TO DEVELOP PUBLIC SPEAKERS

To the end that boys and girls of Lane county may have a better opportunity to develop along the line of public speaking, a number of teachers of Lane county while attending the institute deemed it advisable to form a debating league which will work along practically the same lines as the state debating league, except that 7th and 8th grade public school children will be allowed to enter the same as high school students.

That as many students as possible may have an opportunity to debate, each school will as far as possible develop an affirmative and a negative team of three debaters each, which will meet two other schools, of near the same size, in a triangle, on the same night and debate both sides of the same question, which question will be decided upon by the principals of the contending schools.

H. H. HENDRICKS IS PARDONED

IS FORMER COTTAGE GROVE SCHOOL BOY

"Jury Was Packed" Is Reason Assigned by Taft for Extending Executive Clemency to Oregon Man.

Portland, Ore., Jan. 1.—A telegram was received here today from Washington, D. C., stating that Hamilton H. Hendricks, one of the men convicted in connection with the famous Oregon land fraud cases, was pardoned yesterday by president Taft.

Hendricks, who is a lawyer of Fossil, Wheeler county, was convicted of defrauding the government of part of the public domain in Wheeler county and of subornation of perjury in inducing persons to make dummy entries on public lands. He has been under sentence to serve 15 months in the federal prison at McNeill's Island, Washington, but sentence had been stayed pending disposition of appeal in his case.

When former United States District Attorney John H. Hall was pardoned a few weeks ago the forecast was made that Hendricks' pardon probably was within the near future. The grounds given by the president for pardoning Hendricks were said to be identical with those assigned in the Hall case; that the conviction was secured by a packed jury.

The pardoned man is a former Cottage Grove school boy.

Uncle Sam Creates Refuges for Wild Birds

About nine years ago Uncle Sam became actively interested in the protection of wild birds. This interest was brought about because various species of game birds, as well as song and insect-eating birds, were decreasing rapidly, while insect pests were increasing in immense numbers. Uncle Sam has recently estimated that the annual loss to agricultural and horticultural interests in this country amounts to $420,100,000.

The National Association of Audubon Societies, which was organized for the protection of wild birds and animals, began the campaign a number of years ago to get certain refuges or retreats where no hunting or killing of beneficial birds would be allowed at any season of the year.

The first national wild bird reservation was set aside March 14, 1903, by a special proclamation of the President. Since that time fifty-five other reservations have been created solely for the protection of wild birds. These embrace rocky islands, sand beaches, lakes, marshes and other places that are of no agricultural value, reaching from Florida to Alaska and over to the Hawaiian Islands. Many of these are the ancestral breeding places of birds, some of which are almost exterminated by plume hunters.

The "largest and best national wild bird reservations are on the Pacific Coast," said Mr. William L. Finley, State Game Warden for Oregon, who has during the past year succeeded in getting a large number of smaller game refuges in various parts of his state. "One of our government reservations includes a vast area of the treeless tundra at the mouth of the Yukon River in Alaska. Another includes lower Klamath Lake in northern California and southern Oregon, and a third includes Malheur and Harney Lakes in southeastern Oregon. These three act as immense nurseries where untold thousands of ducks, geese and other wild fowl are reared each year. Uncle Sam has established strict laws for the protection of these wild birds on the reservations and employs special wardens to see that these laws are enforced."

"A few years ago Mrs. Russell Sage became greatly interested in the work accomplished by the Audubon Societies and gave several thousand dollars which was used to carry on educational
