolished by the force of the explosion, was partly buried in rock, the buildings in connection with it were destroyed and the county road buried several feet deep with debris.

Boyle leaves a wife to whom he was married a year ago and a 3-months-old baby. He was employed by the Southern Pacific railway and was at the scene of the blast to repair any damage that might occur to the block system. The body was taken to Oregon City Monday night for burial. Mr. Boyle was about 30 years of age.

The extensive work being done in the city will be delayed a week or ten days by the destruction of the crusher, but a large crew of men is at work making repairs.

Blackberries Wanted.
The Eugene cannery wants all the wild evergreen blackberries it can get. They are now getting ripe and some are being received at the cannery, but not as many as desired. Some are being shipped from Yoncalla. The association pays 3 cents a pound for this berry, which grows wild in profusion in many parts of the county.
