Things We Think

Things others think, and what we think of the things others think.

The statute of limitations is the trusts' goddess of liberty.

We can not help but believe that the price of automobile tires is somewhat inflated.

A hypocrite is a man who claims to be as good as he knows he ought to be.

A candidate for the legislature in Pennsylvania says he is going to bust the ring or die. Well, we are sorry to see you go, old man.

It seems funny that folks who think this old earth is a terrible place to live in have a decided antipathy towards leaving it.

Sometimes a woman is well satisfied to be able to return a call by leaving a card—but that time is not just after she has gotten a new dress.

How many know who was secretary of state before Bryan? What is fame, anyway?

An investigation reveals the fact that there is coal enough to last 8,071 years. There are some who needn't worry about how they are going to keep warm even after that time.

We should think it would be hard on the Mormon youth to have so many mothers to mind—but the extra supply of grandparents might be convenient to have around during baseball season.

A Chicago man claims to have found a way to make cigars out of alfalfa. He's the first one with the nerve to own up to it.

The express companies' rates are so high that the common people can't even afford to express a wish that they be lowered.

A New England town has a women's club which proposes chloroforming all bachelors of over fifty years of age. Chloroform would have no effect on the heart of a man which has been unaffected by the love germ for that length of time.

Four Strawberries to the Box.

Oregon City Enterprise: Hood River has recently boasted of the size of its strawberries, but the Oregon "Eden" has nothing on Clackamas county, for Thursday Publicity Manager Freytag, of the commercial club, received three boxes of the blushing summer fruit that contained in all an even dozen monster berries. Four strawberries to a box is some record, Mr. Freytag believes, and he has already taken the superb specimens and placed them in preserving solution, to be exhibited as an example of what Oregon can produce in the fruit line.

Aside from these berries, some of which measured over half a foot in circumference, and which were grown on the ranch of C. W. Swallow at Maple Lane, Mr. Freytag has received for exhibition purposes a number of berries of the "Hood River size," and one single strawberry plant that more than comfortably fills one of the largest jars in the exhibition case. This giant plant has over 100 berries upon it, and is a striking example of the fertility of Clackamas county soil.

Mr. Freytag is anxious to receive samples of "prize" and ordinary fruit grown on Clackamas county ranches and farms, so that the exhibit of the commercial club may be kept up-to-date and fresh. The best of fruit received will be sent to the various land shows in the northwest and to Chicago, where it will do much to persuade settlers to come to Clackamas county for productive land.

Aside from the strawberries, an excellent display of cherries was brought to the publicity department of the commercial club this week by G. W. Walderon, and they will also be put in the exhibit as an example of the excellence of early fruit grown in the county.

Creswell Once Intended for Mormon Settlement.

Monday evening at the Creswell Presbyterian Church, Rev. F. L. Fraser gave an illustrated lecture on the Mormons. An interesting feature of the evening was reminiscences by Mayor George Gilfry. When a boy ten years old, he came across the plains from Illinois with many who were on their way to Utah to join the Mormon settlement.

He told about an attempt to establish a settlement at Creswell. Two men, who appeared to be farm laborers, worked on one of the old estates and tried to get the use of school houses and bought land. He said that at one time the very land on which Creswell is located today was under the ownership of Mormons, but as their purposes became known they were discouraged and finally left, apparently directed toward Salt Lake City. He said no one except those who had experienced the pioneers days knew of the sufferings and the privations that the first pioneers endured. His experiences date back into the fifties.

Sentinel Ad. Finds Owner of Purse

Immediately after an ad. appeared in The Sentinel asking for the owner of a lost purse, the owner appeared and secured her property. This is the second ad. within two weeks that has produced the desired result after having been printed elsewhere with no return.

Two Feline Freaks.

Cal Burns tells us of a freak in the cat family, it being a kitten that was born minus a tail. He says there is absolutely no sign of a caudal appendage. Another freak in the cat family was seen by the writer at Marcola recently, it being a kitten that was born with only one front leg.—Springfield News.

Freak Loganberries.

Albany Democrat: The freak god has waved his magic wand, this time over the loganberry bush at the home of J. R. Baltimore, producing berries in every respect like the ordinary berry save in one respect, in that the berries have grown in pairs, being joined together by some caprice of nature. From several twigs clipped from the bush there are about 40 distinct berries, growing together in 20 separate pairs. Every berry on the twig has a mate and there is not a single sign of a berry growing alone. The freak has attracted much attention and Mr. Baltimore is at a loss to account for it.

Notice to Property Owners.

You are hereby ordered to cut the tall grass and weeds along your sidewalks in accordance with the ordinance regulating this matter.

Commence Picking Royal Ann Cherries.

Many of the growers of Royal Anne cherries have commenced picking them fearing the rains may do further damage. The crop raised on the hills are not so badly injured as that raised on the lower ground.

Hay Ready for the Harvest.

The hay crop is about ready for the mower, especially the native grass hay or what is called velvet grass. It ripens up no matter whether the weather is wet or dry.

If you saw it first—you saw it in The Sentinel.
