IS IT TOO GOOD A CAR? PLEASE COME THIS WEEK AND SEE

Reo the Fifth, as most men know, is the best-built car in its class.

It is built by R. E. Olds—built as he thinks a car should be built, after 27 years of car building.

It is built slowly and carefully—with utter exactness—with big margins of safety. It is built to stay new, to save trouble and upkeep.

Here is the utmost in an honest car. Come see if you find any part too good.

REO THE FIFTH—A SUPER-CAR

Here is a car which embodies extremes found in no other car in this class.

It has a 35-horsepower engine, but every driving part is made to stand 50-horsepower tests.

Test chassis have been run for 10,000 miles—run night and day at high speed on rough roads. Then taken apart and inspected. And every vital part is built so that all that reckless driving leaves it practically like new.

The steel is made to formula. The gears are tested for 7,000 pounds per tooth. The springs for 100,000 vibrations.

The car has 15 roller bearings. It has 190 drop forgings. It has oversize tires. It has a very costly clutch to prevent all the damage of gear clashing.

In a hundred ways which mean strength and endurance it offers you a super-car.

The Car to Keep

The car is for men who buy cars to keep. For men who want cars to stay new. Each car is built as Mr. Olds would build it for himself.

It is also for men who want the last word in beauty and equipment. It has the new streamline body. It has electric starter and lights. It has the one-rod control which makes gear shifting easy. It has perfect finish, deep upholstery, hand-buffed leather, etc.

Now $220 Less

This year's model sells for $220 less than last year's model with electric starter. This is largely due to the fact that all special machinery for building this chassis was charged against previous output.

Now, for the first time, a car built like this and equipped like this is sold for $1,175.

Every spring, the demand for Reo the Fifth exceeds the factory output. Production this year has been largely increased. But the demand for this car keeps ahead of supply.

We urge you, therefore, to come this week. If you want this car for early delivery, come while we can supply you. The time is bound to come when we can't.

After the Greasers.

Cottage Grove, Ore., April 25.—Ed. Sentinel: W. P. Huff, Ed. Jones, Alex. Spare, Joe Garoutte, Jim Sears, Dave McFarland and Joe Porter are going to leave for Mexico as soon as they get orders from Uncle Sam.

Spare and McFarland will surround the Mexicans, then Huff, who is the captain, will shoot them and Ed. Jones will follow up with a pick and shovel and bury them. Sears will act as forage master. He will take a sack to carry beans in and agree to keep the boys well supplied. Joe Garoutte will be chief cook. He says that if he is good at any one thing it is cooking beans.

The others have not decided what they will do with Porter. Huff says Joe is slippery and too much of a ladies' man for a good soldier. Huff says he feels certain he can depend upon all the others, especially Jones, who, he says, is truthful, or at least a man of his word. I hope the boys will have a good time, do their work well, clean up the greasers, end the war, all come home alive and live to tell their exploits to their grandchildren.

VEBUI.

P. S.—Bear Meat Jim is going with the boys.

CAPTAIN RUSH

MEXICAN WAR NOTES

Rumor that Secretary of State Bryan would resign because of the Mexican crisis is denied.

Every available fighting ship on the Pacific will be assembled in west coast Mexican waters.

Federal soldiers evacuated the garrison at Piedras Negras on the Mexican border, opposite Eagle Pass.

Seventeen Americans killed and about 75 wounded marked the complete investment of Vera Cruz by the United States forces.

The house, without a dissenting vote, passed the Fitzgerald bill appropriating $500,000 for the relief of Americans in Mexico.

Major General Leonard Wood will have complete charge of the army if American troops are called on to invade Mexico.

Coffins to the number of 800 have been loaded onto an army transport at Galveston, for shipment to Mexico ports.

A report from Mexico City to London says that Japanese residents there are making demonstrations in sympathy with the Mexican cause.

The average ages of the men in the fleets now off Vera Cruz is 21 years, said Representative Hobson, addressing the house.

Foreign representatives in the capital of Mexico are prepared for a possible attack by the rabble and most of them wear British flags on their coats.

The interests of the Huerta government in the United States were taken over by the Spanish embassy when Charge Algora asked for his passports and left Washington for Canada.

Secretary Bryan states that no evidences of anti-American feeling or demonstrations had been reported from Mexican territory now held by the constitutionalists.

Government officials received the word on high authority that Huerta deliberately planned the affront to the United States in order to bring on war with this country, for the purpose of uniting all Mexican people.

Secretary Daniels estimated that between 3000 and 3500 refugees either are on their way from Mexico or under protection awaiting departure for the United States.

Reports from the coasts of Mexico from Admirals Badger and Howard, respectively, described energetic efforts, not only of the navy, but German and British vessels, to assist refugees in leaving the trouble-torn republic.

The German vessel Ypiranga, whose consignment of war munitions for Huerta caused the United States temporarily to seize the Vera Cruz customs-house, was ordered back to Hamburg, Germany, without landing her cargo.

Nuevo Laredo, the thriving Mexican border town, opposite Laredo, Texas, is in ruins, devastated by dynamite and fire by Mexican federal soldiers, who began an orgy of destruction which did not end until they were forced to flee before the guns of the American border patrol.

In the opinion of the administration officials the task of financing a war with Mexico will be comparatively easy. For the present the current appropriation for the army and navy is deemed sufficient. A stamp tax and beer tax could raise $100,000,000 a year. It is said, and there would be no necessity for making a special bond issue.

General Carranza of the Mexican rebels informs President Wilson that the United States has no right to invade Mexico in order to settle grievances with Huerta, whose leadership and authority is not recognized by the constitutionalists. He invites the American bluejackets to evacuate the ground already occupied. President Wilson refuses to yield to the demands of General Carranza for an evacuation of Mexican land captured at Vera Cruz, and reiterates his policy toward Huerta and the Mexican people.

3 SOUTH AMERICAN REPUBLICS FOR PEACE

President Wilson Formally Accepts Good Offices of Brazil, Argentina and Chile.

Washington.—President Wilson announced he had accepted an offer from Brazil, Argentina and Chile to use their good offices in an attempt to bring about a peaceful and final settlement of the difficulty between the United States and Mexico.

The offer was formally accepted by the three South American nations to Secretary Bryan.

The reply of the president through the secretary of state to diplomatic representatives of the three nations declared emergency may arise in the negotiations.

Coincidentally with the acceptance of the offer of mediation, administration officials announced there would be no cessation of preparations by army and navy for future emergency and no orders would be issued to naval forces now at Vera Cruz or to ships at sea changing original orders. No further steps, however, to the preparation for the indignities which gave rise to the present situation will be attempted while the effort is being made to bring about a settlement through diplomacy.

Broad Settlement of Problems. Although the offer made by the three South American countries not to reveal their plans, it was known that they contemplate a broad settlement of the Mexican problem through the elimination of Huerta, upon which the United States has insisted from the beginning. Notification of the offer of mediation was sent, not only to the diplomatic representatives of Argentina, Chile and Brazil in Mexico, but to General Carranza and the constitutionalists in northern Mexico.

The feature of the plan which has attracted the attention of the president's visitors is the fact that the United States is joining hands with three big nations of this hemisphere, emphasizing American solidarity and a principle of the Monroe Doctrine, and at the same time showing to Central and South America, as a whole, the peaceful intentions of the American government.

The fact that Argentina, Brazil and Chile have stood with the United States in refusing to recognize Huerta government is an element in the situation which rose conspicuously to the front as discussion of the new question turned official channels for the moment, at least, by thoughts of war to those of peace.

It was generally realized that the offer of the three countries would be difficult, for they have been dealing with Huerta only as a de facto ruler and could not become involved in steps of formal recognition any more than could the United States in its relations to sign a written protocol for the adjustment of the incidents at Tampico and the demand for a salute to the American flag.

Sentiment of Congress Warlike. Though the Mexican crisis has been under suppression in congress since the president and his cabinet escaped plans of reprisals against the de facto General Huerta, there is an underlying current of feeling in the senate and house for a declaration of war, which was tempered somewhat by the acceptance of offers of mediation from Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

Although there was evidence of a feeling of dissatisfaction with present conditions in the senate, probably the most remarkable evidence of concern centered in the house. More than a dozen of the most prominent members of the democratic side participated in the conference. Speaker Clark, Majority Leader Underwood, Chairman of the foreign relations committee, Chairman Fitzgerald, of the appropriations committee, and Chairman of the military committee, figured prominently.

The discussion was so outspoken that there was talk for a time of the appointment of a committee, to consist of Speaker Clark and Mr. Underwood, which should call on President Wilson and inform him that the sentiment of the house was for war.

House Leaders Belligerent. Out of the many conferences the attitude of the house leaders has been exceedingly clear. They said that they should be declared; that the United States should send the army into Mexico and "go through with what has been started"; that in this way only permanent peace could be established on a permanent basis. They represented the sentiment of the house on the side and they prepared to tell the president that since the house took this position they believed it to be the position of the country.

In the senate there was no concerted action as was evident in the house, but there were reports of dissatisfaction from individual senators and evidence that the bond of understanding which many senators have observed for months may soon be broken.
