Rep. Eaton Proposes Reforms

Declares Rules of House Antiquated and Danger- ous and Proposes Remedies for Those Conditions

Material changes in methods of work and organization are included in a plan that will be presented to the Oregon house of representatives this winter by Allen H. Eaton, representative from Lane County. Decreasing the power of the speaker, lessening the number of committees by abolishing a large number of useless and antiquated ones, and speeding up the work of the house are among the more important things contemplated by Mr. Eaton. If his plan is adopted, he believes the efficiency of the house will be greatly increased, equal and fair consideration to all members and measures will be assured, errors will be reduced to a minimum, and such a session will result as will commend itself to the people and will regain for the legislature the confidence which has been lost largely because of poor and arbitrary methods.

The principal features of Mr. Eaton's plan are:

1. The number of house committees should be reduced by eliminating all useless ones and every member of the house should be set to work, giving him the work he is best fitted for and likes best.
2. The members of the committees should be selected by the house through a committee on committees consisting of five members elected by the House, no two to come from the same legislative district.
3. All committees should meet according to a schedule prepared by the chairman and ratified by the house, which should become a part of the house calendar and the house may compel the attendance of members at committee meetings. Meetings should be open, unless otherwise ordered, to all members of the house and senate and accredited members of the press.
4. All bills should be considered by the committees in the order in which they are received as far as possible, and every bill should be reported to the house within seven days after it has been received, but the house may grant additional time for the consideration of a bill by a majority vote of those present. The time may be specified, but if not, seven days should be understood as the limit.
5. No bill should be introduced after the 10th day of the session unless a majority of the house consents, and no bills should be introduced excepting by the consent of two-thirds vote after the 20th day of the session.

"The above rules, it would seem should have no opposition," said Mr.
Eaton yesterday. "None has yet appeared, but there is little doubt that when the time comes there will be a great deal of talk about 'the old rules are good enough, the reason being that some men and some measures are protected by the rules that have remained unchanged for so many years.
Measures that would surely meet defeat if tried on their merits sometimes get through by careful manipulation made possible by arbitrary rules; and good measures often meet defeat without coming before the house for discussion."

"All of these reforms," continued Mr. Eaton, "are based on sound and business like reasons. There are forty-five standing house committees, a number of which never meet and a large number of which amount to nothing.
They are the graveyard committees, used to fool new members and punish others who do not 'line up' or 'stand in.' An appointment on some ten of these is at best a joke. One or two new committees should be added to the list, but the whole number could be reduced nearly one-half.

"The change in the selection of members of committees from appointment by the speaker to selection through a committee of five from five separate districts in a plan upon which several of us have been engaged for two years. It is substantially the plan used by the national house of representatives, and if adopted will be the most progressive step taken by any state in the union. The organization fight has been a detriment to every session in which I have been a member, because every speaker has had to make pledges to win his election. These pledges have not resulted in the selection of the best or fairest men for responsible positions but too often the shrewdest and most arbitrary.

"The proposed method of selecting committees leaves the recommendations to five different sections of the state and takes into consideration the interest of all and fitness of each, and does not localize the committee appointments.

"This year there has been practically no contest on the speakership and it seems a particularly good time to put this new rule into force for some of the first supporters of Mr. McArthur, the probable next speaker, are strongly in favor of this rule. If we can pass this important rule at the next session I think it will do more to convince the people of the fairness of the legislature than anything else we could do, and once adopted future sessions will accept it.

"Referring to the rule requiring a regular schedule for the meeting of committees, no one who has ever attended a session of the Oregon legislature has failed to see the great waste of time and efficiency on account of no system for the meeting of committees.
The most important and the great bulk of work is done in committees and yet the session is usually half over before the committees get down to work.

"Bills should be considered on their merits regardless of who introduces them; but they are not always. If a committee does not like a man or his measures they sometimes pigeon-hole his bill and if allowed smother it entirely; if he complains they may wait for another bill to take its place and report it to the house first or instead.
A bill is also sometimes held in the pocket of the chairman of a committee until he can use it as a club to compel some legislation in which he is interested. The adoption of such a rule would make such procedure impossible.

"The adoption of such a rule limiting the introduction of bills to the first 10 days of the session, would influence members to prepare their bills before the session and get them in early. As the consideration of bills is the main work at the session it is apparent that the house could get to work much earlier if bills were ready for introduction the first days.

"The house works under some disadvantages which we cannot immediately remove. One is the short session and the other is the great volume of legislation. Both of these are augmented by the fact that we have no legislative representatives and as a consequence the great majority of members of the house have had no legislative experience. This year only 11 members of the last House have been returned and Mr. Meek, Mr. Reames, Mr. Hughes and Mr. McArthur have served in former sessions. Oregon's term of 40 days is the shortest of any state in the union. This time ought to be extended but this will require a constitutional amendment. The amount of legislation cannot well be limited but rules can be adopted that will render much legislation less of a menace than it is now.

"This will be my fifth legislative session, having served through three regular and one special session. I do not expect to introduce a bill and I do not care to serve on any committee. I do not know that I will be in the Oregon legislature again, but I am going to do all I can this time to help secure some changes in the legislature that are long overdue, changes that will do more to commend the house to the people than all the bills that could be passed in several sessions. These changes will mean a square deal to every man and every measure and equal participation with equal responsibility to every member of the house, a condition that never has obtained nor do I believe ever will obtain under the antiquated rules of the Oregon House of Representatives."

ACT QUICKLY

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Cot- tage Grove.

Do the right thing at the right time.
Act quickly in time of danger.
In time of kidney danger Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective.
Plenty of evidence of their worth.

A. J. Adams, 242 Rose St., Roseburg, Ore., says: "I can praise Doan's Kidney Pills highly for restoring me to health and strength. My back ached terribly for hours at a time and when the trouble had in some degree abated, I felt drowsy and miserable. For weeks I could not work and if I stooped, sharp twinges darted through me. Other symptoms of kidney complaint made their appearance and my condition became so bad that I shall not attempt to describe it. My limbs and muscles ached, my sight became poor and dizzy spells annoyed me.
Often I had to catch hold of something to keep from falling. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills and after using three boxes, I felt like a different person. I slept better, could attend to my work and felt improved in every way.
I now keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house but I have no need for them, as all the symptoms of my trouble have disappeared. This remedy cured me after others failed and I therefore recommend it highly."
