PROSPERITY IS ASSURED TO OREGON PEOPLE

$126,000,000 Is Value of 1912 Crop, Says Director of Oregon Experiment Station.

Value of the 1912 crop in Oregon is fixed at over $126,000,000 by Dr. James Withycombe, director of the Oregon Experiment Station, probably the best authority on this subject in the whole state. The showing is a splendid one and assures prosperity to Oregon people. The estimate in detail follows:

Wheat	21,092,274 bu.	$15,819,205
Oats	14,744,046 bu.	5,602,737
Barley	4,439,374 bu.	2,663,624
Clover seed	125,000 bu.	1,050,000
Potatoes	8,751,685 bu.	3,500,674
Hay	1,374,201 tons.	12,367,809
Fruit		6,750,000
Vegetables		5,250,000
Hops	85,000 bales	3,750,000
Miscellaneous products		9,500,000
Dairy products		16,750,000
Poultry and eggs		7,250,000
Wool	17,500,000 lbs.	2,850,000
Mohair	1,250,000 lbs.	375,000
Honey		135,000
Live Stock		33,150,000
Total		$126,764,049

The state's onion crop is about 389 carloads. Neither the coming election nor anything else can disturb prosperous conditions that are built on such a solidfoundation.

The Willamette Valley is becoming widely known as a clover seed section. Four counties will ship seven carloads this year and between $600,000 and $700,000 will be distributed among the growers. The Eastern market takes the most of the Oregon product.

Argument In Support of Proposed Constitutional Amendment Creating the Office of Lieutenant-Governor.

To the Voters of Oregon:

Section 8 of Article V of the State Constitution vests in the Secretary of State the duties of the Governorship in the event of the death, removal, resignation or inability to act on the part of the Governor. This proposed amendment creates the office of Lieutenant-Governor, defines the powers and duties of that official and provides for an orderly and business-like succession to the Governorship in the event of the death, removal, resignation, etc., of the Chief Executive.

We believe that the proposed amendment should be adopted for the following reasons:

1. It will prevent the Secretary of State from holding two offices at the same time and having two votes out of three on the State Land Board and other important boards and commissions, as he does now. The present arrangement is unwholesome, almost unprecedented and not in keeping with the principles of good government.

No public official, however trustworthy, should exercise the power and authority of two important offices.

2. It will relieve the Secretary of State from doing double duty in the event of his succession to the Governorship. Either position carries with it duties and responsibilities sufficient to fully occupy the time of a most capable man, and it is not in the interests of good government and sound business policy to continue the present arrangement and undertake to require a man to do work which it is impossible for him to perform.

3. It will not permit one man to hold two important offices and draw two large salaries at the same time when, by the very nature of things, he cannot do the work and therefore is not entitled to the two salaries.

4. It will provide for the carrying on of the work of the Governor's office, in the event of the death, resignation, etc., of the Governor, without demoralizing the work in the office of the Secretary of State.

5. It will provide for a logical and orderly succession to the Governorship, such as practically all other states in the union now enjoy.

The succession will be as follows:

1st. Governor.

2nd. Lieutenant-Governor.

3rd. President pro tem of the Senate (which office will be created by law).

4th. Speaker of the House.

The proposed amendment in no way interferes with the recall provision of the Constitution. If a Governor is recalled from office, his successor will be chosen by the people, and the Lieutenant-Governor will continue to be Lieutenant-Governor.

6. It will eliminate the biennial struggle for the presidency of the State Senate and will put an end to the political trades, secret deals and combinations that have frequently been witnessed in this connection, for the sovereign people will elect their Lieutenant-Governor, who will act as the presiding officer of the Senate. It has been stated by opponents of the proposed amendment that the people of other states have sometimes elected inferior men to the office of Lieutenant-Governor, and therefore, it is argued, the people are incapable of electing a good man for the office in Oregon. We are confident that the people of this state are just as competent to choose a Lieutenant-Governor as they are to

ASSASSINATION AND SOCIALISM.

Cottage Grove, Ore., Oct. 16, 1912.—Ed. Sentinel: In perusing the news columns and editorial pages of the various papers relative to the shooting of Ex-President Roosevelt, one is forcibly struck by the studied endeavor to saddle the cause of this crime on the Socialists.

The Oregonian, in a long editorial today commits mayhem on the English language in order to ring the changes on Socialism, claiming that the propagation of Socialism leads directly to the commission of deeds of this kind.

The fact that there is not a particle of truth in these statements cuts no figure with these papers, the only thing they are sorry about is, that it isn't true. Still they insinuate, without saying, hoping the ordinary reader will draw the conclusion they wish, trusting to luck that he will not find out different, and praying that they have planted the seeds of prejudice so deeply that he won't try to find out differently.

This reminds us of a man we sometimes read about who went about doing good but who was not satisfied with the established order and you all know the abuses and wrongs that were heaped upon him.

Roosevelt's assassin, by his own confession has never voted any ticket other than the Democratic or Republican, knows nothing about Socialism or any of its teachings.

The same can be said of the assassins of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, and the effort of newspapers and press associations to place this stigmaon the Socialists is one of the most disgraceful and contemptible acts that has ever come under my observation.

If there is a political party in existence today which comes nearer to the old Puritan idea of non-resistance than the Socialist party I do not know what nor where it is.

Ballots are the only weapons ever recommended by Socialists; ballots in the hands of intelligent voters. The only battle ground is the field of ignorance and prejudice and if anyone is assassinated on this field, then we Socialists stand ready to take the responsibility, we are ready to plead guilty and pay the penalty.

There is not a Socialist in America today who is not ashamed of a deed of this kind, who does not feel that crimes like these are a disgrace to our civilization, therefore we wash our hands of any such acts, for ours have not been the hands that have made such a civilization.

Brotherhood, justice and truth are out motto, watchful care and tenderness for the mentally weak as well as the physical weak.

Proper education and environment, practical common sense in the supervision of the mentally weak would eliminate all such sad affairs as the one in question.

Put the blame of this crime where it belongs, saddle it on the back of the existing order, let society carry the load until such time as it sees fit to change for the better, make men and women instead of dollars and cents, work to pile up knowledge and truth instead of fortunes in property, think more of your fellow man instead of yourself, then and not until then will you begin to make a society out of the whole timber, instead of the veneer that we have today.

When you once know what Socialism is, what it stands for, its aims, ideals and hopes, you never again will couple assassination and Socialism together. The shame and disgrace of it all be on the heads of those who ought to know better. G. F. K.

NEWSWRITING AN ART

University Classes in Journalism Find They Have Much to Learn From Editors.

"What is the feature of the story?" That is the question the students in the new department of journalism have devoted the first few weeks of the term to learning to answer. They have discovered that the good news story, which reads so smoothly and looks so simple is not easy to write, nor is it easy to learn the newspaperman's trick of picking the interesting feature out of the mass of formless material which is all he has to start with.

Mr. Allen, the instructor, has entered his pupils in fast company from the beginning, letting them work in competition with the star reporters on the New York newspapers. He clips from the Times, Herald, World, Tribune, Sun, Post and Journal some story all have covered. Then he tells the class a long, rambling tale including all the facts, but beginning at the wrong end, and clipping in the important details without emphasis, just as they usually come to the reporter actually covering a story.

For the next day the students write this material into a news story, trying to get the news into the lead, and to play up their best feature. Few succeeded in picking the feature at first, but they are now beginning to get the idea. One of the first stories used this way was the suicide of Policeman Anthony Debs, after he had wounded his wife and two little girs. Debs was the officer who had arrested Harry Thaw and had been very conspicuous in that long and notorious trial. Few students thought this connection with the Thaw case was worth mentioning until they saw that virtually all the newspapers in the United States had put this feature even into the headlines, and that it was one of the things that made this particular story worth playing up.

The students read their productions to the class and after discussion the instructors reads to them the same story as handled by the various New York reporters and passed by the various editors. The pupils feel that they have discovered a real principle in the handling of news when they compare their efforts with a unanimous verdict from the sensational World, the concise Sun and all the others.

In the advanced classes questions of newspaper management and policy are taken up, but in all much emphasis is laid on news writing and the preparation of good clean copy in the style editors and printers like to handle.

GIRLS WEAR FOOLISH CLOTHING

That's Why They Have Spinal Curvature More Than Men.

That girls wear foolish clothes, and for that reason more frequently have spinal curvature than men, was the assertion of Prof. Miriam Thayer, director of physical training for women at the Oregon Agricutural College, in the first of a series of health talks before the young women of the institution last week

Miss Thayer explained to the girls the sort of shoes they should buy for winter wear and why some styles cause flat foot, of which she has found many cases in her examinations of the physical condition of the students under her care.

Tight belts and tight clothing of all sorts, especially corsets, were condemned as the great cause of much of the spinal curvature which occurs far more frequently among women than among men. In the last few days a number of more or less serious cases of such spinal trouble have been discovered among the girl students, and special treatments are being prescribed in the gymnasium to correct the difficulty.

In order to give the direcot more complete informa tion on which to base her prescription of exercises for the individual girls, each one was given two cards to be filled out, one to contain the personal and family history, the other a schedule of exercises to be taken regularly.

The history card contains on one side a record of the illness and ailments to which the girl or her family have been subject, Hl effects following, strains, injuries or operations undergone, previous physical education and two special questions: Are you interested in having an erect carriage and perfect physique? and enough so to work hard for better physical development?

On the reverse of the card are the name and address, date and place of birth, birthplace of father and mother and their nationality, the father's occupation, when the child was born, resemblance physically to father or mother, if either parent is dead, a statement of the cause of death, the health of parent before the birth of the child and at present, the number of brotners and sisters and, if any are dead, the cause, the number of years lived in the city, suburbs or country, the appetite, digestion, susceptibility to colds, and whether subject to headaches or backaches.

If there is any trouble as to breathing equally well through both nostrils, trouble with the eyes or ears, fainting or shortness of breath, it is recorded. Do you sleep well, and how many hours? How many hours of the day are spent in the open air? Do you use stimulants in any form? These are some of the questions asked. The girls must also state whether they habitually use medicines, drugs or headache powders, the kind of work they are most often engaged in, what exercises they are now taking, and the number of hours each week they devote to recitation, to laboratory work, and to home study.

A list of sports is included, and all which the student has practised are to be underlined, and the favorites crossed out. Tennis, skating, mountain-climbing, hunting, fencing, hockey, golf, running and jumping, dancing, horseback riding, base ball, basket ball, and even soccer and wrestling are included in these sports. A knowledge of the experience and preference of the girls in these sports will give Miss Thayer a much more thorough understanding of any physical irregularities which she may find in her examinations.

These examinations and records are all preliminary to a much more thorough care of the young women students than they have ever been given before. Miss Thayer is anxious to increase the strength, health and poise of the girls in her care, and give them a physical equipment which shall be fully equal to the constant strain of close application to their studies. If this is done there will be no more girls dropping out of college before the end of the year because of overwork.

Halloween! Halloween!
Popcorn's snapping in the heat,
Chestnuts toasting, apples roasting,
Taffy stewing thick and sweet.
How the frisky shadows prance!
Like black goblins in a dance.
Down the mantelshelf an elf
Runs with twinkling feet.

Halloween! Halloween!
Pumpkin heads are all alight,
Grinning yellow at a fellow,
In a row, a silly sight.
Thought I saw a witch or two
Pass the window. Didn't you?
Fairies must be out no doubt.
'Tis the wonder night!
