EAST AND WEST MEET

Walter McCormack, Famous Grand Opera Tenor, makes Friends with the Blackfeet Indians from Glacier National Park

The East and the West came together in a rather striking and unusual fashion at the recent concert given by the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra in the Auditorium at St. Paul. The Indians attended the concert as guests of L. W. Hill and were very appreciative not only of the splendid solos sung by Mr. McCormack, but of the rather intricate and high-brow type of orchestration rendered by Prof. Rothwell and his well-known orchestra.

Chief Fred Big Top, in referring to the concert, said he enjoyed it very much—"some of it was just like Indian music."

The Indians applauded long and loud at times and attracted considerable attention themselves. While the elite of St. Paul were present in evening dress they had nothing on the Indians, who were very elaborately attired and carried themselves with dignity and ease.

After the concert, the Indians were introduced to and photographed with Mr. McCormack as shown in the picture above. They extended him a cordial invitation to visit their native home, Glacier National Park, Montana, next summer.

Thief Keeps Books On Plunder Which He Stole

Prices Also Listed by Systematic Robber at Medford :: ::
A new wrinkle in criminal annals, in which a burglar systematically kept books on what he stole and what he expected to steal has been unearthed by the Medford police force in the capture of Frank Kelly, a young man of 23, who has resided some time on West Eleventh Street.

Kelly after his capture made a full confession, and produced his "books." A list of all he has stolen, together with the dates on which he broke into places, was found. Opposite the list is the price of each. At his home at 710 West Eleventh Street, the officers found more than two wagon loads of loot.

Kelly's list of stolen articles is unique. It looks like a bill for groceries and is very complete. He has "accounts" with Warner, Wartman & Gore, B. & C. Cash Store, Public Library, where he stole oil, Big Pines Lumber Company and a number of orchard companies in the valley.

TEACH CHILDREN TO HELP THEMSELVES

Vacant Lots Growing to Weeds Can Be Made Things of Beauty and Utility.

N. C. Maris, field worker of the department of education, has sent out the following letter:
In every town and city there are many vacant lots growing up to weeds that might just as well be producing garden and flowers, thus adding beauty and utility to the city instead of being eyesores. Many of these lots are owned by non-residents and others who would be glad to donate the use of them to children. Almost every town or community has its Parent-Teachers' Circle, civic board and perhaps other organizations, and they and the school board might get together and from their membership appoint a committee, whose duty it would be to secure the use of the vacant property for the children and arrange to have it plowed and fenced, when necessary. In appointing these committees do not overlook the ladies, for in our experience we have found them adept at such work. It would also be their duty to plan and manage the local contests, provide prizes for same and to select exhibits to be forwarded to the state fair, and to show the children how to pack, mark, enter and ship them. The teacher is not always qualified to do this work, and has about all he can do beside. Then when school closes and perhaps the teacher leaves the town the children need help and encouragement which this committee can give.
In every town and city are many children who have little or nothing to do outside of school hours. No healthy child can be idle, and without some direction of his activities and some provision of a proper avenue through which to vent them, they are apt to be wasted. It is not so much the fault of these children if they get into mischief and form habits of idleness, and possibly viciousness, as it is the fault of parents, guardians and others for not providing interesting and profitable employment for them. To aid in providing this employment and making it attractive and profitable is the object of the industrial contest movement inaugurated last year. To make this a perfect success it must have the cooperation of parents, teachers, school boards and all public spirited citizens, and we know of no better way in which they can help than as above suggested. Try it. Let the teacher or president of the Parent-Teachers' Circle call a meeting at once, effect an organization and report to the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction, Salem, Oregon, in order that he can put you on his mailing list for bulletins, etc., and assist you in every way possible.

MIND BLANK FOUR YEARS, MEDFORD MAN THOUGHT DEAD, FOUND

Former County School Superintendent Wakes Up in Los Angeles.
A patient at the Alameda county hospital, California, who has been suffering from loss of memory for four years, recovered his mind a few days ago and told the doctors he is A. C. Richards, a former county school superintendent from Medford, Ore.

Richards' wife has been telegraphed to, and it was learned that she had given him up for lost, and is running a candy store to make a living for herself and two children. Friends from Los Angeles left Oakland with Richards for Medford. He has no memory as to where he went and what he did during two years after he left Medford before he was committed to the Alameda county hospital.

Recipe for Camp Dough Boys.

Dough boys, the frying pan bread well known to many a camper and sportsman, is described in the camp cookery bulletin of the Oregon Agricultural College as follows:
Mix 2 cups of flour, 4 teaspoons of baking powder, 2 tablespoons of sugar, and 1/2 teaspoon of salt and add enough water to make a stiff dough. Use a tablespoon to drop it in small cakes in an inch of smoking hot bacon grease, and cook until a deep brown on both sides. If the cakes are too large they are apt to burn before they are cooked through.

NO BETTER STATE

If People Will Hustle and Save, They Will Win Out Here :: ::

From The Eugene Register.
Eugene, Ore., Jan. 30.—(To The Editor.)—Will you allow a 40 year resident of Blue Earth county, Minnesota, to make a few impartial statements? I would not for the world say an unjust word about old Minnesota, for I love her name and her people. Having lived within 30 miles of Mankato for 40 years, the name of Minnesota is very dear to me.

But neither do I care to hear Lane county or the Willamette valley or Oregon condemned. We have lived in and near Eugene for five years, and I am growing to love the name of Oregon. So far as the advantages and disadvantages of the two states are concerned, I think that Oregon has many winning points. As for the poor people in this part of Oregon, I am at a loss to see where they are as badly off as in the middle west. As for the laborer giving up his summer's earnings in the winter, people should remember that the winters of the east are long and cold, and that there laboring men have to eat in the winter and

Two Marshfield Babes Talk Strange Tongue

Speak Language No One But Selves Can Understand :: ::

Two small children of a well known Marshfield family have developed a peculiar freak of speech, which is puzzling the parents and friends.
The children are brother and sister, aged 4 and 5 years, and speak to each other in a tongue which is not understood by anyone else. The children have been taught the English language, the same as any other American children, and speak English as freely as any child of the same age, but, in addition, they seem to have a language of their own. They use not only a few expressions, but speak fluently to one another, and carry on their conversations in a language which cannot be understood by anyone else who has heard them talk. Each child seems to understand the other thoroughly.
The children are too young to have invented any "pigeon English," such as is sometimes used by children of more advanced age, and, besides, the two little ones have always been under their mother's notice, and the parents state that they have had no opportunity to learn any other language. Their strange tongue seems to come to them naturally. The father has been educated along somewhat technical lines, and the mother is an extensive reader. They are utterly unable to account for the peculiarity of the two children.

Prodding Up the Buyer

Within a short time Eugene will be visited by Mrs. Edith Tozier Weathered, who is an organizer for the Oregon Manufacturers' association. Her purpose here will be to organize a consumer's league that will demand Oregon made goods. Her work will be among the women's clubs of the city, and her purpose will be to interest those who purchase the daily supplies for the home in buying so far as possible products that have been made in Oregon.
This is approaching the problem of stimulating home industry from the right angle. It is useless to preach to the retailer that he must carry Oregon-made goods without preaching first to the buyer that he must buy them. The retailer is dependent upon his customers. He must have on his shelves the things that they want to buy, or he will soon go out of business by the sheriff's sale route. In this case, he will be of little further assistance in the Made-in-Oregon movement.

BOY, 11 YEARS OF AGE, IS HERO

Springfield Lad Rescues Smaller Companion From Log Pond.
In the person of Harry Sage, of Springfield, aged 11, who rescued Robert Palmer, aged 7, from a log pond, into which he had fallen while playing with a party of boys, Springfield folk believe they have a candidate for a Carnegie medal.
The Palmer lad slipped from a log into deep water and sank twice. In attempting to reach him from another log, young Sage was also thrown into the water. Unmindful of his own safety, Sage held onto the smaller boy, managed to remove his own coat and finally struggled to shore with him.
The Palmer lad was revived on bank, and shortly after was able to run home, while his rescuer limped away with a badly sprained ankle.
