That Grange Dinner.

Some misunderstanding seems to have arisen regarding the grange dinner of a few weeks ago when a number of the business men were invited to be present. Members of the grange have asked The Sentinel to state that the business men as a whole were not invited. Each member was entitled to bring one guest and many invited business men of the city. A general invitation was not extended except to the newspaper men, so that there is no reason for anyone to feel slighted or to feel that he did not get an invitation to which he was entitled. Several were disappointed that they did not have the opportunity to partake of the tempting viands prepared by the grange's famous cooks.
