TOO ELABORATE IS FRUIT DRYER

Commercial Club and Grange Committee Report Unfavorably Upon Its Purchase.

The P. I. Rust fruit drying plant is too elaborate an affair to consider to purchase for a cannery plant. This decision has been reached by the joint committee from the commercial club and grange. The committee reported the plant to be a well constructed one and probably worth all that is asked for it, but the initial investment is too large for a proposition that does not expect to make any great amount of profit for several years. The grange still has the cannery proposition in hand, and hopes are still held forth that some definite plans may soon be made. Many members are showing enthusiasm that is expected to develop into something material.

Property owners claim that money raised on their lands in the past has been spent in other parts of the county and they now wish to get all they have paid in spent in one year in fixing up their roads.
