PIONEER OF EARLY 50's IS DEAD

Richard Crowe Reaches Age of 80 Years; Was Father of Fifteen Children.

Richard Crowe, who came across the plains with his parents in the early 50's and one of the oldest pioneers of the Lorane Valley, died on the old family homestead at 3 o'clock yesterday forenoon of senile debility at the age of 80. Funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Lorane M. E. Church, Rev. Snyder officiating. Interment will be made in the private cemetery of the Crowe family upon the old Crowe homestead.

Mr. Crowe was the father of fifteen children, nearly all of whom survive. Among those residents of this vicinity are Mrs. Wm. Bainbridge, Effie, Nelson, Orvel, Frank, Nason, Mrs. And. Allen. Three daughters live in Washington. The wife also survives.

The discovery that jack pine of Central Oregon is suitable for making paper pulp is an important one to a large section of the state. It is expected the very large tracts of this timber will prove of considerable value when manufactured into paper.

The whole state responded nobly when called upon for aid to the flood sufferers of the Middle West. Cash, clothing and provisions were sent promptly and will no doubt do much to relieve the suffering of those whose homes were swept away by the floods.

If you don't read The Sentinel you don't get more than half the news.

1200 ACRES IN ORCHARDS

Caring for Large Tract Gives Employment to Many in Fertile Valley of the Stuslaw.

Lorane, Ore., April 7.—(Special.)—The last issue of The Sentinel gave the impression that there were but 100 acres of orchard in the valley. There are in fact over 1200 acres planted and of which the best care is being taken. The ground has just been plowed between the rows, further cultivation will be given with disc harrows and weedeas as soon as the ground is dry enough. These trees have all been sprayed and pruned. This has given employment to many residents as well as a number of transients, Jesse Darling, manager of the Milwaukee Orchard Co., one of the best boosters Lorane ever had, has launched a third company known as the Lorane Fruit Co. This company will plant a considerable acreage as soon as possible, Fruit Inspector Stewart having passed the trees.

This vicinity has been fortunate in having had assigned to the church here the Rev. F. W. Snyder who seems to be the right man in the right place. The interest in the work seems to be growing if the attendance is a criterion. The valley is again fortunate in attracting a Colorado Springs capitalist to invest here. The Scott Jackson ranch has been purchased. This is one of the best all round stock ranches here. The owner will be here in the summer to settle on plans for improvements. W. B. Hawley is going into farming on a big scale this season on that grand ranch of his, judging from the force he is gathering. Will Ward and family, C. E. Smith and family and J. D. Carter and family are his present force, in helping run the big place. It is also expected that he will do some road work.

A long felt want has been dry lumber when needed and the B. B. Lumber Co. is putting up a dry kiln to supply the want. Their new mill will be running within another week.

With Uncle Hardy Crowe's big vegetables growing on the east side of the valley and Mr. Edlefsen's wonderful rose garden on the west, visitors from Cottage Grove will be at a loss as to whether they are in the land where the vine grew so fast it wore the pumpkins out or in the Garden of Eden.

Richard Crowe, one of the old pioneers, is in a serious condition with recovery doubtful. Mr. Crowe is living on his homestead entered over 50 years ago. The present generation owes a great deal to these sturdy pioneers but it seems foolish for present day roads to follow the same old elk and Indian trails that they in their necessity were compelled to take.

Wishes to Hear From Her Long Lost Boys

Mother 82 Years of Age Has Not Had Word for 16 Years.

Their names are Chas. C. Bowers and A. S. Bowers. In moving back and forth between the East and West she has entirely lost track of them and doubts if they have any idea of where she is.

Mrs. Sherman recently celebrated her 81st birthday anniversary at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Jones. In honor of the occasion she wore a wrapper, every stitch in which she took herself, except a little done on the machine. Owing to an injured ankle she was unable to work the treadle and reluctantly turned that part of the work over to her daughter.

Mrs. Sherman was born in Montgomery County, Ohio, her maiden name being Colver. She was married Sept. 17, 1854 to John S. Bowers. The husband died in 1886 and in 1893 she married Mr. Sherman.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S MESSAGE

Following is the message read by President Wilson to the sixty-third congress in joint session Tuesday:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:—I have called the congress together in extraordinary session because a duty was laid upon the party now in power at the recent elections which it ought to perform promptly, in order that the burden carried by the people under existing law may be lightened as soon as possible and in order, also, that the business interests of the country may not be kept too long in suspense as to what the fiscal changes are to be to which they will be required to adjust themselves. It is clear to the whole country that the tariff duties must be altered. They must be changed to meet the radical alteration in the conditions of our economic life which the country has witnessed within the last generation. While the whole face and method of our industrial and commercial life were being changed beyond recognition the tariff schedules have remained what they were before the change began, or have moved in the direction they were given when no large circumstance of our industrial development was what it is today. Our task is to square them with the actual facts. The sooner that is done the sooner we shall escape from suffering from the facts and the sooner our men of business will be free to thrive by the law of nature (the nature of free business) instead of by the law of legislation and artificial arrangement.

A Set of Privileges.

We have seen tariff legislation wander very far afield in our day—very far indeed from the field in which our prosperity might have had a normal growth and stimulation. No one who looks the facts squarely in the face or knows anything that lies beneath the surface of action can fail to perceive the principle upon which recent tariff legislation has been based. We not long ago passed beyond the modest notion of "protecting" the industries of the country and moved bodily forward to the idea that they were entitled to the direct patronage of the government. For a long time—a time so long that the men now active in public policy hardly remember the conditions that preceded it—we have sought in our tariff schedules to give each group of manufacturers or producers what they themselves thought that they needed in order to maintain practically exclusive market as against the rest of the world. Consciously or unconsciously, who have built up a set of privileges and exemptions from competition behind which it was easy by any, event the crudest, forms of combination to organize monopoly; until at last nothing is normal, nothing is obliged to stand the tests of efficiency and economy, in our world of big business, but everything thrives by concerted arrangement. Only new principles of action will save us from a final hard crystallization of monopoly and a complete loss of the influences that quicken enterprise and keep independent energy alive.

For Better Work.

It is plain what those principles must be. We must abolish everything that bears even the semblance of privilege or of any kind of artificial advantage, and put our business men and producers under the stimulation of a constant necessity to be efficient, economical, and enterprising, masters of competitive supremacy, better workers and merchants than any in the world.

Aside from the duties laid upon articles which we do not, and probably can not, produce, therefore, and the duties laid upon luxuries and merely for the sake of the revenues they yield, the object of the tariff duties henceforth laid must be effective competition, the whetting of American wits by contest with the wits of the rest of the world.

It would be unwise to move toward this end headlong, with reckless haste, or with strokes that cut at the very roots of what has grown up amongst us by long process and at our own invitation. It does not alter a thing to upset and break it and deprive it of a chance to change. It destroys it. We must make changes in our fiscal laws, in our fiscal system, whose object is development, a more free and wholesome development, not revolution or upset or confusion. We must build up trade, especially foreign trade. We need the outlet and the enlarged field of energy more than we ever did before. We must build up industry as well, and must adopt freedom in the place of artificial stimulation only so far as it will build, not pull down. In dealing with the tariff the method by which this may be done will be a matter of judgment, exercised item by item. To some not accustomed to the excitements and responsibilities of greater freedom our methods may in some respects and some points seem heroic, but remedies may be heroic and yet be remedies. It is our business to make sure that they are genuine remedies. Our object is clear. If our motive is above just challenge and only an occasional error of judgment is chargeable against us, we shall be fortunate.

Call for Reforms.

We are called upon to render the country a great service in more matters than one. Our responsibility should be thorough, as thorough as moderate and well considered, based upon the facts as they are, and not worked out as if we were beginners. We are to deal with the facts of our own day, with the facts of no other, and to make laws which square with those facts. It is best, indeed it is necessary, to begin with the tariff. I will urge nothing upon you now at the opening of your session which can obscure that first object or divert our energies from that clearly defined duty. At a later time I may take the liberty of calling your attention to reforms which should press close upon the heels of the tariff changes, if not accompany them, of which the chief is the reform of our banking and currency laws; but just now I refrain. For the present, I put these matters on one side and think only of this one thing, of the changes in our fiscal system which may best serve to open once more the free channels of prosperity to a great people whom we would serve to the utmost and throughout both rank and file.

Argument for Good Roads.

An automobile party consisting of W. A. Bishoff, ex-sheriff of Grant County, M. Dunn of Grants Pass, J. Feely of Portland, who arrived last week from Portland and arranged their machine from here to Grants Pass rather than try to get through the Creek canyon, had stories of their automobile sections of the road, the dailies. No better argument for roads could have been presented.

R. Grant, 230
Ill., says: "Bad kidneys made me miserable. I was always tired. My back was aching. My stomach was bad. My head was dizzy. I was unable to do my work. I tried many remedies but nothing helped. I then tried Lee's Kidney Pills and in a few days I was well and have not had a return since. That's why I recommend Lee's Kidney Pills. They are the best for all dealers everywhere."

Guard Your Child Against Bow

Many children at home constipated, the consequences being able to realize that a child's bowels are not constantly watched, and that given by Dr. Miles' Laxative Syrup. Dr. Miles' Laxative Syrup is especially well adapted for children. The Christian Charity, 53 Hazlewood, Pa., who writes: "My son, who was of sickness say 'I was constipated. I was unable to do my work. I tried many remedies but nothing helped. I then tried Lee's Kidney Pills and in a few days I was well and have not had a return since. That's why I recommend Lee's Kidney Pills. They are the best for all dealers everywhere.'"

The form and flavor is very important. It is to take it. Appearance are especially important. Parents know how hard it is to get a child to take medicine. The taste is important. In using Lee's Laxative Syrup, the taste is overcome. The tablets, their candy-like taste at the same time, with the taste taken without the presence of other ingredients. Dr. Miles' Laxative Syrup is a remedy for children. If the first box does not return the money, we will return it. A box of only 25 cents. New York, N. Y. DR. MILES' MEDICAL CO.
