FRUIT BLOOMS ARE PEEPING OUT

In a Week or Two Country Will Be Aglow With Fresh Blown Blossoms.

Conditions remain favorable for a bumper fruit crop this year in the famous, fertile, fruitful Willamette. Buds of fruit trees are just peeping out into the world, probably having learned a valuable lesson from the experience of last year when they were severely punished for making a premature appearance.

In a week or two the country will be aglow with the fresh blown blossoms, the harbinger of prosperity and plenty for those fortunate enough to have bearing fruit trees, and fruit growers all over the valley are of the opinion that this is as it should be. All danger of cold weather is past, blossoms will not be in much danger from late rains and there is no apparent reason why the crop this year should not be one to talk about for years.

SURPRISED BY GROWTH OF SOUTHERN OREGON

Cottage Grove Men Can Hardly Believe Eyes After Absence of Number of Years.

Almond Hemenway and D. Read returned Saturday from a visit in Grants Pass, Medford, Jacksonville and Ashland. Mr. Read had not visited that section of the state for 22 years and Mr. Hemenway had not been there for 10 years. Both were much surprised at the wonderful advancement and progress that has been made during that time. Mr. Read said he could hardly believe his own eyes when shown producing orchards on land that was a wilderness when last he saw it and paved streets and brick buildings where the stumps had not yet been removed upon his former visit.

Messrs. Hemenway and Read were in that part of the state appointing agents for the patent invalid castor invented by Mr. Read and met with splendid success. They have a deal on for the sale of all of the rights at a fancy figure and are quite likely to dispose of them in this manner. If they still retain the business, the success so far met with indicates a tremendous sale for the article.

SOMETHING NICE FOR WOMEN READERS

EVERY WOMAN likes pretty and fancy things. Realizing that some of the most appreciative readers of The Sentinel are women, The Sentinel has prepared something nice for them, something that will be a joy forever, something that they will wish to keep in the parlor where visiting friends can see it. The premium is a satin pillow top on which is printed the first page of The Sentinel, making a design out of the ordinary, but at the same time attractive and rich. The Sentinel takes pride in the attractive appearance of its first page, and has received comment upon its artistic make-up in art journals from the Pacific to the Atlantic. We put more work and labor into preparing our first page for the press than most any other country weekly in preparing the whole paper. There is more live news on the first page than in the whole of most country weeklies. For these many reasons we believe this unusual premium will be an attractive one.

One of these pieces is easily worth a dollar. We will give one free with every two year subscription or for 25c extra on a single year subscription.
