The Shortridge saw mill and the Rouse mill are both running and expect to do an extensive business from now on.

Rev. Williams preached here Sunday and Sunday evening. They were eight additions to the church, five having been baptized and three received by letter.

The good roads question is one of the leading ones before the minds of the people in this part of the country and while this section can boast of having the best country road in the county, a big improvement in the roads from Cottage Grove to Calapooia Springs is looked for this summer.

The Jim Shortridge hill seems to be the bone of greater contention. Some wish to have the bridge moved to the old ford and go over the hill, which will necessitate a considerable expense for building and maintaining, while others think it would be cheaper to move the bridge and cut the hill down, than to pay the necessary price for the right of way through the field and build the road there.

The county court seems to think it would be too much expense to move the bridge, but the people want a good road and they will not go around by the present bridge and then back part way home in order to get a fresh start.

Many think the best way is to follow the river to the N. W. White place and build a bridge at the sluice-down, which would give a water grade nearly all the way. One of these propositions will probably be settled upon soon.
