New Sacred Song.

A humorous occurrence happened at the M. E. Church service in a nearby district a week or so ago. The morning was chilly and the pastor was late.

Not wishing to delay the services and wishing to give the minister of the gospel ample opportunity to make himself comfortable after the cold trip, the presiding elder announced, "Let us sing No. 116, 'While The Preacher Warms.'"

The title was somewhat unfamiliar to the auditors, but the funny side soon "took," after which services proceeded.

An Experience In Self Help

EUGENE REGISTER

The city of Grants Pass is trying an experiment in self help that will be watched with considerable interest by other communities that are oppressed by a lack of railroads. Down there the citizens, tired of being a one railroad town, and sick of the promises of impecunious promoters, have voted by an overwhelming majority a municipal bond issue of $200,000 for the purpose of financing a railroad line from Grants Pass to Crescent City. At least an equal amount will be forthcoming from Crescent City, thus assuring a capital of close to half a million dollars with which to back the experiment.

Apparently, there is confidence at the start that the venture will result in benefit to the Rogue River country, for there were but 92 votes cast against the bonds. Considering the size of the issue, and the resultant increase in tax rates, this is rather a remarkable vote. Following the announcement of the result of the election, there was a general celebration. In order to permit the other cities of the vicinity to share in the enthusiasm, the band was assembled in the telephone office, and the wires were cleared for a time of other business so that the joyous acclaim was heard for miles around.

It is too hoped that in five years from now the Grants Pass people will be just as enthusiastic as they are now. The Rogue River valley is a section that has immense possibilities, and a railroad line to deep water will be of inestimable advantage if it can be successfully operated.

Ultimately, without a doubt, Grants Pass and the surrounding territory will reap great benefits from the enterprise that has been launched. All of Western Oregon is developing rapidly, and new railroads are necessary to handle the increasing business. Western Oregon is a field that is attracting the attention of railroad builders, as may be seen from the great projects that are planned and under construction in the Willamette Valley. If the road from Grants Pass to the sea is completed, it will make an attractive link in some of the projects of the future.

Regarded merely as a railroad owned and operated by the two cities, the future of the line is not especially rosy. Getting the right of way, building the grades and bridges and laying the rails is only a small part of the railroading game. Any good contractor can do that. The real problems have only begun when the work of building is finished. Twin streaks of rust, scattered in various places over the country, bear witness that a railroad built is not necessarily a railroad in successful operation.

The determination of the citizens of Grants Pass to get a railroad, however, will probably result in getting what they want. It will arouse interest, and investigation will follow. When the people of any community show a determination to help themselves it is always much easier for them to get help from someone else.

NOT A FRUIT STATE

OREGON JOURNAL

Why this impression of the easterner that Oregon production is all fruit?

We produced in fruit in 1912 about $4,000,000 in value. Our livestock output was $87,000,000.

In livestock we produced more in value than all the wheat, all the hay, all the oats, all the barley, all the corn, all the rye, all the poultry, all the eggs, all the butter, all the cheese, all the milk, all the salmon, all the mohair, all the wool and all the fruit, and with $17,000,000 to spare. Little has been said about it, and yet our livestock activity has such a paramount in farm industry that it is one of the state's greatest sources of wealth.

If we turned all our farms to straight production of grain, we could never approximate the present livestock totals. If we turned all available land to fruit, we could not duplicate it. Our whole total of grain products is $30,000,000, or but little more than one-third the great total of livestock.

There is no activity that more deserves our encouragement. Its totals are mounting by leaps and bounds. In spite of the great figures of 1912, we are only starting on the transition from range livestock to livestock produced within enclosures.

It is the latter process that will more and more increase the output. More and more every small farmer will have a few fat steers to turn off when prices are best. There will be more and more attention to better bred animals—animals that bring the highest profits.

The change in ten years in Oregon in this respect has been great. But it is nothing compared to the greater improvement that will be made in better graded and more highly finished animals in the next decade.

Our fruit has its place. So have all our varied industries. But in the long list of wealth-makers out on our farms, it is our livestock that is king.

War A Fuedal Survival

MEDFORD MAIL-TRIBUNE

"I refuse to kill your father. I refuse to slay your mother's son. I refuse to plunge a bayonet into the breast of your sweetheart's lover. I refuse to murder your wife's husband. I refuse to butcher your little child's father. I refuse to wet the earth with blood and blind kind eyes with tears. I refuse to assassinate you and then hide my stained fists in the folds of any flag."—From George R. Kirkpatrick's "War—What For?"

This is the literature that the German Kaiser, the Austrian emperor, the Italian king and the French republic are destroying. Authors of these sentiments are being imprisoned. Freedom of the press is being suspended. To question the divine right of those in authority to ruthlessly order the murder of millions of human beings is not only "treason" but sacrilege—in the eyes of these relics of feudal ages now sitting in the seats of the mighty.

Very few wars have been justifiable just as very few murders can be justified. It is just as unnecessary and just as wrong for the nation to go into the murdering business, as it is for the individual. Those wars that are justifiable are blood-atonements for misgovernment and tyranny.

The nation as we understand the word today, the homogeneous blending of allied tribes or peoples into a composite whole, speaking a common language, is really a modern creation—a development, save in a few exceptions like Great Britain, of the nineteenth century. Out of the chaos and anarchy of the dark ages following the collapse of the Roman empire came the feudal system and the reign of the barons, from which evolved the dynasties which dominated continental Europe for centuries and still dominate a large portion of it. The wars were struggles between dynasties, not between nations, for the nation as we understand it did not exist.

It took the French revolution to create the French nation. To the Napoleonic war, to Napoleon's ruthless conquests and destruction of principalities, kingdoms and small states, are due the creation of the German, Spanish, Italian and other nations, forced to merge and unite, either to gratify his dynastic ambition or in self protection, in a homogeneous whole.

Austro-Hungary, an artificial political union of dissimilar races, with little in common, in which two of the dominant races unite to suppress the third, is not a nation in the modern sense, merely a survival of feudal dynastic control, and only opportunity prevents the revolt of the Slavs to unite with the Balkans in the formation of a great Balkan nation—and the long awaited opportunity is likely to come with the war threatened to prevent another nation from securing a needed seaport.

With the irresistible growth of democracy, as the people understand more and more the criminal folly of war with its enormous burden upon the people, it is not unlikely that the twentieth century will see as its dominant political idea, the growth of a homogeneity among nations as the past century witnesses it among states, a federation of the nations of the world to deal with international problems, and the complete obliteration of the dynastic principle, which has served its purpose and is fast becoming an anachronism.

It is a travesty on Christianity to call nations that plunge into bloodshed for lust of power, that attack weaker nations for the "glory of the flag" Christian, for war is contrary to all that Christianity teaches. It is a poor patriotism that needlessly stains its flag with brothers' blood at the behest of a ruling dynasty. It is a sorry satire on liberty when men are imprisoned for preaching the brotherhood of man and protesting the needless slaughter of peace-loving thousands. It is a condition that belongs in the dark ages and must pass forever with the progress of the world.

IT'S A MISTAKE

Made by Many Cottage Grove Residents.

Many people in a misguided effort to get rid of kidney backache, rely on plasters, liniments and other makeshifts. The right treatment is kidney treatment and a remarkably recommended kidney medicine is Doan's Kidney Pills. Cottage Grove is no exception.

The proof is at your very door. The following is an experience typical of the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Cottage Grove.

Mrs. Ella Bisbey, S. Fourth St., Cottage Grove, Ore., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Benson's Drug Store, have been used in our family and have proven very effective in relieving kidney complaint. This experience has convinced me of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
