Women on Unique Trip.

Mrs. E. Smith Bentley and daughter, Mrs. Davis, who have taken a detour into the West after visiting in their own interests the memorial missions of their church in the frontier towns of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Colorado, were guests of Mrs. Paul Jones yesterday and are now resting with Mrs. Bentley's mother in Eugene.

The missions number twelve and the women give some most interesting and graphic pictures of the hardships the self-sacrificing missionaries are enduring in their chosen work.

A pleasant interview to them was with Rev. Broadbent who has recently come from North Dakota and understands the unique experiences the women had in this interesting and original trip.

loot, where he purchased a pint of whisky. He took two or three drinks of the liquor in the presence of the barkeeper and then left the place. A few minutes later he entered the bank and proceeded within a few feet of Acting Cashier Smith, who was well acquainted with Diamond. Smith, at first, considered Diamond's demand for money as a joke, and not until the demand was repeated four times did Smith enter the vault and obtain its contents.

Diamond kept his rifle leveled on Smith as the money was scraped carelessly from the trays into his pockets. He then backed to the door and walked leisurely down the main business thoroughfare of the city in the direction of the foothills. Smith followed Diamond to the door, where he informed pedestrians that the latter had held up the bank and secured about $3600.

B. L. Darby, a Glendale druggist, rushed from his store and fired three shots at the desperado as he reached a point of vantage on the sloping hillside. Henry Ross also fired several shots at the fleeing man, as did a surveyor whom he chanced to pass. Diamond returned fire, but failed in his aim.

Diamond then disappeared in the timber and started in a westerly direction over the rugged mountain which leads in the direction of Rogue River. Diamond's father has stated that his son imagined that he was afflicted with tuberculosis and was desirous of perpetuating the name of the family. Having read and talked considerable of Tracy and Tornow, Diamond's friends are of the opinion that he decided to live the life of a desperado and thereby bring notoriety to his name.
