DAYLIGHT ROBBERY AT ANLAUF

Robbers Rifle Postoffice but are Soon Captured by Posse and Lodged in Jail.

A bold daylight robbery and a quick capture of the yeggmen occurred at Anlauf Monday afternoon. While Mrs. Robert Anlauf, postmistress, was at dinner, two young men who had been loitering around, entered the postoffice by prying open a window, took the stamps, a small amount of change, postal cards, registered mail and some other letters and made their escape to the south. The Anlauf home is about 150 yards away and the only one in the vicinity. The postmistress, thinking she heard a mysterious noise, made an investigation and found the robbers at work. She was alone and unarmed and there was not sufficient time to summon help, so she hid herself and as soon as the thieves departed, notified the agent at Comstock, who immediately sent a posse after the men. A speeder on which D. C. Wallace and Lester Brant were returning to Cottage Grove from a trip down the line, was pressed into service, Clarence An-

TYLENCHUS DEVASTATRIX! LO THE POOR ONION AND ITS DEVOTEES

Washington, Lovers of beefsteaks and onions were startled today when the department of agriculture announced that the tylenchus devastatrix had invaded the United States and the future of the onion industry was in jeopardy. The invader with the imposing name is known also as the onion eelworm. Hitherto it has confined its operations to Europe, Africa and Australia, where it has wreaked havoc, but now it has made its appearance in this country.

The government experts, in warning the growers of onions, did not minimize the gravity of the appearance here of the eelworm. It seems impervious to chemical remedies that have been tried for its eradication and the eggs of the insect, the experts declare, will survive two years of complete dryness.

"The worms are seldom over one-twentieth of an inch long," says the department experts, "and are very slender and transparent, so that their presence

NEW CHAMP HEN LAYS 285 EGGS IN YEAR

College Bred Biddy May Yet Reach 300 Batting Average for 1913.

Another Oregon Agricultural College hen, known to the scientific world as '521, has broken the former world's record of 282 eggs and promise to rob her sister hen of this institution of her recently acquired championship honors. This biddy laid her 285th egg is not generally detected by the naked eye and the grower therefore often remains in ignorance of his loss." The pest attacks all floral and vegetable bulbs and is regarded as highly dangerous. In view of this the department urges that all infected plants be sent to it for microscopical examination.

several days ago and had 20 days more before her full year is up. She appears to be in good condition and has been laying steadily for some time. It is even possible that she may pass the 300 mark. The new contender is one of the flock of 50 which is averaging more than 200 eggs a hen and which includes the world's champion. "Like the champion, this new contender is not a pure-bred within the meaning of the fanciers' standard of perfection," says Professor Dryden, "but she is a pure-bred egg layer, produced from several generations of good layers. These two hens are of similar breeding, but not closely related. Both hens were kept in the same yard throughout the year and had the same care. There are other high layers in the same yard and the encouraging feature of it is that they all have an ancestry of good layers."

The present world's champion since completing her record of 282 eggs on October 15, has continued to lay every day.

Clothes Do Not Always Make the Man, but they Often Make a Man Successful

To prove this, I want you to come and look over my line of new samples and select what is best suited to you and I will make you a suit that will fit you and which will make you satisfied with yourself and a joy to your friends.

The value of a paper's advertising is gauged by the number of people it reaches. No other paper reaches more than a quarter as many Cottage Grove people as does The Sentinel.

Within a 15 mile circle around IMPERIAL there are now several hundred prosperous farms raising enormous crops of wheat, rye, barley, oats, potatoes, vegetables, etc. Poultry raising is also highly successful.

Three large stock ranches, owning several thousand horses and cattle are also in this circle.

IMPERIAL is now the trading point and will soon be the shipping point (the railroads are now building) for the products from thousands of acres surrounding it.
