CRESWELL FARMERS GET MARKET

Opening of Cannery Thought Big Help to Producers.

Creswell Chronicle: With the cannery soon to be equipped for operation and the directors of the association entrusted in its promotion busy, there need be no fear now among farmers for the disposition of their surplus crops. A good strong selling agency will be conducted especially for this purpose, for the benefit of those growing crops on large scales, or for anything grown that is not suitable for canning purposes.

Cemetery Association Incorporates. The Taylor-Lane cemetery association of Cottage Grove filed its articles of incorporation with the county clerk Tuesday. The trustees are A. M. White, W. T. Garoutte and A. S. Powell and Harvey Taylor is clerk.

Crew Goes to Reserve. The Brown Lumber Co. sent a crew of six men to the reserve Monday to prepare for logging operations and to get timber in shape for shipment as soon as the railway is built in.

Right Kind of Factories

EUGENE REGISTER
C. S. Williams, responding to the toast "Factories in Eugene," at the monthly dinner of the Commercial club Tuesday night, presented some facts that should be given careful study in campaigns for more factories in the city. What he had to say is given more weight by the fact that he is a manufacturer himself, and therefore speaks with an inside knowledge that those of us who merely want factories for the bucket brigade that they bring with them do not possess.

Oregon is a sparsely settled country, said Mr. Williams, and the problem of the manufacturer, consequently, is to find a market that will justify operations on a scale that will make cheap production possible. This necessarily restricts the manufacturing field for the present to industries that enjoy special advantages by reason of unusually cheap and easily available raw material, and that are not compelled to manufacture in huge quantities to meet a sharply competitive price.

Industries that not only furnish a pay-roll for the cities but develop the surrounding country by providing a steady and reliable market for agricultural products are strongly favored by Mr. Williams. Among these are creameries, milk condensing factories and canneries. All of these make it easier for the man on the small tract to make a comfortable living with money in the bank at the end of the year.

The stimulating effect of such factories as these is double. They furnish employment for labor in the cities, and they provide a continuous market for the product of the soil. By providing a market, they hasten settlement of the country, which is Oregon's greatest need.

Easy Enough. Beat it! We have a turnip in our window that measures in circumference 33 1/2 inches, one way, and 28 inches another. It was grown on the hill top of R. B. Teague, near Drain.

Rural Carriers' Examination. The United States Civic Service Commission announces an open competitive examination Saturday, April 12, 1913, for the position of rural carrier at Lorane.

GRIM PREPARATIONS FOR DEATH

ing the covers over his hapless form, he lay down to die. In this condition the suicide was discovered Friday morning, when Landlord Bennett peered through the keyhole to see if his eccentric guest had yet arisen. The door had been left unlocked and Mr. Bennett entered the room. Upon the floor lay the keen-bladed implement of death in a pool of coagulated blood, thus indicating that the deed had been committed early in the night. The body was also stone cold.

Coroner Gordon, of Eugene, was notified at once. After viewing the remains and questioning several witnesses, he was satisfied that the case was one of suicide, rendering a coroner's inquest unnecessary. The body was removed to Walker's undertaking parlors and prepared for burial. A telegram was sent to the widow of the suicide, who was in this city, and she left at once for the scene of the tragedy.

"I thought Mr. Stidham had gone to Marcola," said the grief-stricken woman. "Mr. Allen had sent for him to work in the timber at that place. He was apparently in good health and spirits when he left Cottage Grove."

Stidham arrived in Eugene the Saturday before he ended his life and engaged a room at the Springfield Hotel. He seemed to be of a very quiet disposition and was seldom seen upon the street. Landlord C. C. Bennett of the hotel, however, noting the eccentricities of his guest, questioned the man and Stidham confided to him the reason for the apparent settled melancholy of his demeanor. "I am suffering from neuralgia of the stomach," he complained, "and it is simply killing me by inches." During his stay, the suicide did not at any time appear under the influence of liquor, although he was addicted to drink. Upon the body when found were a gold watch and 95 cents in change.

Stidham was 50 years of age and had been married two years.

The body was brought here and burial services held Sunday from the Mills chapel, Rev. C. M. Cobb officiating.

SOCIETY

The K. D.'s met with Mrs. Chas. Beals Saturday. The afternoon was spent in the usual embroidery work, and a short business session was held, after which light refreshments were served.

Mrs. Charles Adams entertained a score or more of her friends Tuesday afternoon. A magazine romance and living advertisements furnished amusement.

The pupils of the eighth grade gave a social Friday evening in Phillips' Hall in honor of the class president, Carrol Harlow. Parlor games were indulged in, after which refreshments of jello, cake and lemonade were served. About 40 were present.

Mrs. J. E. Dunton perpetrated a complete surprise on her husband Friday evening, the occasion being his 31st birthday anniversary. The Ernest Purvance and J. I. Jones families were invited to supper. At about 9:30 members of the high school stormed the house and greeted the startled superintendent with the high school yell. Refreshments of ice cream and fruit were served. Mesdames Purvance and Jones presented the guest of honor with a handsome china cup and saucer.

Steals Whisky Out of Chief's Pocket To have a bottle of whisky stolen from his pocket by a prisoner was the experience of A. Austin, chief of police of Albany, last week. Chief Austin and Officer King had arrested two hobos and when they arrived at the city jail they stopped in the front corridor of the jail to search them.

Nothing was found on the first man and he was told to step aside. King, who was searching the second hobo, found a full bottle of whisky and handed it to Austin, who placed it in his coat pocket. While the search of the second man continued, the first hobo searched abstracted the bottle from Austin's pocket and the officers discovered the situation just in time to see him draining the last of the liquor from the bottle. The joke was so good that Austin told it himself.

Rev. C. M. Cobb went to Eugene this morning.

into the forest reserve on account of logging operations.

Property owners who have been taxed to pay for street squares on streets for others, thereby enhancing the values and beauty of other property, do not take very kindly to being held up when their improvement comes up, but it seems to be up to them to show the council how the work can be done. The councilmen are apparently willing enough to if the way can be shown, but they probably would not favor a way that meant making taxation a burden.

assistance of Mrs. Ralston, C. M. Lindsay and C. H. Haight, and it took their combined efforts to remove the weight.

Ralston believes the accident happened before 9 o'clock, although at that time, when he received no reply to his calls, he thought the workman had probably left the mill.

Matteson was a member of the Moose lodge at Eugene and the Fraternal Brotherhood. A sister, Mrs. Breeding, lives in Eugene. His mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Matteson, live near Eugene, and a brother, Fred, lives at Wendling.

Matteson had arrived at the mill only the morning of the accident, although he had been a regular employee when the mill was in operation. He was a single man, 35 years of age. The body was taken to Eugene Saturday for burial.

Dr. Job Elected Vice President.

Dr. Job of this city was elected vice president of the Lane County Medical Society at its meeting in Eugene Saturday. The annual banquet was held and among the speeches was a scholarly address by Dr. L. T. Griffith, associated with the Salem asylum.

Card of Thanks.

To the people of Cottage Grove, I hereby tender my sincerest thanks for their kindness shown me through my late bereavement.
