WOMAN INJURES HERSELF IN PECULIAR FALL

Mrs. E. A. Jackson fell last Thursday afternoon, suffering a severe scalp wound and many bruises. She wished to pass through her front door onto the porch and gave the screen, which had been stuck, a vigorous push. On this particular occasion the door came open easily and the force of the unchecked push threw Mrs. Jackson down. She struck her head against a large wooden bucket in which she had a growing plant and cut her head so badly that four stitches were required. Mrs. Jackson is 83 years of age.

SINCE the introduction of the player piano, the Baldwin Company has believed that the true rank of any instrument of this kind should be measured by the freedom and sureness with which it enables the performer to express his own musical feelings. This conviction is demonstrated through the

Baldwin Manualo

(The Player Piano that is all but human)

It is the ultimate—the unmechanical instrument that we have had in mind from the beginning—the plastic instrument that musicians have used as their imaginative standard in comparing player pianos.

In the Baldwin Manualo we offer the successful unification of the most artistic piano with the most scientific player action in made in the world.

There is absolutely nothing better, nothing more perfect on the market, neither as a piano nor a player piano.

Please convince yourself of this at our music rooms. You are welcome whether you wish to buy or not.

Mrs. Wm. A. Sanders entertained Tuesday in honor of little Harmon's birthday anniversary. Dainty refreshments were served. Those present were Gordon Wright, Mary Elizabeth Huson, Eleanor and Paul Jones, Ruth and Harold Bede and their guest, Olive O'Brien.

Marriage licenses have been issued to Mr. and Mrs. Noah Ward Simmons of Cottage Grove.

Herman S. Beers and Mrs. Hanna Palmer both of Cottage Grove were quietly married Tuesday afternoon, August 12, at four o'clock by Justice Alta H. King.

A marshmallow toast was the diversion of a number of young people who climbed McFarland's hill Wednesday evening and built a bonfire at the top. In the picnic party were Misses Jessie Smith, Florence Hemenway, Annie and Jessica Powers, Blanche Lizer, Verna Phillips, Katherine Wallace and Marion and Maude Hooper; Messrs. Ward and Austin Berg, Victor Chambers, Jess McDole, John Legat and Herman Edwards.

The G. W. McFarland home was the scene of a pretty garden party Thursday evening when Miss Mabel McFarland entertained. Music and delightful old fashioned open air games occupied the guests. The grounds were gay and festive under the soft glow of Japanese lanterns. The hostess, assisted by her mother, served ices and melon. The guests were: Misses Vera Crowe, Edna and Hazel Ashby, Edith and Florence McGee, Jennie Chrisman, Juliet Woodard, Arlie Langdon, Bertha Stephens, Sadie and Frances Cox, Edith Whitlock, Nina Thompson and Ethel Damewood; Messrs. Joe and Frank Overholtzer, Otto Burcham, Neil McCoy, Sam Nickerson, Rupert McGee, Earl Ishmael, Andy Sears, Olie Anderson, Dorris Medley, Raymond Rinard, Perry Richey and Tad Pitcher.

The Girl's Missionary Circle of the Christian Church met with Miss Carrie Woods Monday evening. After the business meeting music and conversation held sway and the hostess served daintily.

L. F. Orpurd celebrated his birthday anniversary Sunday with a dinner at which covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Jones and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lewis and family, Mrs. Chas. Cochran and family and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Conner and son.

Rex Wheeler was the honor guest at a surprise party given by his mother, Mrs. T. C. Wheeler, Monday afternoon in honor of his ninth birthday. About eighteen of his little friends called to congratulate him and to indulge in merry games on the lawn. Mrs. Wheeler served ice cream, cake, candy and grape juice punch.

ANOTHER BRICK FOR COTTAGE GROVE

W. B. Cooper and Al. P. Churchill Buy N. H. Martin Property at Corner of Fifth and Main.

W. B. Cooper and Al. Churchill have purchased the N. H. Martin property on the corner of Main and Fifth Streets, now occupied by the Barker and Coffman Cigar Store and will extend the building already planned by Mr. Cooper to cover the inside lot where Hemenway & Lockwood's office was located, to cover the entire corner. Oliver Veatch, who owns the property on which is located the Somers and Taylors meat market which is the next lot to the ones on which the buildings already mentioned are to be erected, is considering letting the contract for a brick in connection with the other building.

GROVE BEATS ROW RIVER ON ROUGH FIELD

Ragged Playing by Both Teams Turns National Game Into One of Ping Pong.

Cottage Grove base ball team journeyed to Row River Sunday where they took on a picked team from the district. The game was weird from start to finish and how the national pastime was butchered was really amusing.

The game was played on Bake Stewart's trap-shooting grounds which in spots resembled warts on a dil pickle. The river boys seemed to like the rough ground and broke into the scoring game in the very first frame with two ringers. Cottage Grove was unable to do anything until the fifth frame, here they collected one counter, following with five in the seventh and four in the eighth. Row River did not collect their runs in bunches, but after getting two in the first, they counted once in the fourth, three times in the sixth and once in the ninth. Final score, Cottage Grove 10; Row River 7.

Batteries: Cottage Grove, Earl and Smith.

Row River, Pitcher and Wicks.

ANCIENT SKYSCRAPERS.

Roman Houses Were Tall and Flimsy, the Streets Narrow Lanes.

The tenement house is no new thing. So great was the number of such houses and so badly were they put up in ancient Rome that in 69 A. D. the Emperor Otho, who was then marching against Vitellius, found his way barred for twenty miles by the ruins of buildings that had been undermined by an inundation. The spontaneous collapse of tenement houses was so common an occurrence that little attention was paid to it.

The tenants of these houses have been described by a writer of the time as fearing to be buried or burned alive. Companies existed for the purpose of propping and sustaining houses.

In comparison with the tenements of most modern cities, those of Rome were excessively high. Martial alludes to a poor man, a neighbor, who had to mount 200 steps to reach his garret. That garret must have been perched nearly 100 feet above the level of the street.

It is possible that Martial exaggerated, but it is certain that Augustus, to make less frequent the occurrence of disasters, limited the height of new houses that opened upon the streets to about sixty-eight feet. As this was a remedial regulation and referred only to new houses fronting on the street, it follows that some houses must have exceeded that height.

This, moreover, was irrespective of the breadth of the street. In Berlin the medium width of the streets is twenty-two meters, and in Paris the narrowest streets are nearly eight meters wide, while the streets of Rome extended only five or six meters, and on these narrow streets the tall houses were built. Light and air must have had some difficulty in penetrating those narrow, walled in passages.

SARDOU AT REHEARSALS.

He Worried the Actors to Scowls and the Actresses to Tears.

Sardou, the great French playwright, knew how to profit by the views of other people. Jerome A. Hart writes in his book, "Sardou and the Sardou Plays":

"Like Alexandre Dumas pere, Sardou was extremely sensitive to the opinions of the less subtle spectators of his rehearsals. He closely watched and heeded the impressions and comments of the stage carpenters, scene painters, foremen, supers and other humble people behind the scenes. They represented to him the average mind of the average audience. To the opinions of actors of his unproduced pieces he paid little heed; to the opinions of critics, none at all. At rehearsals no details escaped him. He would seat himself on the stage chairs and sofas, open and shut the practicable doors, go to the back of the parterre to study the perspective of the scene, climb to the highest gallery to see if the audience there could hear, and then hasten back to the stage.

"There he would seat himself, jumping up during the rehearsal thirty or forty times to show the actors his idea of the action. In doing this he would laugh, would cry, would shriek and would even die a mimic death. Coming to life again, he would call for his overcoat and hasten to muffle himself up as before. He was very sensitive to cold and always came on the stage with a heavy coat, a muffler and cap to protect him from drafts.

"He would rehearse from 10 in the morning until 3, when he would take a sandwich and a glass of wine. After this he would resume his work until 5, at which hour he would go blithely forth into the street, smiling and humming, 'followed,' as one resentful player put it, 'by scowling actors and weeping actresses.'"

The Idler Works Hard.

Work, ideally, should be congenial, fruitful, and the worker aware of his worth to the world. Nobody works harder than the idler. He has on his hands the dire task of killing time. Knowing the awfulness of vacuity, he fills the day with a semblance of activity and while gnawing at his peace is conscious of the barren folly of it all. The finest argument for real work is the spectacle of its counterfeit presentation.—Richard Burton in the Bellman.

Yeast—I see a man has patented a head rest to be fastened to the arm of a car seat to aid the comfort of passengers obliged to sleep in day coaches. Crimsonbeak—What is most needed in day coaches is a chin rest for the man who happens to sit next to you.—Yonkers Statesman.

His Excuse.

"Why is it that you wish to be excused?" asked the judge of the unwilling juror.

"I'm deaf, your honor—so deaf that I really don't believe I could hear more than one side of the case."—Cleveland Leader.

The Surprise.

A man told his daughter that if she learned to cook he would give her a surprise. She learned the art, and he surprised her by discharging the servant girl.
