Clean Up the Bowels and Keep Them Clean
 There are many remedies to be had for constipation, but the difficulty is to procure one that acts without violence. A remedy that does not perform by force what should be accomplished by persuasion is Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets. After using them, Mr. N. A. Waddell, 315 Washington St., Waco, Tex., says: "Almost all my life I have been troubled with constipation, and have tried many remedies, all of which seemed to cause pain without giving any relief. I finally tried Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and found them excellent. Their action is pleasant and easy to take. I am more than glad to recommend them."

GOVERNMENT LOSES SUIT

Titles of Settlers Between Two Proclamations Confirmed.
 Cheyenne, Wyo.—The government suit against the Midwest Oil company—a test case involving the title to millions of dollars' worth of oil lands in California and Wyoming—was dismissed by Judge Riner, of the United States district court. While the government sought to recover only 4000 acres of land in this suit, the issue involved covers thousands of other acres of California and Wyoming lands included in President Taft's sweeping order, designed to conserve the country's resources and to afford the government a supply of fuel oil for the United States navy.

California Gets Batch of New Laws.
 Sacramento, Cal.—A mother's pension act, a minimum wage commission act and a so-called "blue sky" act, the latter seeking to prevent wildcatting by promoters, were among a big batch of progressive measures signed here by Governor Hiram Johnson. A pipe line law, making oil ducts now owned by big corporations common carriers, and an eight hour law for women, to include student nurses and employees of lodging houses and places of amusement, also were signed.

HAWAIIAN VOLCANO TO BE FORTRESS

Boston.—American troops in the Hawaiian Islands have taken possession of the crater of a large extinct volcano situated on the coast, and are working night and day to convert it into a fortress capable of withstanding a long siege. Ammunition and food supplies are being stored within it, guns are being mounted, a water supply has been arranged for and gardens have been planted on the slopes of the crater to provide food and thus render the place self-sustaining in case it is besieged for any great length of time.
 This information reached Boston from an authentic source in Honolulu, and the communication further said that Americans residing in the Hawaiian Islands, including troops, are much exercised over the Japanese situation.

Popular Talks on Law WHEN THE BANKER CASHES YOUR CHECK.

By WALTER K. TOWERS, A. B., J. D., of the Michigan Bar

John Sommers was keeper of the general store at Elmwood. Allan McPherson was owner and head of the Elmwood Savings Bank. The relations between the two men were far from friendly, but as there was no other bank near at hand Sommers maintained a commercial account in McPherson's institution. One Tuesday morning he purchased a load of potatoes from Clyde Webb, a prominent farmer of the vicinity. Sommers paid Webb immediately, giving him a check for twenty dollars properly drawn on his account in the Elmwood Savings Bank. Webb took the check to the bank and presented it to McPherson, who was in the teller's cage.

"What did you do, go and sell that load of potatoes to Sommers?" inquired McPherson. "Yes; why not?" replied Webb.
 "Well, you might have given me a chance at them. You know I'm buying produce, as well as banking."
 "That's no reason why I shouldn't sell to John Sommers."
 "Well, I'll show you you're a fool to sell to him," angrily asserted the banker. "He paid you with a check, didn't he? And you took it; and it ain't no good at all, see!"
 "What's the matter?" asked Webb.
 "Why he's no good financially, and his check's no good, and you can't get any money on it."

Webb returned to Sommers, and Sommers hastened to the bank, knowing that his balance stood close to four hundred dollars. After a heated discussion at the bank Sommers traveled to the office of his legal counsellor. As a result action was begun against the banker because of his failure to cash the depositor's proper check, and substantial damages were recovered because McPherson's action had injured Sommers' standing and credit in the community.

This case illustrates what is perhaps the primary duty of the banker to his depositor—to pay all proper checks drawn on him against adequate deposits. If the banker fails to do this, either wilfully or through mistake, he must answer to his depositor. If the depositor whose check was wrongfully dishonored suffered any damages he may recover the amount against the banker. Injury to credit and business standing are the damages usually complained of in such cases. The banker is entitled to a reasonable time after presentment in order that he may examine into the state of the account against which the check is drawn. Good bankers have their affairs so arranged that this is a matter of seconds rather than minutes.

When Sommers sued McPherson, McPherson defended his action on the ground that while Sommers did have a balance of about four hundred dollars the bank held Sommers' note for five hundred dollars, which was to fall due within a week. The banker insisted that he had a right to retain Sommers' deposits to insure payment of the note when it should fall due. His position was not justified in law and furnished him with no effective defense. A banker may set-off an indebtedness that is due by the depositor to the bank against the deposit, but he may not set-off one not yet due. Sommers could not be required to pay the note until its maturity, and until then it was not an effective obligation against him.

It not infrequently happens that the holder of a check for say ten dollars, will present it at the bank for payment and discovers that the depositor has a balance of but seven. Often the holder of the check would be glad enough to get the proportion that the deposit would cover then and there. But the bank need not make part payment. This is because it is entitled to the check for use as a voucher in settling with the depositor.

When the bank pays a proper check it has a right to charge payment against the depositor. It may be that the bank will choose not to dishonor the check for ten dollars when a balance of but seven remains and will accommodate its depositor by paying the check in full. This is what is known as an "overdraft," and while contrary to the printed rules of most banks is still frequently done in ordinary commercial practice. If the bank allows an overdraft, in effect advancing money for its depositor, it may recover the amount from him.

Bankers do not take time to investigate a depositor's account for every check that is presented to the bank for payment. They depend upon memory, and confidence in the depositor, in many instances. So it sometimes happens that a bank will pay a check under the belief that the signer has an adequate balance on deposit, when such is not the case. On discovering its mistake banks have sometimes endeavored to recover the money paid the person who presented the check, but they have not been successful. In one sense of the word the bank paid under mistake, and
