The Altruism of Perkins

MEDFORD MAIL-TRIBUNE

George W. Perkins has announced to the local Bull Moosers that he is no longer a partner of J. P. Morgan's, having retired from the firm. Nevertheless he is still a director in the International Harvester and other trusts. Mr. Roosevelt in his speech of August 17, said:
"Mr. Perkins is a rich man. He came into my movement on his own initiative. I have known him for fourteen years, and when he joined me I asked him, Why are you supporting me?"
"He said the primary reason was because he had children. He had all the money he wanted, he said, and had come to the conclusion that this country won't be a good place to live in when his children become the age we are unless business and government are brought into proper relations, unless the relations of capital and the wage earner are placed on a better basis."
Mr. Perkins in his statement of August 20, said:
"Money is not all in this life. The mere accumulation of wealth will not bring an honorable heritage to my only son. Is there not something more than the incentive to make money which I can leave him?"
The inference is that Mr. Perkins, having amassed all the money he wants, is devoting his life to altruistic movements benefitting humanity, and has therefore entered the Roosevelt party as the party to promise to improve conditions.
A report has just been made public by the New York state factory investigating committee, headed by Senator Robert F. Wagner, which discloses deplorable conditions in the factories in New York, among them the factories owned by the Harvester trust at Auburn, N. Y., the mills of the Osborne Twine Company. It is a recital of tears and misery, of enforced slavery, of unsanitary conditions, of twelve hour shifts, of all night labor and pitifully small wages. Four hundred women are employed, two hundred work all night.
Seven dollars per week is the highest wage paid for all night labor. Married women are selected for the night shift. The father of the family gets an average wage of $8 a week and it takes the combined wages of the entire family to support it. The report says in part:
"The appearance of the women workers in this plant was very disheartening. They were worn and pale, and their clothes, faces and hands were covered with oil and hemp cloth. Many of these women, so called, are only children in age, and they have to lug huge piles of hemp, weighing 150 pounds each, across the floor, the load in some cases being bigger than the women themselves."
"In the spinning room, where women are employed alone, to the exclusion of men, who would have to receive higher wages, the clatter of machinery is so frightful that a voice below a shriek cannot be heard. The rooms are dark, though for no necessary cause, and no attempt is made to remove the dust, which is kept in constant motion by the line shaftings, despite the requirement of the law. This dust is breathed continuously by the women, many of whom complain of chronic coughs and colds. The dust and dirt are so thick upon the clothes of the girls that at the noon hour, which in many cases consists of but a few minutes, and at the close of the day's or night's labor, the girls have to sweep each other clean with brooms."
From the foregoing, there seems to be ample opportunity for Mr. Perkins to improve the condition of humanity in the concern in which he is a director.
Altruism should begin at home. It is not necessary for trust magnates to organize new political parties to improve the condition of humanity. If they mean what they promise, a reform in their own factories would be an earnest of their intentions.
Let Mr. Perkins put in effect the eight-hour day, the safety appliances, the healthful conditions, the minimum wage scale advocated by the progressive platform in the various mills he controls before posing as a humanitarian. Let him put his own house in order before reforming the world.
