

OWN YOUR HOME

and You Will Be Healthy

Owning a home of your own makes you feel as if you amounted to something. Consequently you walk with your shoulders thrown back. Physicians tell us that walking with your shoulders back and breathing your lungs full of fresh air, wards off consumption and other diseases. That manner of walking improves the general vitality of the body. Therefore, you owe it to yourself and those dependent upon you to own a home and thereby keep your health in good repair. The most natural thing to do after making up your mind to own a home is to visit Milapoo Park and see the number of new homes other people with the physical culture bug are putting up. Now is the psychological moment to join the colony. Lumber for building purposes may never be so cheap again. Delay means added expense. See me today.

THERE'S A REASON

If you saw it first, you saw it in The Sentinel.

WOMEN'S Footwear That Beautifies

It is essential to wear a shoe that is prettily shaped to obtain attractive effects so much desired by well dressed women.

As great care is necessary in selection of footwear as in that of gown or hat.

A shabby shoe ruins the entire effect of an otherwise faultless attire.

Utz & Dunn Co. Shoes

have grace of line and elegance of finish that make them beautifiers of women's feet. Carefully constructed over lasts of newest design, these shoes look well, wear well and retain their shape and perfect fit under continual strain.

They will save you shoe money—try them.

SURPRISES MANY IN COTTAGE GROVE.

The QUICK action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-ika, the remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis, is surprising Cottage Grove people. Many have found that this simple remedy drains so much foul matter from the system that A SINGLE DOSE relieves constipation, sour stomach and gas on the stomach almost IMMEDIATELY. Adler-ika is the most thorough bowel cleanser ever sold. For sale by New Era Drug Store.

Chum Saved Himself.

A little dog, unlicensed, had been found in the streets and taken to the pound. He was an affectionate animal and greatly endeared himself to all about the place. They called him Chum, and he joyfully responded whenever his name was spoken. As the days passed, other poor, homeless dogs were put to death. Finally came Chum's last day of grace, and no one had come to claim him. The next morning dawned, and the man who was to kill Chum called him into the yard. Chum danced and wagged his tail, no doubt thinking something good was in store for him. The man then said: "Well, Chummy, your time has come. You'd better say your prayers." Immediately the little forepaws were crossed, the little head bowed, and Chum said his prayers. As the little body was still in this attitude of reverence a step was heard. The attendant looked up and saw the superintendent standing there. There were tears in the eyes of each. Chum is still living, but instead of being nobody's dog he is now everybody's.—St. Louis Republic.

Proved His Profession.

In "Pierre Garat, Singer and Exquisite" is the story of the Parisian favorite: Out alone one evening in 1792 Garat was arrested by a patrol of national guards because he was unable to produce his card of citizenship, as decreed by the convention. And so he, Garat, "whose larynx was said to be a whole opera," was taken to the section house, and the officer in command began his interrogation as follows: "Your profession?" "I sing." "That," retorted the officer, "is not a profession. I also sing." "Possibly," drawled our hero, "but I sing better than you. The case is not the same." "Oh! You will have to prove that!" Garat, always fond of an innocent coup de theatre, immediately attacked one of the most famous romances of his repertoire—a thing of trills, roulades and "dying falls," a performance so astonishing in that grimy guardhouse that his captors not only released him, but escorted him home in triumph.

A Novelty in Strikes.

The management of a traveling theatrical company demanded 2 shillings for admission. The visitors did not propose to pay more than 1 shilling and after a hasty consultation outside the entrance formed a "theater goers' union." Pickets were stationed, and within a few minutes 278 people—practically all who were there—had agreed not to pay the 2 shillings. The manager appeared at the doorway and refused to make the required reduction.

"I'll give you till I count twenty," said the newly elected president of the new union, "and after that our price will be sixpence instead of 1 shilling." He counted slowly to nine, and then the manager capitulated.
The strike was declared at an end, the quondam strikers trooped into the hall, and the union was dissolved after an existence of about twenty minutes.—Sydney (Australia) Mail.

The Eskimo Mind.

The difficulty of conveying the true idea of Christianity to the Eskimo mind is related by Vilhjalmur Stefansson: "Now, it seems that in Kotzebue sound, where the Christian doctrines of the Colville people had originated, fishing is by nets only. As fishing is practically the only work done there the missionary had probably said to them, 'Do not put out your fish nets on Sunday,' meaning thereby 'Do not work on Sunday.' However that may be, the prohibition came to our community in the form 'God has said you must not use fish nets on Sunday.' Accordingly the entire community pulled their fish nets out of the river Saturday night, fished with hooks all day Sunday and put the nets back into the water Monday morning."

Uncorker of Ocean Bottles.

It is not many years since the high sounding post of uncorker of ocean bottles was abolished in England. News traveled slowly in Queen Elizabeth's time, and the first news she had of the taking of Nova Zembla by the Dutch was found in a bottle picked up by a Dutch fisherman named Tonfeld, who forwarded the message to the lord high admiral. Queen Elizabeth was struck by the idea and decreed that all bottles with inclosures found on the coast should be forwarded to the lord high admiral, Tonfeld being appointed uncorker. The post survived for centuries.

Babies and Sleep.

Infants cannot sleep too long, but may be deprived of needed rest if placed in light rooms or awakened by noises. Nothing so unnerves the child as lack of rest, and the health may be permanently ruined if it does not sleep the fourteen hours or more that it should.

Help Expected.

"Your salary isn't enough to support my daughter."
"I'm glad you've come to that conclusion so early, sir."—Boston Transcript.

Just So.

Crawford—To do a thing well, you know, you must do it yourself. Crabshaw—But you miss the fun of seeing the other fellow work.—Judge.
