Argument for the Initiative Millage Bill.
The initiative millage tax bill, providing for a six-tenths of a mill tax, four-sevenths for the use of the Oregon Agricultural College, and three-sevenths for the use of the University, and providing also for a single Board of Regents, was prepared by a joint committee from the Governor's special commission appointed to solve Oregon higher educational problem, and from the Board of Regents of the two institutions working in conjunction with the Governor and with the residents of the two institutions, and is offered as a substitute for all the present legislative bills for support and government of the two institutions.
This bill does not increase the average rate of taxation for the support of the two institutions as shown during the last ten years. The average during this period is a trifle over six-tenths of a mill.
The State of Washington is at present paying for the same purposes seventeen hundredths of a mill more than the Oregon bill calls for; namely, forty-five hundredths of a mill for the University and thirty-two hundredths of a mill for the Agricultural College.
The growth of the two institutions will certainly keep pace with the growth of wealth in the state, as has been shown by the experience of all other states using the millage basis of support.
This bill expressly repeals the $500,- 000 appropriations of the legislative session of two years ago, now submitted to the voters under the referendum (official numbers on the ballot, 372, 373, 374, 375), for their approval or rejection.
The present standing appropriations to be continued for one year are most urgently needed to give the institutions a start in buildings and to carry them through the period while the mill tax is being collected.
The passage of this bill will take the University and Agricultural College out of politics. The efficiency and dignity of the institutions demand permanency of support and freedom from political entanglements.
Through the unified control of the single board, hearty co-operation of the two institutions will be secured, and the advantages which comes from segregation will not be sacrificed.
Since the millage bill involves the question of taxation, it should be taken directly to the people. It is therefore not an abuse but a proper use of the initiative law, and the bill should be voted upon its merits.
